

40 Million to Test New Deal at Polls Today

Public Called To Aid Chest
As Symbol of DemocracyAnnual Drive Opens
$2,127,000 Is Goal
4,000 Attend Rally
Columnist Speaks

Dorothy Thompson Text, Page 3.

A mass meeting opening the District Community Chest's eleventh annual appeal for funds at Constitution Hall last night heard Dorothy Thompson, noted journalist, describe the Chest movement as representative of the public-spirited assumption of social responsibilities which people must show if democratic government is to survive.

Miss Thompson called on people in Washington and elsewhere to contribute generously to the Community Chest out of gratitude for their own fortunate condition and the fact that they live in a democracy.

Rights and Duties

"To many people," she declared, "gratitude seems to be an outworn conception—perhaps because in this democracy we have placed so strong an emphasis on rights, and so weak an emphasis on responsibilities, seeming to forget that every right is attended by a reciprocal obligation."

More than 4,000 voluntary workers and contributors who attended the meeting rose and cheered when Miss Thompson concluded her address.

Coleman Jennings, president of the Community Chest, opened the meeting, declaring the Chest had proved "the most unifying force that has come to Washington during the last decade."

The Chest, he said, "is detached from politics and from everything else except a united purpose to bring private philanthropy together. We are here," he declared, "in response to a sacred obligation to our needy neighbors. The Community Chest is based on the principle that fullness of life is the due of every man."

A Common Cause

He pointed out that all creeds were united in one common cause. In the Chest, nine thousand workers volunteering for the solicitation of funds, he said, will try to reach 200,000 persons.

While Herbert L. Willett, Jr., director of the Chest campaign committee, acted as announcer, Girl Scouts marched down the spacious hall, carrying banners representing the 57 social agencies supported by Chest funds, and assembled on the platform.

Immediately following, Girl Reserves of the Young Women's Christian Association sang.

See CHEST, Page 17, Column 2.

Quintuplets Lose
Tonsils, Adenoids
Tomorrow

Callander, Ontario, Nov. 7 (Canadian Press)—The Dionne quintuplets will undergo adenoid and tonsil operations Wednesday.

Kelth Munro, their business manager, said the decision was made yesterday by Dr. Alan Brown, Toronto child specialist, and Dr. Allan Roy Dafeo, the quins' physician.

It was believed Dr. Brown would bring six or seven technical assistants with him Wednesday.

Dr. Dafeo and Dr. Brown have had under discussion for some time the operations on the five little girls, who were 4 years old May 28.

Tonight! Listen To Election Returns Broadcast From Post's City Room

The Nation's elections will be reported in tomorrow's Post, but in the meantime you can get the results as they come in to The Post's City Room by keeping tuned to WJSV throughout the entire evening—starting at 6:30 P. M.

WJSV—6:30 P. M.

4,000 Hear Dorothy Thompson at Chest Rally

William J. Flather, Jr. (left), Community Chest campaign chairman; Dorothy Thompson and Coleman Jennings, Community Chest president, at the Community Chest rally last night at Constitution Hall which was attended by 4,000 persons. Other Pictures, Page 17.

Andrews Aide
Wrote as Red,
Dies Unit ToldAssailed Capitalism
Called It 'Shell Game'
Sees Workers' Rule

By the Associated Press.

House investigators heard yesterday that Paul Sifton, an assistant to Elmer F. Andrews, was an active member of the Communist Party, according to a report by a source in the House.

J. B. Matthews, secretary of the House committee on Un-American Activities, in this country, told the committee that Sifton had contributed the article to the first issue of Fight, a publication of the American League Against War and Fascism. He testified the article had this to say with reference to capitalism:

"Tell them you know that they know they're sunk unless they can start a war to make their $200,000,000 in debts look better than a trainload of waste paper. Tell them they and their fancy pieces of paper and the whole capitalist shell game can sink and be damned. Tell them that we've got another war on, closer home, a war to establish a workers' peace, a worker's government. (They know this way, but they hate to be told.)"

From his office, Sifton issued this comment:

"The article referred to by Mr. Matthews was written for a publication and an organization which was organized to oppose imperialist war and along heavily traveled arterial highways not a single unusual act of violence."

See DIES, Page 15, Column 2.

Searchers Find
No Safe Driver,
But Summon 7Were to Make Awards
Bestowed None
Motorists Too Hurred

By Howard F. Westworth.

The first day's search for safe and courteous drivers conducted jointly by The Post and Metropolitan Police Department ended yesterday with seven arrests and a close shave with disaster.

For months last season, Police Sergeant M. F. Farnham, District 1, and a Post reporter toured city streets on the alert for an act of driving caution or courtesy which would entitle some motorist to recognition. But not one safety certificate awarded by the District Life Underwriters Association was issued.

Instead, Officer Patton was kept busy overhauling reckless speeders and handing out "invitations" to visit Traffic Court this morning.

A woman driving around Dupont Circle came the nearest to receiving an award. She had stopped for a red light. When the signal changed, several pedestrians were caught in the center of the street.

The woman driver hesitated a moment, and it appeared that she was going to yield the right-of-way.

But she changed her mind, jammed the car into gear and literally plowed her way through the stranded pedestrians. Several jumped out of the way just in time to avoid being struck.

At downtown intersections, through residential sections and along heavily traveled arterial highways not a single unusual act of

See SAFETY, Page 5, Column 5.

Nazi Diplomat
Shot in Paris
By Exile, 17Youth Held by French
Hitler-Rushes Doctors
Victim's Condition Bad

By the Associated Press.

Paris, Nov. 7.—A 17-year-old Polish Jewish refugee from Germany attempted to assassinate Ernst von Rath, secretary of the German embassy, today because, he said, he wanted to avenge Polish Jews driven out of Germany.

Von Rath, shot twice by the youth in his embassy office, lay in a critical condition at a hospital tonight. A bullet was removed from his right shoulder but another remained lodged in his abdomen.

Reichsfuehrer Hitler ordered his personal physician, Dr. Brandt, and the head of the Munich University surgical clinic, Dr. Georg Magnus, to Paris to attend the wounded man. Hitler also kept in close touch by telephone with von Rath's condition.

His assailant gave the name of Herschel Grynszpan, formerly of Hannover, Germany. Embassy charges seized him after the shooting and turned him over to French police.

A German embassy spokesman charged the youth was "excited by Jews in France" but Grynszpan insisted he acted alone.

Detectives said they learned the Grynszpan family, including the father, mother, sisters and brothers, had come to France when they were driven from Germany but were unable to find a home.

The authorities on August 15 refused to renew Herschel's permit to live in this country. He told police he left the home of an uncle residing

See SHOOTING, Page 7, Column 1.

King to Enter
U. S. June 20,
British HearAnnouncement Near Windsors Delay Trip
Seek Title for Her Reconciliation Hinted

By the United Press.

London, Nov. 7.—King George VI and Queen Elizabeth have decided definitely to visit the United States after their Canadian tour next year and will arrive on American soil about June 20, it was revealed tonight on unimpeachable authority.

The King himself will announce, perhaps within two or three days, that he has accepted President Roosevelt's invitation to visit the United States.

Buckingham Palace circles said that in view of the royal visit, the Duke and Duchess of Windsor have postponed at least until 1940 their plan to visit America next spring.

The Duke himself was said to have decided upon the postponement because he is anxious to placate the royal family and British government and do nothing which might provide an embarrassing contrast to the royal visit.

Edward is particularly anxious that the title, "Her Royal Highness," be granted to his American-born duchess and hopes to return with her to England in the near future.

Step to Reconciliation

Disclosure of the royal family's decision coincided with Buckingham Palace reports the Duke and Duchess of Gloucester will visit the United States on Christmas Day. The Duke of Gloucester is a younger brother of the Duke of Windsor.

The reports stirred speculation the Windsors might return to England on a visit next year, perhaps while the King and Queen are in North America.

The meeting between the royal brothers and their wives would mark the first actual step toward restoration of normal relations between the royal family and the Windsors since Edward abdicated the throne on December 11, 1936, to marry. "The woman I love."

First Meeting of Duchesses

The Duchess of Gloucester, the former Lady Alice Montagu-Poultas-Scott, would be the first woman member of the royal family to meet the former Wallis Warfield Simpson, of Baltimore, since her marriage to Edward on June 3, 1937.

It also will be the first time the Duke of Gloucester, six years younger than Edward, has seen his brother since the abdication.

The Duke of Kent, soon to go to Australia as governor, visited Edward in Austria last year.

See NICE, Page 4, Column 1.

Odds on Lehman
Drop to 5-11 as
G.O.P. Hopes Rise

New York, Nov. 7.—A deluge of Dewey money, in the wake of newspaper polls giving the Republican nominee a narrow edge for governorship, sent Lehman odds down to 5 to 11 today, said Jack Doyle, Broadway betting commissioner.

Three weeks ago, odds on Lehman opened at 2 to 7 (or 7 to 2 against Dewey). After a week, rise of Republican hopes forced the odds down. "However," said Doyle, "the big operators are still betting on Lehman."

"This has been the biggest gubernatorial betting election we have ever seen," added the man who has been holding stakes since the Bryan-McKinley campaign in 1896.

77-Degree Heat
Sets D. C. Record,
But Cold's Coming

A hot sun yesterday at 3 p. m. sent the mercury up to 77, a new Washington record for November 7. The mark fell below the record for the month by only 5 degrees, but was more than 30 degrees above normal for this time of year.

The Weather Bureau announced rain would begin this afternoon and continue tonight.

By tomorrow the mercury may be skidding down toward the freezing point, for a low pressure area in the West is sending "much colder" weather to the District.

Change in Weather
Insures Record VoteMaryland Race Either Man's Jackson Swings to O'Connor
Mrs. Bauernschmidt Backs Nice
Many Split Ballots Foreseen

By Edward T. Folliard

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 7.—A Maryland gubernatorial campaign that has the experts baffled because of its subterfuge angles ended in a torrent of oratory tonight, as the voters prepared to go to the polls tomorrow to choose between Gov. Harry W. Nice, 61-year-old Republican, and Attorney General Herbert R. O'Connor, 42-year-old Democrat.

Far from the oratory, working quietly, was a man who, in the end, may be credited with the final outcome no matter which way it goes.

Bitterness Overlooked

This was Mayor Howard W. Jackson who, at the eleventh hour, began telephoning his political lieutenants here and in the counties to tell them to "go down the line for O'Connor." Jackson was beaten by O'Connor in the Democratic primary, and the resulting bitterness has been counted on by the Republicans to aid Nice mightily.

Gov. Nice took the air tonight to denounce what he said was an insinuation by a Baltimore newspaper that he had indulged in a "whispering campaign" against O'Connor. He said such an insinuation was a "mis-truth," and he reiterated that he himself was the victim of scurrilous attacks.

At Annapolis O'Connor assailed Nice's record and said:

"Let me say in language too plain to be misunderstood, that I will be Governor of all of the people of Maryland and neither race, color nor creed will interfere with my determination to serve the entire citizenship of Maryland with equal justice to all. In pursuing this course I will be continuing the course I have pursued in public life during the past 18 years."

Nice Offered 12,000 Votes

For thousands of Baltimore voters the highlight of the evening was the radio talk of Mrs. Marie Bauernschmidt, who, on the eve of every election, "speaks her mind." Elderly widow of a wealthy brewer, Mrs. Bauernschmidt is a power in Baltimore politics, and has been ever since the time, many years ago, she rescued the public schools from the politicians and grafters. A public-spirited woman who has never held office, but who has made and broken many politicians, she is credited with being able to swing at least 12,000 votes.

For weeks the big question has been, "Who will Mrs. B. favor?" She gave the answer tonight and the answer was Gov. Nice.

At the outset she said that the Democratic primary had been a "stench and a disgrace," and she denounced the racial and religious prejudice that had marked the campaign.

O'Connor Answers Her

She said she had once favored O'Connor, but turned against him when he and National Committee member Howard Bruce refused to dump overboard a certain ward boss whom she named. In explaining her action further, she said that Baltimore had become a haven for big-shot criminals.

Trailing Mrs. B. to the microphone, O'Connor read the record on her statement after statement, in which previously she had excoriated Gov. Nice and had said that

See NICE, Page 4, Column 1.

See ROOSEVELT, Page 16, Col. 4.

Churchmen Decry Md. Lottery
Proposal, Hail Marriage Curb

Two Maryland church groups yesterday urged defeat of the amendment to legalize lotteries in the State election, today and at the same time called for approval of the law requiring a 48-hour waiting period for marriage license applicants.

The board of directors of the Council of Churches and Christian Education, representing Protestant churches of Maryland and Delaware, and the Washington Methodist Episcopal Preachers' Meeting, representing Maryland and the District, denounced legalized lotteries as "morally and economically vicious, antisocial, and spiritually destructive."

Attacking the lottery amendment, Bishop Edwin Hughes, in an open letter, declared:

"Surely Maryland does not need to surrender her dignity and mor-

Republicans Expect New Trend
Hopes Don't Include 'Sweep'
Pennsylvania Seat of Doubt
Brown Concedes 25 House Seats

By Robert C. Albright.

A jury box of 40,000,000 Americans prepared to write a verdict today as the campaign case of two parties closed last night in a final barrage of forecasts and oratory.

Control of a new Congress and the shape of Government policies for two years to come will turn on their ballots.

Governors in 32 States and State administrations, necessary for any significant Presidential try in 1940, will rise or fall with their votes.

Presidential candidates in both parties will be made or broken. Heartened in their most important struggle for power since 1830, Republicans foresaw the first upward swing in their orbit in eight years but forecast no sweep. Democrats generally conceded some off-year loss of strength, but refused to admit a Republican trend.

Western blizzards that threatened to cut voting subdued, and the forecast predicted "very good weather" for the Pacific Coast and Rocky Mountain States. Rain and snow was indicated in several Illinois and Michigan sections, and scattered showers were predicted in the South. The outlook through much of the East Atlantic States was for increasing cloudiness in the morning, followed by rain and colder in the afternoon.

The generally favorable weather indications gave promise of a huge outpouring of ballots.

Farle. Calls for Faith

Last Republican shaft before early opening of the polls came from National Committee Chairman John D. M. Hamilton. In telegrams to all Republican State chairmen he urged that "all party workers and candidates keep close watch for evidence of coercion of relief beneficiaries" and threatened a "sweeping investigation" in the next Congress.

Hamilton charged "it is perfectly obvious to anyone who has watched closely the current campaign, that the New Deal's chief reliance is the belief that it can count on relief workers as a bloc supporting the New Deal candidates."

National Democratic Committee Chairman James A. Farley in a final radio blast charged New Deal opponents are trying to sabotage measures which have given the "ordinary citizen a decent break in our economic system."

Farley called on voters to "administer a fitting rebuke and reaffirm the Nation's faith in President Roosevelt." He declared more is at stake than "the mere political fate" of some members of Congress, and predicted: "President Roosevelt will be endorsed again."

Chairman Prentiss M. Brown, of the Democratic senatorial committee, met Republican forecasts of substantial gains in the Senate with a denial that the Democratic cycle is on the downgrade.

"Time to Take Stock"

"While there may be a change here and there, I am confident that the Democratic strength will not be lessened," said Brown. "Reports to me from the various States indicate a very strong trend to our candidates in the States heretofore considered doubtful or close."

Republicans put a non-professional politician in the piling box to hurl the National network broadly generally delivered by party leaders. It was Walter Johnson, Washington's retired baseball idol, who is running for a Montgomery County (Md.) office.

Hamilton's attack on political use of relief funds came as the Senate Campaign Expenditures Committee completed its pre-election

See POLITICS, Page 4, Column 2.

Today's Index

Page
8	About the Showshops
13	Alice Hughes
13	Amusements
13	Barnet Nover
11	Classified Advertisements
24, 25, 26	Comics
27	Crossword Puzzle
21	Death Notices
24	Editorials
16	Financial
21, 22, 23	Ida Jean Kain
13	In Hollywood
11	Mark Sullivan
17	Over the Coffee
11	Pegler
13	Pictures
21	Radio
15	Society
15	Sports
11	The Federal Diary
11	The Post Impressionist
10	Woman's Page
21	Walter Lippmann

G. M. C. Sued For $170,000 In Loss of Job

Texan Charges Slander Blacklisting Basis of Plea Plaintiff Was Employee

General Motors Corporation was sued for $170,000 in District Court yesterday by George Smythe, of Houston, Tex., who claimed the motor firm "got his job" and slandered him before the Federal Trade Commission.

The action was believed the first effort to enforce in the District Court the common law penalties for "blacklisting." Robert A. Faulkner, D. Heywood Hardy and Neil Burkshaw drafted the complaint.

Smythe said he was parts department manager for Southern Chevrolet Co., Houston, when the FTC summoned him to a hearing August 27, 1937, on trade practices of General Motors Sales Corporation, which also he named a defendant.

Smythe's complaint said his appearance at the hearing "excited the animosity" of the defendants and they caused him to be discharged. He listed Texas firms which later refused him employment. This he blamed on the defendants and added $100,000 actual and $70,000 punitive damages.

Later, the complaint said, Smythe was a witness in Washington before FTC Examiner John Horner, and Everett F. Hays, FTC counsel, placed in evidence some papers he got from Smythe.

"He stole them," Smythe claims Albert M. Levert, of New York, a General Motors company lawyer, exclaimed. "He purloined those things from the Southern Chevrolet company. It is their property."

Antitrust Jury Here Studies Files Of 2 Hospitals

The extraordinary grand jury investigating the American Medical Association and the District Medical Society opened its fourth week yesterday with an all-day study of records of two District hospitals accused by Group Health Association, Inc., of excluding its patients.

Dr. Freeman J. Eisman, superintendent of Garfield Hospital, and Col. P. M. Ashburn, superintendent of Columbia Hospital, produced the files and testified a few minutes each.

McNinch Confers With Radio Men On Use of 'Flash'

While other members of the Federal Communications Commission registered either amusement or resentment, Chairman Frank R. McNinch yesterday conferred with heads of the three principal radio networks regarding the use of the terms "flash" and "bulletin" in dramatic broadcasts.

Rail Management And Labor Study Relief Legislation

Representatives of rail management and labor, three of each selected by President Roosevelt, sat down at a conference table once more yesterday to tackle the job of drafting a legislative program of rehabilitation and relief for the Nation's ailing railroads.

Gray and E. E. Norris, president of the Southern Railway, predicted the group would complete its work before the new Congress convenes in January, but Harrison was not so optimistic.

Army, Navy Nurses Unveil Memorial Today

A memorial in honor of the Army and Navy nurses buried in Arlington Cemetery will be unveiled there at 3 p. m. today.

The memorial is being presented by the Army Nurse Corps and the Navy Nurse Corps, and a member of each will take part in the unveiling. Maj. Gen. Charles R. Reynolds, U. S. Army surgeon general, will speak.

SPECIAL NOTICES

ITALIAN FRENCH
ARE EAST AT SEATTLE
3115 COMM. AVE. NATIONAL 9776

BOYD HELPS YOU
...to make Good
For BOYD gives you that TRAINING that MEASURES UP TO THE HIGHEST STANDARDS in Secretarial Work and in ACCOUNTANCY. BOYD is famous for its GOOD Training. Graduates secure. Inquire BOYD SCHOOL, 1233 P. St. N.W. 1934.

Grin and Bear It

By Lichty

"If Calvin had his way we'd have waited till he knew what the Administration was going to do!"

Government workers can keep informed on the developments that affect them socially and officially by reading Scott Hart's "Federal Diary."

The Political Arena

O'Hara May Hold Balance in R. I. Battle 7 States Likely to Cast Half of Day's Votes

Providence, R. I. (P)—Rhode Island's candidates for State and National office battled all the way down the home stretch for the voters at today's election.

Highlight is the Governorship battle, although two Congressional seats, now occupied by Democrats, also are at stake.

Gov. Robert E. Quinn (Democrat), seeks re-election, and against him are arrayed Former State Senator William H. Vanderbil, (Republican), son of Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, who perished on the Lusitania in 1915, and Walter E. O'Hara, former turkman.

O'Hara's efforts to operate the Narragansett track were defeated by Gov. Quinn by calling out the State militia and political observers believe the result of tomorrow's gubernatorial election might hinge on the number of votes O'Hara may be able to garner.

Citizens of seven States may do most of the voting in today's election. A survey showed yesterday that about 2,000,000 votes, or 10 percent of the indicated total of 20,000,000 might be cast in New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Ohio, California, New Jersey and Michigan.

Polls in Rhode Island—the smallest State—will be open longer than any others in tomorrow's election.

The voting in Rhode Island will start early in the morning and will continue in some precincts until 11 p. m. Eastern standard time, although a few boxes will be closed at 4 p. m.

Polls in Oregon and Washington will close at the same moment as those in Rhode Island, although their Pacific Coast closing time will be only 8 p. m. The shortest voting period will be in the rural Georgia precincts where the polls close at 4 p. m. E. S. T.

Voters in six States will decide election proposals today: California—The "$30-Every Thursday" plan of scrip payments.

Oregon—A referendum on asking the State to adopt the Townsend plan.

Colorado—Return of pension payment control to the Legislature by knocking a $45-a-month plan out of the State constitution.

North Dakota—$40 monthly payments.

Missouri—Reduction of minimum pension from $7 to $5 years and provision for liberal payments to all above that age.

New York—Authorization for use of State funds for pension (and unemployment) insurance.

Atlanta, Nov. 7.—(P)—Election day in the deep South tomorrow will be largely a matter of looking to the newspapers to learn how the battle is going elsewhere but hopeful Republicans buck dominant Democrats in border state contests.

This section settled the bulk of its ballot business in Democratic primaries, and widespread rains were expected to reduce still further the usual handful of conscientious voters in "off-year" general elections.

The furore raised by President Roosevelt's unsuccessful attempts to unseat "conservative" Democratic senators in Maryland, South Carolina and Georgia died away with the primaries and left the party apparently united against whatever opposition it faces tomorrow. So, too, in Kentucky, where the President intervened successfully in behalf of Senator Barkley.

Window Rock, Ariz., Nov. 7 (P)—The Navajo Indians will install a new tribal council tomorrow, following an election marking the first use of modern balloting methods in reservation history.

The council was chosen by casting colored ballots, a procedure was adopted because the Navajo has no alphabet, and each candidate had to be designated by a color.

Twenty-one women candidates in 11 States will hear the verdict of the voters on their bids for seats in the National Congress.

Six are seeking to retain seats they now hold, they being Representative Mary T. Norton, Democrat, of New Jersey; Senator Hattie W. Caraway, Democrat, of Arkansas; Representative Caroline O'Day, Democrat, of New York; Representative Edith Nourse Rogers, Republican, of Massachusetts; Representative Virginia E. Jenckes, Democrat, of Indiana; and Representative N. Wood Honeyman, Democrat, of Oregon.

Democratic women making first bids for congressional seats are: Mrs. Ruth Hollingshead, of Albion, Iowa; Mrs. Elsie Stanton, Wellston, Ohio; Mrs. C. Dorthea Greene, Schenectady, N. Y.; and Mrs. Virginia Spencer, Croghan, N. Y.

Republican women first bidders are: Helen Z. M. Rodgers, New York City; Rena E. Pikel, Chicago; Jessie Sumner, Milledgeville, Ga.; Dorothy Bellanca, Brooklyn, Ill.; Dorothy Bellanca, Brooklyn, Ill.; and Mrs. George B. Simmons, Marshall, Mo.

Communist candidate is Nora Conklin, of Sacramento, Calif. Winifred Wyal and Mary Fox, of New York City's 19th and 12th districts, respectively, are Socialist candidates. Oklahoma presents three Prohibitionists, Lizzie Varvil, Oklahoma City; Martha Morrison, Cleveland, and Margaret E. W. Austin, of Duncan.

Friends of Representative John J. O'Connor (Democrat), New York, chairman of the powerful House Rules Committee, were awakened in the small hours yesterday morning by "two-star emergency" telegrams.

The messages, sent the day before election, read: "As the campaign for the re-election of Congressman John O'Connor comes to a close we find that our funds are inadequate. This is an emergency appeal. We need your financial help now to win this fight. Please send your check by return messenger. Thank you."

O'Connor, who lost in the September Democratic primaries to New Dealer James H. Fay, won the Republican primary, and is now campaigning as an Andrew Jackson Democrat.

A James F. Dulligan at the address given in New York, said last night the telegrams were sent only to persons friends of O'Connor, but the Washington recipient denied ever having met O'Connor, and said his only contact had been a letter to the rules chairman on a small conservation project bill.

Friends of Representative John J. O'Connor (Democrat), New York, chairman of the powerful House Rules Committee, were awakened in the small hours yesterday morning by "two-star emergency" telegrams.

The messages, sent the day before election, read: "As the campaign for the re-election of Congressman John O'Connor comes to a close we find that our funds are inadequate. This is an emergency appeal. We need your financial help now to win this fight. Please send your check by return messenger. Thank you."

O'Connor, who lost in the September Democratic primaries to New Dealer James H. Fay, won the Republican primary, and is now campaigning as an Andrew Jackson Democrat.

A James F. Dulligan at the address given in New York, said last night the telegrams were sent only to persons friends of O'Connor, but the Washington recipient denied ever having met O'Connor, and said his only contact had been a letter to the rules chairman on a small conservation project bill.

Friends of Representative John J. O'Connor (Democrat), New York, chairman of the powerful House Rules Committee, were awakened in the small hours yesterday morning by "two-star emergency" telegrams.

The messages, sent the day before election, read: "As the campaign for the re-election of Congressman John O'Connor comes to a close we find that our funds are inadequate. This is an emergency appeal. We need your financial help now to win this fight. Please send your check by return messenger. Thank you."

O'Connor, who lost in the September Democratic primaries to New Dealer James H. Fay, won the Republican primary, and is now campaigning as an Andrew Jackson Democrat.

A James F. Dulligan at the address given in New York, said last night the telegrams were sent only to persons friends of O'Connor, but the Washington recipient denied ever having met O'Connor, and said his only contact had been a letter to the rules chairman on a small conservation project bill.

Friends of Representative John J. O'Connor (Democrat), New York, chairman of the powerful House Rules Committee, were awakened in the small hours yesterday morning by "two-star emergency" telegrams.

The messages, sent the day before election, read: "As the campaign for the re-election of Congressman John O'Connor comes to a close we find that our funds are inadequate. This is an emergency appeal. We need your financial help now to win this fight. Please send your check by return messenger. Thank you."

O'Connor, who lost in the September Democratic primaries to New Dealer James H. Fay, won the Republican primary, and is now campaigning as an Andrew Jackson Democrat.

A James F. Dulligan at the address given in New York, said last night the telegrams were sent only to persons friends of O'Connor, but the Washington recipient denied ever having met O'Connor, and said his only contact had been a letter to the rules chairman on a small conservation project bill.

Friends of Representative John J. O'Connor (Democrat), New York, chairman of the powerful House Rules Committee, were awakened in the small hours yesterday morning by "two-star emergency" telegrams.

The messages, sent the day before election, read: "As the campaign for the re-election of Congressman John O'Connor comes to a close we find that our funds are inadequate. This is an emergency appeal. We need your financial help now to win this fight. Please send your check by return messenger. Thank you."

O'Connor, who lost in the September Democratic primaries to New Dealer James H. Fay, won the Republican primary, and is now campaigning as an Andrew Jackson Democrat.

U. S. to Drop Ford, Chrysler Antitrust Suits

Two to Change Tactics On Auto Financing General Motors Balks

The Department of Justice acted formally to drop its antitrust cases against the Ford and Chrysler motor companies yesterday, but declared it would prosecute General Motors "vigorously."

The department said a consent decree, by which Ford and Chrysler agreed to abandon certain "coercive" practices in connection with automobile financing, was being submitted for the approval of a Federal district court at South Bend, Ind. General Motors did not propose an "acceptable" program for a consent decree, officials said.

The Government, charging that all three firms forced dealers to finance cars through finance companies affiliated with the automobile manufacturers, had previously obtained indictments against the firms at South Bend.

Under the consent decree, officials said, Ford and Chrysler are to refrain from such practices as threatening cancellation of dealers' franchises in order to give competitive advantages to favored finance companies.

Two voluntary restrictions proposed by the defendants were hailed by the Justice Department as a protection to "improvident persons of low income" and a means of alleviating hardships caused by high-powered salesmanship.

One of these restrictions dealt with methods of collecting money for cars sold. Among other things, this provision outlaws assignments on low-priced pleasure cars, declares that wages shall not be garnished in an effort to collect on such cars, and that a deficiency judgment shall not be taken in the case of a man who requires his car for a livelihood and has paid 50 per cent of the price.

The other restriction deals with advertising. The Chrysler Co., if it advertises any finance company, will advertise all such companies whose services "conform to the plan of financing, including today's efficient in distributing the maximum number of automobiles."

The Ford decree is similar, but provides that Ford shall not advertise any particular finance company.

Officials announced that they would not hold Ford and Chrysler to the consent decrees if the Government's case against General Motors proved unsuccessful.

General Motors Votes 75 Cents On Common

New York, Nov. 7.—Directors of General Motors Corporation today voted a dividend of 75 cents a share on common stock, payable December 12 to holders of record November 17.

In the preceding three quarters a payment of 25 cents a common dividend was made. Common dividends for 1938, including today's declarations, totaled $1.50 a share, against $3.75 a share for the full year 1937.

The usual dividend of $1.25 a share on the $5 cumulative no par preferred stock was also voted, payable February 1 to holders of record January 9.

Democratic women making first bids for congressional seats are: Mrs. Ruth Hollingshead, of Albion, Iowa; Mrs. Elsie Stanton, Wellston, Ohio; Mrs. C. Dorthea Greene, Schenectady, N. Y.; and Mrs. Virginia Spencer, Croghan, N. Y.

Republican women first bidders are: Helen Z. M. Rodgers, New York City; Rena E. Pikel, Chicago; Jessie Sumner, Milledgeville, Ga.; Dorothy Bellanca, Brooklyn, Ill.; Dorothy Bellanca, Brooklyn, Ill.; and Mrs. George B. Simmons, Marshall, Mo.

Communist candidate is Nora Conklin, of Sacramento, Calif. Winifred Wyal and Mary Fox, of New York City's 19th and 12th districts, respectively, are Socialist candidates. Oklahoma presents three Prohibitionists, Lizzie Varvil, Oklahoma City; Martha Morrison, Cleveland, and Margaret E. W. Austin, of Duncan.

Friends of Representative John J. O'Connor (Democrat), New York, chairman of the powerful House Rules Committee, were awakened in the small hours yesterday morning by "two-star emergency" telegrams.

The messages, sent the day before election, read: "As the campaign for the re-election of Congressman John O'Connor comes to a close we find that our funds are inadequate. This is an emergency appeal. We need your financial help now to win this fight. Please send your check by return messenger. Thank you."

O'Connor, who lost in the September Democratic primaries to New Dealer James H. Fay, won the Republican primary, and is now campaigning as an Andrew Jackson Democrat.

A James F. Dulligan at the address given in New York, said last night the telegrams were sent only to persons friends of O'Connor, but the Washington recipient denied ever having met O'Connor, and said his only contact had been a letter to the rules chairman on a small conservation project bill.

Friends of Representative John J. O'Connor (Democrat), New York, chairman of the powerful House Rules Committee, were awakened in the small hours yesterday morning by "two-star emergency" telegrams.

The messages, sent the day before election, read: "As the campaign for the re-election of Congressman John O'Connor comes to a close we find that our funds are inadequate. This is an emergency appeal. We need your financial help now to win this fight. Please send your check by return messenger. Thank you."

O'Connor, who lost in the September Democratic primaries to New Dealer James H. Fay, won the Republican primary, and is now campaigning as an Andrew Jackson Democrat.

A James F. Dulligan at the address given in New York, said last night the telegrams were sent only to persons friends of O'Connor, but the Washington recipient denied ever having met O'Connor, and said his only contact had been a letter to the rules chairman on a small conservation project bill.

Friends of Representative John J. O'Connor (Democrat), New York, chairman of the powerful House Rules Committee, were awakened in the small hours yesterday morning by "two-star emergency" telegrams.

The messages, sent the day before election, read: "As the campaign for the re-election of Congressman John O'Connor comes to a close we find that our funds are inadequate. This is an emergency appeal. We need your financial help now to win this fight. Please send your check by return messenger. Thank you."

O'Connor, who lost in the September Democratic primaries to New Dealer James H. Fay, won the Republican primary, and is now campaigning as an Andrew Jackson Democrat.

A James F. Dulligan at the address given in New York, said last night the telegrams were sent only to persons friends of O'Connor, but the Washington recipient denied ever having met O'Connor, and said his only contact had been a letter to the rules chairman on a small conservation project bill.

Friends of Representative John J. O'Connor (Democrat), New York, chairman of the powerful House Rules Committee, were awakened in the small hours yesterday morning by "two-star emergency" telegrams.

The messages, sent the day before election, read: "As the campaign for the re-election of Congressman John O'Connor comes to a close we find that our funds are inadequate. This is an emergency appeal. We need your financial help now to win this fight. Please send your check by return messenger. Thank you."

O'Connor, who lost in the September Democratic primaries to New Dealer James H. Fay, won the Republican primary, and is now campaigning as an Andrew Jackson Democrat.

Court Enjoins Hague Ban on C. I. O. Talks

Liberties Union Included 'War on Reds' Curbed Jersey City Appeals

Newark, N. J., Nov. 7.—Federal Judge William Clark signed an injunction today ordering Jersey City officials to grant to the C. I. O. and allied groups the right to speak in public streets unless a "deliberate policy of forbidding meetings of any kind on any of the public streets" was adopted and enforced.

The formal decree put into effect his 15,000 word decision filed October 27 in the injunction suit of the C. I. O., American Civil Liberties Union and others against Mayor Frank Hague and fellow officials. Jersey City filed notice of an appeal.

The appeal will be taken to the Third United States Circuit Court in Philadelphia, of which Clark now is a member, and a stay of execution of the injunction will be asked. Clark was elevated to the higher court during the trial of the action arising from Hague's "war on reds and radicals."

One of these restrictions dealt with methods of collecting money for cars sold. Among other things, this provision outlaws assignments on low-priced pleasure cars, declares that wages shall not be garnished in an effort to collect on such cars, and that a deficiency judgment shall not be taken in the case of a man who requires his car for a livelihood and has paid 50 per cent of the price.

The other restriction deals with advertising. The Chrysler Co., if it advertises any finance company, will advertise all such companies whose services "conform to the plan of financing, including today's efficient in distributing the maximum number of automobiles."

The Ford decree is similar, but provides that Ford shall not advertise any particular finance company.

Officials announced that they would not hold Ford and Chrysler to the consent decrees if the Government's case against General Motors proved unsuccessful.

General Motors Votes 75 Cents On Common

New York, Nov. 7.—Directors of General Motors Corporation today voted a dividend of 75 cents a share on common stock, payable December 12 to holders of record November 17.

In the preceding three quarters a payment of 25 cents a common dividend was made. Common dividends for 1938, including today's declarations, totaled $1.50 a share, against $3.75 a share for the full year 1937.

The usual dividend of $1.25 a share on the $5 cumulative no par preferred stock was also voted, payable February 1 to holders of record January 9.

Democratic women making first bids for congressional seats are: Mrs. Ruth Hollingshead, of Albion, Iowa; Mrs. Elsie Stanton, Wellston, Ohio; Mrs. C. Dorthea Greene, Schenectady, N. Y.; and Mrs. Virginia Spencer, Croghan, N. Y.

Republican women first bidders are: Helen Z. M. Rodgers, New York City; Rena E. Pikel, Chicago; Jessie Sumner, Milledgeville, Ga.; Dorothy Bellanca, Brooklyn, Ill.; Dorothy Bellanca, Brooklyn, Ill.; and Mrs. George B. Simmons, Marshall, Mo.

Communist candidate is Nora Conklin, of Sacramento, Calif. Winifred Wyal and Mary Fox, of New York City's 19th and 12th districts, respectively, are Socialist candidates. Oklahoma presents three Prohibitionists, Lizzie Varvil, Oklahoma City; Martha Morrison, Cleveland, and Margaret E. W. Austin, of Duncan.

Friends of Representative John J. O'Connor (Democrat), New York, chairman of the powerful House Rules Committee, were awakened in the small hours yesterday morning by "two-star emergency" telegrams.

The messages, sent the day before election, read: "As the campaign for the re-election of Congressman John O'Connor comes to a close we find that our funds are inadequate. This is an emergency appeal. We need your financial help now to win this fight. Please send your check by return messenger. Thank you."

O'Connor, who lost in the September Democratic primaries to New Dealer James H. Fay, won the Republican primary, and is now campaigning as an Andrew Jackson Democrat.

A James F. Dulligan at the address given in New York, said last night the telegrams were sent only to persons friends of O'Connor, but the Washington recipient denied ever having met O'Connor, and said his only contact had been a letter to the rules chairman on a small conservation project bill.

Friends of Representative John J. O'Connor (Democrat), New York, chairman of the powerful House Rules Committee, were awakened in the small hours yesterday morning by "two-star emergency" telegrams.

The messages, sent the day before election, read: "As the campaign for the re-election of Congressman John O'Connor comes to a close we find that our funds are inadequate. This is an emergency appeal. We need your financial help now to win this fight. Please send your check by return messenger. Thank you."

O'Connor, who lost in the September Democratic primaries to New Dealer James H. Fay, won the Republican primary, and is now campaigning as an Andrew Jackson Democrat.

A James F. Dulligan at the address given in New York, said last night the telegrams were sent only to persons friends of O'Connor, but the Washington recipient denied ever having met O'Connor, and said his only contact had been a letter to the rules chairman on a small conservation project bill.

Friends of Representative John J. O'Connor (Democrat), New York, chairman of the powerful House Rules Committee, were awakened in the small hours yesterday morning by "two-star emergency" telegrams.

The messages, sent the day before election, read: "As the campaign for the re-election of Congressman John O'Connor comes to a close we find that our funds are inadequate. This is an emergency appeal. We need your financial help now to win this fight. Please send your check by return messenger. Thank you."

O'Connor, who lost in the September Democratic primaries to New Dealer James H. Fay, won the Republican primary, and is now campaigning as an Andrew Jackson Democrat.

A James F. Dulligan at the address given in New York, said last night the telegrams were sent only to persons friends of O'Connor, but the Washington recipient denied ever having met O'Connor, and said his only contact had been a letter to the rules chairman on a small conservation project bill.

Friends of Representative John J. O'Connor (Democrat), New York, chairman of the powerful House Rules Committee, were awakened in the small hours yesterday morning by "two-star emergency" telegrams.

The messages, sent the day before election, read: "As the campaign for the re-election of Congressman John O'Connor comes to a close we find that our funds are inadequate. This is an emergency appeal. We need your financial help now to win this fight. Please send your check by return messenger. Thank you."

O'Connor, who lost in the September Democratic primaries to New Dealer James H. Fay, won the Republican primary, and is now campaigning as an Andrew Jackson Democrat.

A James F. Dulligan at the address given in New York, said last night the telegrams were sent only to persons friends of O'Connor, but the Washington recipient denied ever having met O'Connor, and said his only contact had been a letter to the rules chairman on a small conservation project bill.

Friends of Representative John J. O'Connor (Democrat), New York, chairman of the powerful House Rules Committee, were awakened in the small hours yesterday morning by "two-star emergency" telegrams.

Black Rebukes Supreme Court for Invading State Legislative Rights, Causing Litigation

Expense Held 'Unfair' Case Pertains to Florida Gold Clause Defended

By the United Press. Associate Supreme Court Justice Hugo L. Black yesterday rebuked the high tribunal for invading the rights of State Legislatures and thus involving the State in expensive and long litigation.

The dissent came on the first formal opinion day of the court's 1938-39 term. It involved a challenge of a Florida law requiring that all containers of citrus products from that State be embossed with the designation "Florida."

Black also dissented in another case. In a minority opinion he disapproved the majority's action in dismissing a $188,106 deficiency assessment against the estate of the late Edwin B. Hendrie, of Denver. He described the case as an example of "tax evasion" which Congress has sought to prevent by legislative means.

The citrus case arose last year when packers challenged constitutionality of the law which Florida enacted to prevent the shipping of fruits, grown in other States, into Florida and packing them in containers labeled so as to indicate Florida origin.

A three-judge Federal district court dismissed the challenge, but on an appeal by the packers, the Supreme Court ordered the lower tribunal to consider the case further. Asserting that his colleagues erred, Black said:

"The cause is remanded for the court below to determine whether the legislative requirements that cans and labels be truthfully marked is arbitrary, unreasonable, capricious, unjust or harsh."

"This makes it necessary for the court to weigh and pass upon the relative judgment of the one legislator who voted against the law, as contrasted with the 94 legislators and the Governor who favored it."

Alternative Pointed Out. Pointing out that even after the lower court again passes upon the law's validity the case may once more be appealed to the high tribunal, Black said that "in the meantime, Florida is forced to litigate the validity of its newly enacted law."

"The important consequences of this remand raises far more than mere questions of procedure," he said. "Accordingly, it becomes increasingly important to protect State Governments from needless expensive burdens incident to Federal court injunctions issued on allegations that show no right to relief." He asserted that the principle embodied in the majority opinion apparently would not lead to "salutary results." If the complaint is to be considered, he added, the court should do so now and render a final decision.

Contention in Trust Case. In the Hendrie case, in which the $188,106 deficiency was assessed on the basis of an $827,000 trust fund established shortly before the Denver man's death, Black contended that Hendrie's purpose in establishing the trust fund was to provide the greatest possible estate for his heirs, and that the fund replaced a will.

In an otherwise uneventful session the court agreed to review a new phase of the Congressional resolution invalidating gold clauses in private obligations.

The review was sought by the Guaranty Trust Co. of New York, and involves a bond series of the St. Louis Southwestern Railway providing for a payment at face value in dollars, francs, pounds, guilders or marks. When the railroad went into reorganization three years ago, Guaranty, holder of the bonds as trustee, sued for payment of the issue at Amsterdam in Dutch guilders. The claim has been rejected in district and circuit court rulings on grounds that it violates the terms of the Congressional resolution.

Alumni Fellowship Picks A. J. Barrett As New President

McLean Heirs Disagree on Property Sale

Court Advice Sought
$2,000,000 Offered
Adm. Bristol Opposed

The American Security & Trust Co. yesterday asked District Court what to do about realty in the John R. McLean estate, which some of the heirs want to sell for $2,000,000 cash and others want to hold.

The trust firm is executor and trustee under the McLean will, handling the property the publisher left to Edward B. McLean for life. The court was told the Lafayette Building Corporation, of the Woodward Building, offered $2,000,000 cash for the property bounded by H street, I street, Vermont avenue and Fifteenth street—excepting the Shoreham Building at Fifteenth and H streets. This offer will expire at noon today.

Admiral Mark Bristol, representing E. B. McLean, who is a mental patient at the Sheppard and Enoch Pratt Hospital, Baltimore, obtained leave of Justice Lurhing to oppose the sale. He said the property was worth more and that no emergency existed to require sale of the property.

John R. McLean, Jr., adult son of E. B. McLean, approved the sale, saying that even if the property was worth $300,000 or $500,000 more it would be wise to sell for cash, because nobody could tell how deeply the new tax laws would cut into the profit from the higher price. Furthermore, he contended, a lowered demand for Government offices would impair the value of such buildings.

Ralph D. Quinter, guardian-at-law for Edward B. McLean, Jr., and Lucien H. Mercier, guardian-at-law for Evelyn Washington, McLean, said their clients, minor children of E. B. McLean, would leave it up to the court. Quinter and Mercier asked the court to approve their fees of $2,500 each for services for several years.

Justice Lurhing appointed Frank H. Myers guardian-at-law for E. B. McLean for this case. Myers may file his views today.

Couple and Child Disappear Off Coastwise Ship

Providence, R. I., Nov. 7.—Disappearance of a woman and possibly her husband and child from the steamer Comet of the Colonial Lines between New York and Providence last week-end was disclosed belatedly here tonight by police.

A stateroom reserved for Friday night's sailing from New York by a woman, giving the name of Mrs. Loretta Schaeffer, of Forest Hills, Long Island, was found empty when the boat reached here Saturday morning. However, stewards found baggage containing a woman's wearing apparel, man's pajamas and a baby's clothing in the room.

New York police, tracing the woman's movements, found she had rented a Forest Hills apartment last Friday, paying a deposit and saying she would return yesterday to pay the remainder and take possession. She gave her husband's name as Dr. William F. Schaeffer to the renting agent.

Veteran, 72, Sues To Divorce Girl He Won When Only 63

John Keller, 72-year-old veteran, of the United States Soldiers Home, finally decided yesterday that his romance with a pretty show girl in her middle twenties has wilted in the bud.

He was a strapping youngster of 63 when he went sightseeing on Broadway and met Lucy F. Keller—she was Lucy Divine, then, and she really was divine—in New York and, his complaint to District Court said, they got married there November 8, 1928.

But Keller, who helped win the Spanish-American war, battled for years afterward. In March, 1930, he lost Lucy. She left, he said, "without cause or justification."

He tried vainly to find her and start all over again, but since then he has made up his mind, he told the court, that "the marital status of the parties hereto is beyond hope of reconciliation."

So he's asking for an absolute divorce.

Night Club Head May Be 'Dumb,' but Judge Is Doubtful

"Unwilling to believe that you are so dumb that you could not get in touch with the court," Justice Proctor yesterday ordered Pete Macias, who runs the Heigh-Ho night club, to come back tomorrow with more explanations for failing to appear when called for jury duty.

Macias appeared yesterday after the marshal's office reported three summonses had failed to bring him. Macias denied he said he "couldn't be bothered." Deputy United States Marshal Thomas J. Kelly, who served the papers on Macias, but was out of town yesterday, will be asked his version of Macias' remarks tomorrow.

DEAF?

You'll Thrill at the Perfection of the New No. 42 GEM With Featherlike Earpieces That Fit snugly in the Ear So comfortable—weighs but a quarter ounce! Hardly noticeable, yet transmits the voice in clear, natural tones. Visit our Optical Dept. for a FREE DEMONSTRATION. A. KAHN INC. Arthur J. Sundlin, Pres. 935 F Street N.W.

Leibowitz Promises Insanity Defense For Irwin as Gideon Slaying Trial Opens

Sculptor Appears Calm
3 Jurors Selected
Court Adjourned

By the Associated Press.

New York, Nov. 7.—Although a lunacy commission has declared Robert Irwin sane, his counsel, Samuel S. Leibowitz, said today at the opening of the sculptor's murder trial he would prove Irwin was insane when the triple slayings of Beekman Hill were committed on Easter Sunday, 1937. Irwin is charged with first-degree murder, the mandatory penalty for which is death in the electric chair.

At the end of the day, when court adjourned until Thursday only three jurors had been selected. They were James H. Day, a clerk; Henry P. Andrews, a financial district security analyst, and Harry R. Held, Jr., a paint supplies manufacturer.

Leibowitz, who has saved 122 first-degree murder defendants from the electric chair, asked this question at one point of his examination:

"Will you resent Irwin because he is said to have killed, and undoubtedly did kill three persons? There will be no question of that. Everybody knows about this case."

The defense counsel mentioned all three of those allegedly slain by Irwin: Mrs. Mary Gedeon; her daughter, Veronica, a photographer; and Frank Byrnes, a lodger in their home. Irwin, however, is being tried only for Byrnes' death. He watched the day's proceedings apparently unconcerned.

In confessions after his arrest in Chicago, in June, 1937, Irwin said he killed the trio because they unwittingly had interfered with his original plan to kill Veronica's sister, Mrs. Ethel Kudner, whom he had loved. His love turned to hatred, he said, when she married.

Killing 'Justified,' Son Gets Insurance

Atlanta, Nov. 7 (AP).—The Georgia Court of Appeals upheld today an insurance payment to a son who killed his father, ruling the homicide justifiable.

The sovereign camp of the Woodmen of the World resisted payment of a $2,000 claim on the life of A. W. Everett, contending he was killed by his son, Warren Everett, who also was a beneficiary, and the agreement was voided when the insured was slain by a beneficiary.

The appellate court affirmed a superior court judgment, declaring the son killed his father to save the life of his mother, not to collect the insurance.

Robert Irwin (center), young sculptor, was handcuffed between two detectives when he arrived at court yesterday for his trial for the murder of Frank Byrnes. Irwin's facial expression was a slight smile. Byrnes was a roomer in the house of Veronica Gedeon, beautiful model, and her mother, for whose slaying Irwin also was indicted.

Colored Man Gets 2 Years, 30 Days in $2 Theft Attempt

His attempted larceny of less than $2 worth of butter, milk and cheese resulted in a 2-year-and-30-day jail sentence for Richard Little, colored, 30, of the 1200 block Potomac avenue southwest, yesterday.

He was given the stiff sentence by Police Court Judge Edward M. Curran when witnesses testified Little drew a knife on a milk-truck driver.

John C. Frederick, driver for Model Farms Dairy, said Little made the holdup attempt last April 1. He escaped at the time and was arrested later.

Snyder 'Balky' During Hearing

Los Angeles, Nov. 7 (AP).—Martin Snyder, former husband of Singer Ruth Etting, was supposed to give a deposition today but mostly he said, "I refuse to answer."

He went to the offices of Attorneys for Myrl Alderman, who is suing him for $250,000 damages on the claim Snyder shot him in the presence of Miss Etting, Alderman's friend, and Snyder's daughter.

To each question Snyder said, "Nothing—same as before," or "I refuse to answer."

U. S. to Search Youth Groups For Reds' Work

NYA Aide Assigned
No One Singled Out
General Inquiry Set

An investigation will be launched immediately to determine motives and susceptibility to outside influence and propaganda of nongovernmental youth groups which are led by young people.

The investigation will be sponsored by the American Youth Commission and will be directed by Richard R. Brown, former deputy executive director of the National Youth Administration. A formal statement declared:

"His study will include an attempt to interpret the motives and purposes of groups that are led by young people themselves. Mr. Brown will also study their democratic functioning relative to membership, leadership and programs."

A spokesman for the commission said that body is familiar with youth groups led by adults, such as the Boy Scouts, but no comprehensive data has been assembled concerning the groups of youth led by young people.

Most of these have their headquarters in Washington, New York or Chicago, it was stated, and the spokesman said it is generally believed that communistic influences are at play on some of the youth-led organizations.

The investigation, however, is not calculated to single out any particular group, it was stated, but is simply to assemble all possible data on the groups as a whole.

Independent Taximen Drop Attack on P.U.C.

The District Court was asked yesterday to declare a dead issue the attack of the Independent Taxi Owners Association, Inc., on the Public Utilities Commission requirement that taxicab fleets have 1,000 or more vehicles.

The association, the court was told, has 1,000 cabs and therefore is not affected.

Navy Reserves Assigned

Naval Reserve aviation cadets who have been ordered to new assignments, the Navy Department reported yesterday, are Frederick C. Bamman, Jr., assigned to Patrol Squadron 18, San Diego, Calif.; John O. Rush, Jr., to Patrol Squadron 14, U. S. S. Owl; and Max W. Stell, to Patrol Squadron 14, U. S. S. Owl.

Blindness Fighters Meet

The Board of Directors of the D. C. Society for the Prevention of Blindness will meet today in the society's office, Room 408, Mill Building.

Wage Complaints To Be Confidential, Andrews Declares

Complaints against employers for violating the minimum wage and maximum hour requirements of the labor standards act will be held confidential, the Wage-Hour Administration said yesterday.

Administrator Elmer F. Andrews has issued a form for the filing of complaints to provide field workers with information for investigations. Anonymous complaints, the administration said, will be accepted if the facts indicate a violation of the law.

Trust Research Talk Will Be Made at G. W.

Highlight of trust research week at George Washington University is scheduled for 5:10 p. m. today when Gilbert T. Stephenson, director of the trust research department of the graduate school of banking, Rutgers University, will speak on "Working Provisions of Wills and Trust Agreements."

Stephenson, who has visited England, France, Germany, Denmark and Scandinavian countries to study their trust systems, will speak at the university's law school.

have you ever worn a

BENCH MADE SUIT?

If not, you have missed a world of luxurious comfort and smartness. Skilled HART SCHAFFNER & MARX tailors have needed this custom quality garment into impeccable correctness. Rich custom-type woollens selected from the finest mills here and abroad. Only at Raleigh, of course.

BENCH MADE FIFTY.....$50

RALEIGH HABERDASHER
WASHINGTON'S FINEST MEN'S WEAR STORE 1310 F STREET

A luxury gasoline for those who want the best

FOR you who admire the silvery, streamlined beauty of an air liner... for you who appreciate a fine motor running perfectly in your own modern car... for you motorists who want the best.

The thrill of luxury-driving will be yours when you try SKY CHIEF gasoline. Your car, with surer response, will surge ahead more smoothly. You will appreciate the high anti-knock quality of this great new gasoline and you will have more efficient lubrication due to less crank case dilution.

SKY CHIEF costs no more than other premium gasolines. It takes its place beside its companion, the famous popular-priced Texaco Fire-Chief. You get both... at your Texaco Dealer's. We invite you to try it in your car.

FACTS (FOR THE TECHNICALLY MINDED)

VOLATILITY: SKY CHIEF combines an instant and sustained volatility which gives record quick-starting and acceleration... without tendency to vapor lock.

ANTI-KNOCK: Its extremely high anti-knock quality permits a higher peak of efficiency and power without knock or ping.

ECONOMY: Because you get more work from a given amount of gasoline, there's a distinct saving. SKY CHIEF shortens miles, stretches gallons, flattens bills.

TEXACO Sky Chief

for motorists who want the best...

Texaco Dealers invite you to tune in The Texaco Star Theatre—a full hour of all-star entertainment—Every Wednesday Night—Columbia Network—9:30 P.M. E.T., 8:30 C.S.T., 7:30 M.S.T., 6:30 P.S.T.

Lifetime FURNITURE

Tonight 7:30 to 8 P.M.
Station WRC, Listen to "The Home Towns"

44th Anniversary Savings

MANY UPHOLSTERED SUITES AND PIECES REDUCED

Included in the special Anniversary Reductions are many fine suites and single pieces of Karpen Guaranteed Upholstered Furniture. A few pieces are quoted below. See all today.

Brocade Mohair Suite... two Karpen pieces in a rich, deep blue; carved Honduras mahogany... $239

Leather Chair... excellent Karpen inner construction, mohair covering, luxurious, comfortable... $49.75

Down-Cushion Suite... mulberry damask with attractive figure; graceful, receding arms; two Karpen pieces... $265

Tapestry Suite... Karpen made with curled, black horsehair filling; sofa and arm chair carved mahogany receding arms... $239

Chippendale Type Chair... very comfortable and in a choice of several cut velvet upholsteries; solid Honduras mahogany... $39.75

Green Damask Suite... two Karpen pieces with reversible spring seat cushions; horsehair filling; special price... $198

Down-Cushion Suite... brown antique velvet; curled black horsehair filling; Chippendale influence; special... $139

Blue Velvet Suite... two Karpen hair-filled pieces; Honduras mahogany base rail and antique nail trim; two pieces... $207

Hundreds of Other Special Values

MAYER & CO.

Seventh Street Between D and E
HOUSE OF LIFETIME FURNITURE

Nice-O'Connor Chances Even In Maryland

Nice

Continued from Page 1.

any Democratic candidate was preferable to him.

O'Connor read from statements in which she had praised him, and he observed that her "flimsy excuse" for opposing him now would not bear scrutiny.

Counts on "Protest"

Gov. Nice, in denouncing intimations that he was promoting a whispering campaign, said that "Baltimore and every county has been flooded with scurrilous circulars intended to incite racial prejudice—and even riots—and these circulars have come from some of the factions supporting Mr. O'Connor."

Compares Statures

Remarkably on his own "corpulent stature," Gov. Nice likened his young opponent to Robert Taylor, the movie star, and drew a satirical parallel in which he pictured O'Connor "galloping through the darkness of night, over the good roads I have built, in search of his fiscal policy."

The polls open here at 6 a. m. and close at 8 p. m. In the counties the hours are 7 a. m. to 7 p. m.

The counting of the ballots in Baltimore ought to be practically finished by 11 p. m. so that, unless the race is extremely close, it ought to be known then which of the candidates will be able to sing "Maryland, My Maryland."

Odds of 6 to 5 on O'Connor to win were reported, but students of the Maryland political scene said that this should be an even-money bet if ever there was one.

Only one thing seemed certain in the Nice-O'Connor battle, and that is that it would bring out a record-breaking vote and also produce widespread ticket-splitting.

Gov. Nice, rotund and jovial at 61, who triumphed over Albert C. Ritchie in 1934 to become Maryland's third Republican Governor, is counting on Democratic votes to give him a second term. He has to count on them, because on the registration books the Democrats outnumber the Republicans, 2 to 1.

Attorney General O'Connor, the 42-year-old Democratic nominee, apparently must rely on a heavy majority in Baltimore to beat Nice. The registration here is 263,663 Democrats, 85,265 Republicans and 11,564 unaffiliated.

Reports were current this evening of a revolt against Nice among the colored voters, of whom there are 51,000 in Baltimore. Republican leaders denied the reports.

At the same time it was announced that Jesse Owens, the famed colored Olympic track star, was arriving tonight to make the rounds of the colored sections and appeal for votes for Gov. Nice.

A strange aspect of the election fight was that, while there was no serious doubt about O'Connor's fortunes at the polls tomorrow, all other Democratic candidates running for State offices were expected to win by whopping majorities.

No National Issue

United States Senator Millard E. Tydings also was expected to score an easy victory, with a majority that may exceed 100,000.

Tydings' victory in the primary, when he beat the Roosevelt-backed candidate, ended national interest in the Maryland election.

Regardless of how the Nice-O'Connor battle comes out, neither the Republicans nor the Democrats will be able to read any significance into it because of the local issues involved.

As a matter of fact, Nice has been chiding O'Connor because of the latter's failure to mention the New Deal in his speeches.

Ruhland Seeking Blood Dispensary For D. C. Indigent

Creation of a central blood "bank," supervised by the District Health Department and insuring blood transfusions for the indigent, was suggested yesterday by health authorities.

The suggestion followed publication of a report that Gallinger Hospital is dispensing 80 pints of blood each month.

Health Officer George C. Ruhland said he would call a meeting next week of local hospital superintendents and members of the medical societies to plan such a project for the District.

Wilson Club Hears Dr. Dora M. Clark

A type of education "quite different" from that calculated to fit a student for life in a dictatorship will be required to equip young America for life in "the democracy of tomorrow," Dr. Dora M. Clark, professor of political science and American history at Wilson College, Chambersburg, Pa., told a group of prospective college students at a meeting of the Wilson Club here last night. She added:

"Freedom from hunger and freedom from disease—they may lie just beyond the horizon for you to find. Freedom from ignorance—you can advance that frontier."

Unobserved though they worked within 10 feet of three traffic division policemen, thieves rifled a vending machine in the corridor of police headquarters early yesterday.

A door was forced and $1.75 worth of sandwiches and cake stolen. The thief failed to open the milk compartment.

The vendor was installed last Thursday and the proceeds of it go to aid the blind.

Scene on Various Political Fronts on Eve of Election

Candidates from California's "ham-and-egg" pension battle to New York's race for Governor wound up their campaigns yesterday as the Nation prepared to vote. Sheridan Downey (upper, left), Democratic candidate for the United States Senate from California, addresses 20,000 adherents of his $30-a-week pension plan in the last big "ham and eggs" rally. Philip Bancroft (upper, right), also a senatorial nominee from California, opposes the "ham and egg" pension. In between them is shown an audience of "ham and egggers." Mayor

LaGuardia clasps the hand of Gov. Herbert Lehman (lower, left) after a radio forum in New York. Two women are active in Ohio's Senatorial race. They are (lower) Mrs. Robert A. Taft (left), wife of the Republican candidate, speaking in behalf of her husband, and Mrs. Robert J. Bulkley (right), assisting with a speech for the Democratic incumbent, Senator Bulkley. Kansas City Democrats rallied to bugle calls given by Max Winkler (lower, right) each day at 11:30 a. m. to draw attention to speeches

40-Million Ballots to Test New Deal's Grip at Polls Today; Pennsylvania, Michigan, California Crucial in Off-Year Vote

Politics

Continued from Page 1.

tion "vote coercion" survey with informal reports from investigators in the field. Chairman Sheppard said Ohio agents of the committee found no evidence of political intimidation of WPA workers in that State, but their study is incomplete.

The Senate committee today will have observers at the polls in two States, New Jersey and Pennsylvania. Age is in North Dakota will study absentee voting methods there.

Hamilton coupled his blast at politics in relief with sharp criticism of Works Progress Administration Harry Hopkins reporting to the President at Hyde Park "that politically things were okay." The chairman said that today would determine whether "Mr. Hopkins can get away with being a political mentor for this country."

Barring an unlikely landslide in either direction, both sides were preparing to herald the results as a "victory."

Republicans continued short on specific estimates but long on predictions of a trend that would stiffen their present Senate minority of 15 by from 7 to 13 new stalwarts, but would leave the 86-member House minority by from 60 to 80 votes and add more than a half dozen new State House members to their present quota of seven.

Overturn Far Off

Conceding some losses in the House and some State Governorships, Democrats refused to admit any net change in Senate voting strength.

Their House spokesman, Chairman Patrick H. Drewry, of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee, said even if maximum Republican House claims are realized the G. O. P. would still have a weak House minority. He granted only 25 House Democratic losses, but said even 50-seat change would be only a "small net loss."

Chief interest was in three States, New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio, where both Senatorial and Governorships seats are at stake, close contests all. The party that wins high honors in this politically crucial trio of States can claim the election plums.

"Voter" Roosevelt, who made his only speech of the campaign for the Democratic ticket in his home State, today will cast his ballot for Gov. Lehman and New York's two Democratic senatorial candidates, Wagner and Mead, at the Hyde Park, N. Y., town hall.

Dewey's Chances Improve

Lehman's chances are threatened by the sensation-spurred of young Thomas E. Dewey, New York's racket-busting district attorney. Lehman trailed behind Dewey in the New York Daily News poll, but Wall Street betting odds favors Lehman. Wagner was meeting stiff competition from John Lord O'Brien, Progressive Republican, while Mead and Edward Corsi, Republican, were in a dogfight for the seat of the late Senator Copeland.

Postmaster General Farley predicted a victory for Lehman by "about 250,000" votes, but Dewey closed his campaign with an expression of confidence. The young gubernatorial candidate said he has high regard for Lehman's "personal honor," but that is not enough. Lehman appealed to voters to support candidates who stand for progressive government, "not merely by their words, but also by their deeds."

Pennsylvania closed its campaign in a murky finish, with Superior Court Judge Arthur W. James, Republican nominee for Governor, exhorting Gov. George H. Earle to assure Pennsylvania voters they "are at liberty to vote according to the dictates of their conscience."

James is opposed by Charles A. Jones, Pittsburgh attorney, while the veteran "Puddler Jim" Davis is seeking re-election over Gov. Earle. As warnings against voting frauds and irregularities continued, hundreds of special guards were assigned to polls duty in that State.

White House Aids Murphy

In Ohio, where New Deal Senator Bulkley with a Presidential endorsement is fighting for his political life, rain and snow forecast promised to cut down the vote. Bulkley's race for the Senate with Robert A. Taft, son of the late President and Chief Justice, is one of the country's closest.

Victory by Taft would give Republicans a potential Presidential candidate in 1940.

In Michigan, where a Governor's chair is the prize, both candidates broke precedent by campaigning deep into election eve. Gov. Frank Murphy, a personal friend of the President, has White House endorsement and Administration aid in his uphill fight for re-election against former Gov. Frank D. Fitzgerald.

In New Jersey, where Mayor Frank Hague's hand-picking of the Democratic candidate mixed the issues, former Republican Senator W. Warren Barbour carried his fight for return to the Senate into Hague's territory. Barbour's opponent is William Ely, former State WPA administrator, who is running as a New Dealer but yesterday said Hague "will not find me wanting when he needs me." Barbour called that a public admission of Ely's allegiance to "Kingmaker" Hague.

A staunch New Dealer, Senator George McGill, was in serious danger in Kansas, where observers wondered how today's vote will be affected by low temperatures and ice-covered highways. Clyde M. Reed, liberal Republican candidate, assailed McGill as a "rubber stamp" legislator, but has not followed his colleagues in calling the farm act a failure. McGill was co-author of the farm act blamed by mid-western Republicans for low corn and wheat prices.

A Boston torchlight motorcade led by former Gov. James M. Curley climaxed Massachusetts' sharp tussle for the governorship. Meanwhile Curley's Republican opponent, Leverett Saltonstall, who has Townsendite support, predicted a G. O. P. election "sweep."

Saltonstall ended his campaign with promises of work for the jobless and relief for the aged.

Pension California Cruz

California prepared for heavy balloting. There a proposed "$30 Every Thursday" amendment to the State constitution will bring out the voters, violently for or against. Sheridan Downey, Democratic nominee for the Senate, and chief pension proponent, is opposed by Philip Bancroft, Republican, while the State's Republican governor, Frank Merriam, is seeking re-election over State Senator Culbert Olson. Candidates may stand or fall with the pension amendment.

Three parties will meet today in Wisconsin's fight for Senate and State offices. Senator F. Ryan Duffy, loyal New Dealer, is battling for survival against odds, with Lieut. Gov. Herman Ekern, Progressive, and Alexander Wiley, Republican, seeking his seat. Chief challenge to the La Follette third party movement in the governorship race is Julius P. Heil, Milwaukee manufacturer, and Republican nominee. Gov. Philip La Follette is seeking an unprecedented fourth term.

Other States in which campaigning has been uncomfortably close include New Hampshire, South Dakota, Oregon and Iowa, where Republicans claim Senate chances are bright; and Minnesota, Colorado, Idaho, Connecticut and Rhode Island, where G. O. P. governorship hopes have been centered.

Rep. Collins Leads Yule Rites Here

Representative Ross Collins, of Mississippi, has accepted the position of master of ceremonies at the Community Christmas Tree ceremonies Christmas Eve at Lafayette Square, it was announced yesterday.

President Roosevelt has been invited to light the tree.

S.S.S. Tonic brings you new strength and vitality by restoring your blood to a healthy state, and its benefits are cumulative and enduring in the absence of an organic trouble.

Improves the appetite

Further, S.S.S. Tonic whets the appetite... foods taste better... natural digestive juices are stimulated, and finally, the food you eat is of more value... a very important step back to health.

Buy and use with complete confidence, and we believe you, like thousands of others, will be enthusiastic in your praise of S.S.S. Tonic for its part in making "you feel like yourself again."

At all drug stores in two sizes. You will find the larger size more economical.

S.S.S. Tonic stimulates the appetite and helps change weak blood cells to strong ones.

OUR SKIN frequently reflects how we feel. In business and social contacts we like our friends to tell us how well we look.

The laity now recognizes—as physicians and scientists have for years—the vital importance of rich, red blood, as the foundation of strength, energy, and a clear healthy skin.

for that tired-let-down feeling. It is well known how worry, overwork and undue strain take their toll of the precious red cells of the blood.

S.S.S. Tonic brings you new strength and vitality by restoring your blood to a healthy state, and its benefits are cumulative and enduring in the absence of an organic trouble.

Improves the appetite

Further, S.S.S. Tonic whets the appetite... foods taste better... natural digestive juices are stimulated, and finally, the food you eat is of more value... a very important step back to health.

Buy and use with complete confidence, and we believe you, like thousands of others, will be enthusiastic in your praise of S.S.S. Tonic for its part in making "you feel like yourself again."

At all drug stores in two sizes. You will find the larger size more economical.

S.S.S. Tonic stimulates the appetite and helps change weak blood cells to strong ones.

ACTION SALE!

OURISMAN CHEVROLET

Trade Ins on the New 1939 Chevrolet

Have Crowded Us to the Walls! 100 Late Models to Choose From!

OPEN NIGHTS 'TIL 9 P. M.

GIVE-AWAY

Today's Special!

1935 Chevrolet Sport Coupe, Was $395. Now $325	1934 Chevrolet Coupe, Was $295. Now $225
1935 Chev. D. L. 4-dr. Trunk Sedan, Was $425. Now $335	1933 Chevrolet Sedan, Was $215. Now $125
1935 Chevrolet Sedan, Was $395. Now $325	1933 Ford Tudor, Was $195. Now $145
1936 Chevrolet D. L. Trunk Sedan, Was $495. Now $415	1935 Chevrolet Coach, Was $395. Now $315
1934 Chevrolet Coupe, Was $325. Now $245	1937 Chev. 4-dr. D. L. Tr. Sed. r. h. Was $625. Now $499
1934 Ford Tudor, Was $345. Now $165	1937 Chev. D. L. 5-pai radio, Was $395. Now $475

WE MUST HAVE ACTION!

1937 Chevrolet Town Sedan $445	1933 Chevrolet Coach $125
1936 Chev. D. L. Sedan, Was $495. Now $415	1932 Chevrolet Coach $115
1935 Ford Tudor $199	1933 Plymouth 2-door Sedan $175
1934 Nash 4-dr. Sedan $189	1932 Ford Tudor $75
1936 Chevrolet 4-door Trunk Sedan $395	1931 Chevrolet Coupe $95
1934 Ford Tudor $165	1932 Chevrolet Sport Coupe $125
1933 Chevrolet Sedan $195	1932 Pontiac Coach $145
1934 Plymouth Sedan $245	1930 Ford Sedan $85
1932 Ford Coupe $115	1931 Chevrolet Sport Coupe $105

Save $100

HERE'S A BARGAIN!

OURISMAN

CHEVROLET 625 H STREET N.E.

"MEET ME AT THE AUTO SHOW"

They're spreading the news by every means that the "show of the show" is the new 1939 Body by Fisher.

And it's easy to see what makes it so—just visit the Auto Show and feast your eyes on all the new beauty, comfort, luxury—yes, and extra safety—that the new Body by Fisher brings to the new General Motors cars.

SHOW OF THE SHOW

BODY BY FISHER

ON GENERAL MOTORS CARS ONLY. CHEVROLET • PONTIAC • OLDSMOBILE • BUICK • LA SALLE • CADILLAC

POST-WANT ADS PAY

To Relieve BABY'S HEAD COLD

Misery

DO THIS: Massage his throat, chest, and back with Vicks VapoRub and tuck him into bed. Next, put a spoonful of VapoRub in a bowl of boiling water; place a newspaper or sheet over the child's head like a tent, covering the bowl too, so the medicated vapors can be inhaled for several minutes. This treatment loosens phlegm—clears air-passages—checks tendency to cough—relieves local congestion. Long after he relaxes into peaceful sleep, VapoRub's positive—and vapor action is still bringing relief—and you can get a good night's rest too.

VICKS VAPORUB

I Hated Fall Housecleaning

(AND WHAT WOMAN DIDN'T?)

UNTIL I BOUGHT MY REBUILT

Now CUT MY CLEANING TIME IN HALF

COMPLETE WITH 6 ATTACHMENTS

Full Cash Price $14.95

Has the famous Beater Brush. Attachments for clothes, autos, pillows, stairs, etc.

EASY-TERMS ARRANGED

RESULT by our expert mechanics and backed by our famous written GUARANTEE BOND for the same length of time as a new cleaner.

PHONE CO. 6100 FOR FREE HOME DEMONSTRATION

Clean-Rite

Vacuum Stores

905 G Street N.W. 3015 14th St. N.W.

Free Parking Behind G St. Store at 9th & G Place 14th St. Store Open until 9 P. M.

O'Connor Says He'll Beat Fay By 5,000 Votes

Despite 'WPA Coercion' Lehman Is Sanguine And So Is Farley

New York, Nov. 7.—Chairman John J. O'Connor (Democrat), New York, of the House Rules Committee, predicted tonight he would be re-elected tomorrow by a plurality of 5,000 despite President Roosevelt's efforts to unseat him with James H. Fay, ardent New Dealer.

In a final campaign statement accusing Works Progress Administration Harry L. Hopkins of "marshaling" relief votes against him O'Connor forecast that he would beat the "purge." O'Connor dropped the Democratic nomination in the primary to Fay but was named on the Republican ticket.

"Mr. Hopkins, if you come down you can make a final Hyde Park report," O'Connor said. "You will have to report that John J. O'Connor is going to beat the purge by a plurality of at least 5,000. Perhaps that is why you have ignored my insistent demands that you come here—you don't want to have to report that despite your WPA coercion I am going to win."

Both Men Confident

Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, Democratic candidate for re-election, and District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey, his Republican opponent, closed their campaigns tonight with expressions of confidence.

Gov. Lehman urged voters to elect candidates "who, not merely by their words but also by their deeds, have shown a determination to carry on a government which has concerned itself in the past and is pledged to concern itself in the future" with progressive standards of life.

Dewey expressed "high regard for the personal life of his opponent, but declared that that is not enough."

"After six years of his administration," he asserted, "the corrupt machines are still doing business at the same old stand. No matter how he personally may strive for decent labor legislation, the enforcement of those laws is at the mercy of corrupt politicians and public officials who stand by while racketeers with guns and blackjacks move in and subdue whole groups of workmen."

G. O. F. Held 598,000 Of

James A. Farley, Postmaster General and Democratic State chairman, challenged a Republican forecast of a Dewey victory by 268,000 votes with the assertion that it was "out of line by half a million votes, which will re-elect Gov. Lehman by about 250,000," and probably more.

"The rest of the Democratic ticket will come along with similar totals," he said. "New York will be represented in the United States Senate by two Democrats—I have yet to hear even a Republican express a serious doubt of Senator Wagner's re-election."

British Voters Oust Conservative

Dartford, Kent, England (Tuesday), Nov. 8.—Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's Conservative Party suffered a defeat here in yesterday's parliamentary by-election, which political circles interpreted as indicating disapproval of his foreign policy at Munich and thereafter.

Mrs. J. L. Adamson, Laborite, polled 46,514 votes to 42,776 for R. Godfrey Mitchell, Conservative. The results gained a seat for the Labor Party, as the election was to fill a vacancy caused by the death of F. E. Clark, National Conservative, who defeated Mrs. Adamson, 38,242 to 35,596, at the last general election.

Argentine Pegs Peso at 17 to Pound

Buenos Aires, Nov. 7 (U.P.).—A slight devaluation of the Argentine peso in its "pegged" relation to the pound sterling was announced last night by the finance ministry, which decreed that, effective immediately, the official rate will be 17 pesos to the pound instead of 16 as at present.

YOU CAN CUT HEATING COSTS

THE WAY BOOKS OF FAMILIES IN THIS SECTION DO

MRS. CHARLES H. SCHAFER
2815 Broadway St. N. W.
Washington, D. C.

"We were getting such poor results from our old furnace that we decided to try 'blue coal.' We noticed a big difference right away. It gives cleaner, brighter heat, makes furnace cleaning easier, and in the long run it saves us money besides. We're sticking to 'blue coal' for good."

THE HOUSE IS ALWAYS NICE AND WARM SINCE WE'RE USING 'blue coal'

GIVES EVEN, HEALTHFUL HEAT
Your furnace was built for anthracite. 'blue coal' is the cream of Pennsylvania anthracite, especially prepared to give you the utmost in home comfort.

ORDER 'blue coal' FROM US TODAY

GRIFFITH CONSUMERS COMPANY
1413 New York Ave. Met. 4840

blue coal

WINE IN ON "THE SHADOW" EVERY TUESDAY AT 10:30 P.M. STATION WOL

Big Day for Prize-Winners in Halloween Parade

Winners in the civic Halloween celebration received their prizes yesterday. Nina Cernuto (left), of 1402 Quincy street northwest, costumed as the Princess of Mirth in the Twin Oak playground group, received an order for a permanent wave as a winner in the individual costumed marchers class. Little Eleanor Jeffers (right), of 4604 Fourteenth street, also a winner in the costume contest, receives her prize, an order for a studio portrait, from Lawrence E. Williams.

Japan Speeds Drive, Hoping Chiang Will Accept Armistice

New Peace Offer Reported in Shanghai Nipponese Enter Suburbs of 3 Key Cities British Seeking Truce to Protect Hongkong

Shanghai, (Tuesday), Nov. 8.—Japanese today fought their way into the suburbs of two new "key" cities in central China, apparently determined to intensify their smashing offensive against Chinese Gen. Chiang in an effort to induce him to accept reported new peace overtures.

The key cities are Yochow, south of Hankow on the Hankow-Canton Railway, and Changsha, capital of Hunan Province, and south of Yochow on the vital rail line. Yochow was expected to be "fully occupied" within 48 hours and Changsha by the end of this week.

New peace reports were based on a revelation British Ambassador Sir Archibald Clark Kerr had conferred with Chiang during the week in southwestern China, and reportedly had asked him on what terms he would be willing to end the war.

Last week Sir Archibald conferred secretly with Chiang's foreign minister, Dr. Wang Chung-Hui, and other nationalist leaders, who were in Hongkong.

He also had reports from the British ambassador in Tokyo, Sir Alexander L. Craigie, who has been in constant touch with the Japanese government.

The British foreign office is gravely concerned about the future of Hongkong, long one of Britain's richest colonial possessions but now threatened with bankruptcy because of the Japanese occupation of Canton on which Hongkong, a vast transshipping center, always has depended for its commercial existence.

[The Japanese government announced in Tokyo formation of the Central China Development Co., twin of the North China Development Co., to reconstruct the war-devastated areas of Central China, the Associated Press said.]

[The president of the company, Kenji Kodama, said Japan had no intention of monopolizing commerce in China. "We will not interfere with foreign interests already existing in Central China, nor will we oppose new foreign investments provided they are offered in the spirit of friendly co-operation," he said.—Editor's note.]

Cadet Bamman Moved

Naval Aviation Cadet Frederick C. Bamman, jr., 2833 Audubon terrace northwest, has been transferred from duty with the Patrol Squadron No. 5, Coco Solo, Canal Zone, to Patrol Squadron No. 18, San Diego, Calif., the Navy Department announced yesterday.

Dr. Lee Named to Head Southern Methodist U.

Dallas, Tex., Nov. 7 (U.P.).—Dr. Umphrey Lee, dean of the School of Religion at Vanderbilt University, was chosen president of Southern Methodist University today.

Searchers Find No Safe Driver, But Summon 7

and would act as a medium through which all safety work of the city would be co-ordinated and kept constantly before the public.

Safety

Continued from Page 1.

caution or courtesy was observed. Motorists refused to yield to pedestrians, refused to signal their intentions to stop and turn and refused to give "the other fellow" a break at corners.

The day's events developed into a never-changing picture of "get there first and everyone else be hanged."

It also proved to be a bad day for women motorists. An attractive young girl was stopped on Connecticut avenue for exceeding 40 miles an hour and another was overhauled on Taft Bridge for traveling nearly 50.

But the high point of yesterday's safety crusade came while Patton was talking to the first woman. A car passed traveling at breakneck speed, Patton gave chase. The pursuit led down Tilden street hill at better than 45 miles an hour. Just before Patton drew alongside, the speeding motorist swerved, almost forcing the police car onto the opposite curb.

The safety award plan was designed to provide recognition to those motorists who rigidly abide by rules of safe driving and to promote caution and courtesy on District streets. The "search for safety" will continue today.

Meanwhile, the Commissioners' advisory committee on traffic safety yesterday adopted four recommendations for betterment of Washington conditions. They included:

Pedestrian control laws. An increased speed limit with rigid enforcement.

Establishment of a safety commission with paid executive officer. A law against unnecessary horn blowing.

The committee endorsed "in principle" a plan to reorganize the present Traffic Advisory Council and place at its head an executive officer who would co-ordinate all local traffic safety activities.

The proposal, approved yesterday by the board of directors of the Washington Board of Trade, was presented by Col. L. C. Crawford, chairman of the trade group's traffic committee.

It called for financial support from the District's gasoline tax fund

Searchers Find No Safe Driver, But Summon 7

and would act as a medium through which all safety work of the city would be co-ordinated and kept constantly before the public.

Safety

Continued from Page 1.

caution or courtesy was observed. Motorists refused to yield to pedestrians, refused to signal their intentions to stop and turn and refused to give "the other fellow" a break at corners.

The day's events developed into a never-changing picture of "get there first and everyone else be hanged."

It also proved to be a bad day for women motorists. An attractive young girl was stopped on Connecticut avenue for exceeding 40 miles an hour and another was overhauled on Taft Bridge for traveling nearly 50.

But the high point of yesterday's safety crusade came while Patton was talking to the first woman. A car passed traveling at breakneck speed, Patton gave chase. The pursuit led down Tilden street hill at better than 45 miles an hour. Just before Patton drew alongside, the speeding motorist swerved, almost forcing the police car onto the opposite curb.

The safety award plan was designed to provide recognition to those motorists who rigidly abide by rules of safe driving and to promote caution and courtesy on District streets. The "search for safety" will continue today.

Meanwhile, the Commissioners' advisory committee on traffic safety yesterday adopted four recommendations for betterment of Washington conditions. They included:

Pedestrian control laws. An increased speed limit with rigid enforcement.

Establishment of a safety commission with paid executive officer. A law against unnecessary horn blowing.

The committee endorsed "in principle" a plan to reorganize the present Traffic Advisory Council and place at its head an executive officer who would co-ordinate all local traffic safety activities.

The proposal, approved yesterday by the board of directors of the Washington Board of Trade, was presented by Col. L. C. Crawford, chairman of the trade group's traffic committee.

It called for financial support from the District's gasoline tax fund

Nazi Envoy Tries To Censor Hawaii's 'Sock-Hitler' Game

Honolulu, Nov. 7 (P.).—Robert Lange, German consul in Hawaii, said today he would ask Gov. Joseph Poindexter to eliminate a "sock Hitler" game proposed as part of the entertainment at the St. Catherine's Catholic Church fair November 19 and 20.

Patrons of the fair, its publicity committee said, would be sold tickets entitling them to throw baseballs at wooden images of Hitler, Mussolini and Stalin.

Franco Montanari, Italian consul, said he was taking no official cognizance of the proposed entertainment.

British Sea Patrol Seeks to Prevent Attacks on Ships

Chatham, England, Nov. 7 (P.).—Britain was reported in well-informed quarters tonight to have instituted a special destroyer and submarine patrol in the North Sea to prevent "incidents" in her own territorial waters following recent activities of Spanish insurgent armed vessels.

WOODWARD & LOTHROP

10th 11th F and G Streets

Phone District 5300

Shave in a hurry with a

Schick Shaver

$12.50

Shave in less time and have a smoother shave... with no skin irritation. Shave once a day, or as often as you wish... every time you get the satisfaction of a clean, close shave... and you can never hurt your face. Shave with your coat on and leave no tell-tale sign. No muss, no fuss when you shave with a Schick.

THE MEN'S STORE, SECOND FLOOR

Give a Hand-UP
Not a Hand-OUT
COMMUNITY CHEST

WOODWARD & LOTHROP

10th 11th F and G Streets

Phone District 5300

Large Karastan Rugs

luxurious floor coverings for your rooms at lower prices than in any previous season

Now you can enjoy spaciousness and unusually large rooms can use richly-colored, luxurious deep-pile Karastan American-Orientals. For the oversize rugs are now sold at approximately the same per square foot cost as the 9x12-foot size. A new shipment brings new patterns of famous original Oriental designs. The ancient panel Kirman; the medallion Kirman, favorite of the Eastern Princes; and the vibrant toned Kashan are here in American duplicates... exactly the same as the beautiful originals in color, texture, and design. Note the moderate price of these large sizes now.

Approximate sizes—

9'x12'	$159.50	10'6"x16'	$250
10'6"x12'	$185	10'6"x18'	$280
9'x15'	$200	12'x16'	$285
10'6"x14'	$215	10'6"x20'	$310
9'x18'	$240	12'x20'	$350

RUGS, FIFTH FLOOR

WOODWARD & LOTHROP

10th 11th F and G Streets

Phone District 5300

"Roads to a New America," $2.75

by David Cushman Coyle

Mr. Coyle is an engineer by profession, but in recent years has become well-known as a writer and consultant for many government agencies. In this book he presents what he believes to be a way out of our present difficulties... as individuals, and as a united people set on preserving a great nation, we should find it intensely interesting.

THE BOOK STORE, AISLE 22, FIRST FLOOR.

You are invited to hear Mr. Coyle's Lecture

This afternoon at 4 o'clock in the Tea Room, Seventh Floor

Headlines

Of interest to the well-dressed—and well-bonneted—woman is this black fur felt with deep felt bandeau in back for that pancake-y look, and American Beauty velvet leaves and a peach taffeta blossom sprouting from the crown. A wide-mesh veil with a fine lace border demurely enhances your best features $15

MILLINERY SALON, THIRD FLOOR

on the formal Pandora platform for the new season

This Pandora exquisite is an evening slipper created as a foretaste of the holiday season, with the Christmas-tree iridescence of its multicolor-rhinestoned platform sole. The slim heel, the scallop-edged antique white silk brocade, the "lastex" heel band that makes the shoe a part of your foot—these are the very epitome of delicate, feminine, romantic grace. $18.75

WOMEN'S SHOE, THIRD FLOOR

All the king's horses and all the king's men

(couldn't put Johnny together again)

- Twisted legs are sometimes hard to straighten.
- But twisted lives are even harder.
- Take little Johnny, for instance.
- Facing the battle of life with two crutches and a leg-brace.
- We can't always remedy nature's handicaps.
- But we CAN and MUST overcome them.
- All too frequently, twisted legs mean twisted lives . . . especially for the underprivileged.
- Your Community Chest is helping hundreds of Johnnies, every day in the year. But money is needed to carry on the work that humanity demands.
- Money for physical care...for hospitalization . . . for character building . . . money to give Johnny a future and a chance . . . not just relief for today . . . but security for tomorrow.

*Give a Hand-UP
Not a Hand-OUT*

GIVE THRU YOUR COMMUNITY CHEST

THESE 57 ORGANIZATIONS SHARE IN THE COMMUNITY CHEST CAMPAIGN

Shoe and Rubber Fund—D. C. Congress of Parents & Teachers, D. C. Rehabilitation Department—Disabled American Veterans—Conference of Suburban Social Welfare Organizations, Jewish Service Agency, National Army, Washington Heart Association.

St. Joseph's Home and School, Twelfth Street Branch—Y. M. C. A., Council of Social Agencies, Holiday House—Girls' Friendly Society, Summer Outings Committee, Jewish Foster Home, Girl Scouts of D. C., Child Welfare Society.

Children's Country Home, Jewish Community Center, Boy's Club of Washington, Central, Southwest, Northeast and Georgetown Branches, Health Security Administration (Formerly Central Admitting Bureau for Hospitals), Washington Society for the Care of Hearing, Hospitalization Fund, Hebrew Home for the Aged, Episcopal Home for Children, Barney Neighborhood House, Friendship House.

Southeast House—Washington Welfare Association, Young Men's Christian Association, St. Ann's Home, Washington Home for Foundlings, St. Ann's Technical School, Franklin E. McConnel House, Shoe and Rubber Fund—Federation of Parents-Teachers Associations.

Children's Protective Association (Formerly Juvenile Protective Association), Instructive Visiting Nurse Society, Washington Housing Association, Department of Social Welfare—Washington Federation of Churches, Local Aid Bureau.

Family Service Association, Florence Critchfield House, Travelers Aid Society, Northwest Settlement House, Georgetown Children's Home, Woodward-Lozier Old Folks Home, Catholic Charities, Social Service Exchange.

St. Vincent's Home and School, Social Hygiene Society, Southwest Community House, St. Ann's Infant Asylum, Philip Whalley Y. W. C. A., Boy Scouts of America—National Capital Area Council, Young Women's Christian Association.

Welfare Department—American Legion, Washington Animal Welfare League, Child Child Settlement House, Washington Institute of Mental Hygiene, Child Guidance Clinic, and Life Adjustment Center, Child Child Fresh Air Farm for Convalescent Children.

England May Yield Colonies In King's Talk

To Appease Hitler
Throne Speech Today
Arms Plan to Be Told

By Frank Kelley.

Special Cable to The Post.

London, Nov. 7.—The related problems of shaping British foreign policy after the Munich "peace with honor" and of speeding up Britain's five-year rearmament program, will dominate the new session of Parliament which King George VI will open tomorrow with traditional pageantry attending his reading of "the King's speech," prepared, as usual, by the cabinet.

Prime Minister Chamberlain intends to press his policy of "appeasement," by which he means coming to a working arrangement with the dictatorships about the organization of Europe. His next step is expected to be the handing over of some, but not all, of Germany's former colonies to Reichsfuehrer Hitler, as part of a general settlement engineered by a four-power conference of Britain, Germany, France and Italy.

At the same time Chamberlain intends to accelerate Britain's armament program, notably in the air, so he will be on a more equal footing in dealing with Hitler and Premier Benito Mussolini in the future. Defense of the civil population of the British Isles against air raids will be drastically reorganized, following the revelation of serious deficiencies in the September crisis.

These, and other measures, will be foreshadowed in the speech from the throne tomorrow. In the debate on the King's speech, which will follow in the House of Commons, Chamberlain is expected to give some details. It is expected the first line strength of the Royal Air force will be doubled, so that Britain will have nearly 5,000 planes by March, 1940, instead of 2,750.

Copyright 1938, New York Tribune, Inc.

Jewish Exile, 17, Shoots German Diplomat in Paris

Shooting

Continued from Page 1.

ing here and lived in Paris parks and under bridges of the Seine River.

Detectives said his parents last week were refused permission to remain in France and went with the remainder of the family to Poland, where they began living in an abandoned railroad freight car near the German frontier.

(Thousands of other Polish Jews have been living across the frontier after their deportation October 28-29 from Germany. German authorities rounded up Polish Jews suddenly in advance of the deadline set in a Polish law requiring revalidation of passports but halted their drive October 29 pending Polish-German negotiations.)

The youth entered the office of Von Rath, 32-year-old nephew of the late Roland Koester, one-time German ambassador to France, under pretext of delivering an "important document."

Foreign Minister Bonnet inquired about Von Rath's injury and was told the doctors were able to extract only the bullet from his shoulder since his condition forbade for the moment any attempt to take out the one lodged in his abdomen.

"International Jewry" Accused

Berlin, Nov. 7 (AP).—The official correspondence service Dienst aus Deutschland charged "International Jewry" was responsible for the attempt of a Polish Jewish refugee from Germany to assassinate the secretary of the German Embassy in Paris today.

Anti-Jewish feeling here was aggravated by the incident which was displayed on the front pages of all newspapers under glaring headlines.

"PSST-1939 AUTO SHOW BIG HIT - FISHER BODY"

Want a tip on the hit of this year's Auto Show? It has more beauty, more comfort, more luxurious security than car owners have ever before enjoyed.

You've guessed it. It's the 1939 Body by Fisher. And it's adding more value than ever, as well, to the new 1939 General Motors cars.

SHOW OF THE SHOW

BODY BY FISHER
ON GENERAL MOTORS CARS ONLY.
CHEVROLET • PONTIAC • OLDSMOBILE
BUICK • LA SALLE • CADILLAC

Loyalists Near Rebel Lerida In Drive to Lift Ebro Pressure

3 Towns Captured, Vital Highway Cut
Franco's Men Press Enemy Salient Back
Government Repulsed in Battle on Shore

By the United Press.

Hendaye, France, Nov. 7.—Bitter fighting which may determine whether Gen. Franco is to resume his "big push" toward the Mediterranean this year raged tonight on three fronts in eastern Spain, with the loyalists taking the initiative.

A loyalist army, crossing the flood-swollen Segre River 84 miles inland from Barcelona, drove upon the insurgent stronghold of Lerida in a desperate effort to relieve enemy pressure on the government's crumbling Ebro salient 30 miles to the south.

After crossing the Segre, the loyalists stormed and captured the towns of Soses, Aytona and Seros and cut the Saragossa-Lerida highway, Franco's most vital communications artery in northeastern Spain. Loyalist columns were reported to be continuing their advance upon Lerida late tonight.

To the south, along the Mediterranean seacoast south of Castellon, the loyalists attacked in heavy force at Nules in an attempt to throw back the insurgent "pinchers" closing in upon Valencia.

Insurgents said the Castellon attack, aided by several small government war craft which shelled the insurgents from offshore, was repulsed with 500 loyalist dead and 1,000 prisoners.

Insurgent communiques announced the capture of Mora de Ebro, key town of the loyalist salient on the west bank of the Ebro along the main highway leading to the Mediterranean at Tarragona.

The town was the government's last large foothold on the west bank, 200 Air Raid Casualties

Burgos, Nov. 7 (AP).—Spanish insurgent authorities reported more than 200 persons, mostly children, were killed or wounded early today in a loyalist air raid on the Andalusian town of Cabra, 30 miles southeast of Cordoba.

The insurgents said Cabra, a town of 14,000 in the heart of one of Spain's richest wine regions, was 37 miles behind the fighting lines and contained no military objectives.

7.5% Capital Tax Levied by Italy

Rome, Nov. 7 (AP).—The government put into force today an extraordinary capital tax on private industry and business.

The tax was similar to one imposed a year ago on stock companies and real estate. The levy is to help defray costs of developing Ethiopia and rearmament.

The rate of the new tax was understood to be 7.5 per cent of the capital value as compared with 10 per cent levied last year on the stock companies. The new levy was expected to yield about 1,200,000,000 lire ($63,120,000).

The government also issued a decree prohibiting all Jews from membership in the Fascist Party except those exempted from racial restrictions last week. This left eligibility open to about 3,500 of the approximately 15,000 Jewish families.

Coed Reports Kidnaping

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

MARY E. MELLINGER, 21-year-old University of Indiana junior from Indianapolis, who was found in a rock tunnel near Bloomington, Ind., yesterday after she had been missing 25 1-2 hours. She said two men had kidnaped her and released her unharmed. She was found by Adrian Marks, another student, who said he was attracted to the tunnel by moans

Russian Prince Dies

New York, Nov. 7 (AP).—Prince George, of Russia, 35, son of the late Grand Duke Constantine, Russian poet, died today after a two-month illness.

Soviet Defense Chief Warns Against Aggression in Siberia

Russia Celebrates Revolution's Anniversary
'Next World War' Begun, Voroshilov Says
Nipponese Called Neither Capable Nor Clever

By Joseph Barnes.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Moscow, Nov. 7.—Marshal Voroshilov, Soviet commissar of defense, gave a direct warning to Japan today against any military adventure in Siberia. He spoke at the twenty-first anniversary of the Russian revolution to massed Red army troops standing in Red Square before the traditional demonstration.

The Kremlin's month-long silence on foreign affairs after the Munich conference, broken last night by Soviet Premier Molotov, was completely shattered when Voroshilov told the Red army in carefully chosen words the next world war already had started.

Referring to the fighting against the Japanese last August at Lake Khasan, in Siberia, he said: "This was not war, but an attempted provocation of war by a neighbor not very capable and—why try to cover it up—none too clever."

He compared Japan, in the words of Ivan Krylov, Russia's greatest fable-teller, to a dog which thought it became the equal of an elephant simply by barking at it. The Red army commander stood atop Lenin's tomb, barely 40 feet from the newly arrived Japanese ambassador, Shigenori Togo, when he added that he was not sure whether the Japanese had learned properly the lessons of Lake Khasan.

"Gentlemen," he said, "what you got at Lake Khasan was only the blossom; try again and you will get the fruit."

After three days of steady rain the sun broke through Moscow's leaden skies today enough for several hundred planes to roar over Lenin's tomb, where Josef V. Stalin, secretary general of the Communist Party, stood.

Outside of Moscow every village worthy of the name and even the icebreaker Sedov, frozen in the ice pack drifting toward the North Pole, held similar celebrations of the revolution's birthday.

Few military novelties were shown today to the foreign military attaches who stood beside the tomb. After the usual infantry regiments, with the battalions of bicyclists, dogs, mounted machine-gunners and paratroopers, the climax of the parade came when six heavy tanks roared through Red Square with their throttles wide open.

Before the military parade started, foreign delegates paraded to "their places led" by Spanish comrades holding up their right hands in the clenched-fist salute, used by foreign Communists but unknown in the Soviet Union. After the parade the city was given over to its marching citizens, for whom this holiday has become second only to May Day as a national festival designed for cheering and dancing in the streets.

The only new figure in Stalin's entourage today was Laurentius P. Beria, an "old Bolshevik" who has been secretary general of the Communist Party for Georgia for many years. He turned up today atop the tomb in an N. K. V. D. (commissariat of internal affairs) uniform, standing next to Nikolai I. Yezhov, present head of the N. K. V. D. Copyright, 1938, New York Tribune, Inc.

EARLY BIRD CHRISTMAS SPECIAL

Have Your Gift Pictures Taken

now—before the rush begins... while we have ample time to give you the service our studio is so well-known for...

JUST THIS WEEK 3 lovely 8x10 size photographs of you $2.95

ONE COMPLETE IN A FINE FRAME

No appointment necessary. Photograph Studio—Third Floor

The Palais Royal

8 Street at Eleventh • District 4400

The greatest Tribute ever paid to an ice cream

Every day—in Washington—thousands of people pass other ice cream stores to buy BREYERS

Why this decided preference for Breyers over other ice creams sold in Washington? There are two big reasons.

First—people say Breyers have the "knack" of making ice cream that tastes better... that it has the richness and flavor they like.

Second—they know and believe in the famous Breyer "Pledge of Purity"—our guarantee that Breyers contains the finest ingredients the world offers for producing quality ice cream.

When more people eat Breyers—and more dealers sell Breyers—than any other ice cream in America—there must be a reason.

MADE BETTER • TASTES BETTER

Nelson B. Bell About the Showshops

Fritz Kortner Brings Mature Art to Stage

Makes American Debut With Miss Cornell
'Grand Illusion' Resumes Belasco Run
News Notes and Gossip of the Theater

FRITZ KORTNER, the distinguished German actor, who is making his first appearance on the American stage as Herod, opposite Katharine Cornell, in "Herod and Marianne," to be seen at the National Theater next week, is a man of deep conviction and high courage, as well as an artist of fine attainment in the theater.

An exile from his native land, his banishment from Germany early in the Hitler regime was largely self-imposed. Back in 1933, Herr Kortner was appearing in Hamburg in classic drama when forewarnings of the new chancellor's impending policies of racial and religious intolerance moved him to interrupt a performance of "The Merchant of Venice" to stage a demonstration against the tyrannical edicts of Der Fuehrer. This in the face of the presence in the audience of officers and men of Hitler's storm troops. He was warned, under penalty of immediate arrest, to leave Germany that night. This he did.

Not knowing a word of the English language, he nevertheless sought asylum in England, where the stage seemed to offer promise of the most advantageous pursuit of his profession. In the ensuing five years, he has thoroughly mastered the English tongue. In London he devoted much of his time and skill to the writing and direction of motion pictures. Always interested in the New York stage, he came to America not too many months ago with his wife and two children. Having played in the original blank-verse version of Hebbel's "Herod and Marianne" in Germany, he was immediately sought, on this side, by Miss Cornell and her husband-director, Guthrie McClintic, to assume the same role in the prose adaptation of the poetic drama in which Miss Cornell currently is appearing.

The requirements of the role in the Clemence Dane adaptation necessarily are vastly different from those of the metrical original. Herr Kortner is said to have adapted himself to the variances in reading and treatment with the flexibility of the true artist.

In this country, as in Europe, Kortner has not been indifferent to the opportunities presented by the cinema. Already he has marketed a script to the Warner Brothers for early production. The play is one woven around the lives of Beethoven and Napoleon, with emphasis upon the dramatic clash inevitable between a creative genius and a soldier whose life was dedicated to action, the power of arms and a lust for conquest.

One is led to believe, from reliable sources, that Herr Kortner's major interest in the films lies not so much in the direction of acting as in authorship and the directing of worthy film stories.

It will be interesting to follow the career in this country of the newcomer who was recognized as one of Europe's great artists until his life was thrown askew by the destructive forces of dictatorship.

The prior booking of Tallulah Bankhead in her new play, "I Am Different," at the National the week of Monday, November 21, precludes the opening here that date of the season's third production by the newly organized Playwrights Producing Company, comprised of Maxwell Anderson, Robert E. Sherwood, Elmer Rice, Sidney Howard and S. N. Behrman. This would have been Mr. Rice's new drama of "American Landscape." The next promising prospect of another playwright's premiere at Mr. Behrman's new play, which he confided to this column, when in Washington for the premiere of Sherwood's "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," will be ready around the first of the year.

Two notable screen events are being planned by Washington motion picture interests.

On the evening of Armistice Day, Friday, November 11, the French antiwar comedy, "Generals Without Banners," will be given a gala premiere at the Little Theater, under the joint auspices of the management and the Washington committee of the Keep America Out of War Congress. Mrs. Louise Noonan Miller and Abe Tolkins, of the Little, and the Washington committee of the KAOWC, a national federation of peace organizations, have chosen Armistice Day as most appropriate to bring to Washingtonians a reminder, in motion picture form, of the futility of war. Departing drastically from the usual grim, terror-ridden war film, "Generals Without Banners," is a lively comedy, played largely by children.

The second event of importance will be a benefit showing of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's picturization of Dr. A. J. Cronin's novel of "The Citadel," scheduled for a midnight screening in Loew's Capitol Theater on Wednesday, November 23. This midnight premiere is both sponsored by and will be for the benefit of the National Library for the Blind, of which former Senator Gore is the national head. Mrs. Ross McIntire, wife of the White House physician; Mrs. Gertrude Meier, Mrs. E. J. Boothby, Mabel Walker Willebrandt and other women prominent in the Capital's social and professional life are members of the committee in charge. Tickets, priced at $1 each, are now on sale at the box offices of Loew's Capitol, Palace and Columbia theaters.

Robert Donat and Rosalind Russell are the stars of "The Citadel," heralded as one of the most engrossing film plays of the year. It will be presented later as a regular popular-priced attraction at Loew's Palace.

What with a mouse head, a pair of stuffed owls and sundry other "props" essential to their forthcoming production of "Room Service" safely in hand, the Pierce Hall Players are working overtime placing the final touches to the rollicking comedy. "Room Service" is scheduled for public presentation in Pierce Hall, Fifteenth and Harvard streets northwest, tomorrow and Thursday nights. The Players are prepared to offer as nearly a "professional" cast as ever has stepped foot upon the Pierce Hall stage. Included in its roster are Burke Edwards, Edmund Evans, Walter Reeser, Carl Fribek, Dan Jones, Charles Hohen, William Draper, Jean Darian, Eleanor Warren, Robert Yates, George Hall, Harry Whiting and Doyle Tripp. The play is under the direction of Howard F. Wentworth.

Returning one of its most discussed and most widely lauded film plays to the screen yesterday, the Belasco Theater, for this week only, offers the Capital a further opportunity to view "Grand Illusion," starring Pierre Fresnay, Jean Gabin, Eric Von Stroheim and Dita Parlo in one of the most powerful antiwar dramas ever caught by the cameras. This can hardly be designated a return or a repeat engagement, since it is, rather, merely the resumption of the successful run of the picture that was interrupted by a previously booked week of grand opera.

"Grand Illusion" deals with life in a German prison camp and depicts the evil consequences of war upon the hearts and minds of men of many different social ranks. It is played with a grimness and relentless fidelity to an unpleasant theme that greatly enhances the forcefulness of its driving lesson in anguish and futility. This film is unique among releases of its kind in that it is spoken, at one time or another, in German, French and English. Its entire content, however, is illumined by superbly intelligible English subtitles that are more than ordinarily expository and complete.

Not to see "Grand Illusion" is to miss one of the finest works of its type ever produced.

Speaking of distinguished films serves as a reminder that the Film Society of Washington, in co-operation with the Museum of Modern Art Film Library, has scheduled an arresting season of Wednesday evening screen bills at Pierce Hall. The Film Society's projected program is as follows: "Adventures of Chico," described as a "Mexican Elephant Boy," November 16; "The Big Parade" (1925), December 7; "Anna Christie," Garbo's first "talkie" (1930), January 4; "Song of China," January 18; "Klimko," the eternal quest, February 1; "The Last Laugh," Emil Jannings' most popular film (1924), February 15; "The Making of a King," March 1; "What Price Glory?" (1926), March 15; "Robin Hood," by Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. (1922), March 29, and "Greedy," Eric Von Stroheim's most notable production (1923-24), on April 5.

Another fine opportunity for period study of the cinema's development.

June-In-November Note.
You may have felt comfortable, but you certainly looked funny in your white flannels and sport shoes yesterday!

Film Table

Earle—Men With Wings, at 10:30 p. m., 1:20, 4:10, 7 and 9:55 p. m. Stage shows at 12:25, 3:15, 6:05 and 9 p. m.
Loew's Capitol—Just Around the Corner, at 11:10 a. m., 1:50, 4:35, 7:20 and 10:05 p. m. Stage shows at 12:35, 3:40, 6:20 and 9:05 p. m.
Metropolitan—Dracula, at 11:15 a. m., 1:50, 4:25, 7 and 9:35 p. m.
Palace—Suez, at 11:10 a. m., 1:45, 4:20, 6:55 and 9:30 p. m.
Little Theater—Three on a Week-End, at 11 a. m., 12:45, 2:35, 4:20, 6:10, 7:55 and 9:45 p. m.

A Pheasant and a Cold Bottle for a Vagabond

ON THEIR WAY TO LOCAL SCREENS

Above—Frances Dee and Ronald Colman, as they appear in the principal roles in Frank Lloyd's picturization for Paramount of Justin Huntly McCarthy's legendary romance of "If I Were King," coming to the screen at Loew's Palace Theater on Thursday. Inset—Nancy Kelly, cast opposite Richard Greene in "Submarine Patrol," opening at Loew's Capitol on Friday.

The New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

THIS IS HOW the G-men solved the Arthur Fried murder case, which District Attorney Dewey's office was completely unaware—until the G-men delivered the perpetrators and their confessions. . . . When Fried was kidnapped last year, the only information supplied, by people who remembered seeing a car in that street, was that its license number began with "7N." In the Norman Miller kidnapping the G-men learned that a Packard Club car had been used—and there are only 400 such cars in the State.

IN SARATOGA last summer J. Edgar Hoover's men discovered such a car—a Packard Club car, registered in the name of Demetrius Gula. They checked the license plates of all the cars ever owned by Gula and learned that license plates beginning with "7N" had been turned in to him last year. They took Gula and all his associates into custody. Then, with the voice identifications, which checked with the recordings they had made of the telephone negotiations with the kidnapers, the G-men again distinguished themselves as the finest law-enforcement agency in the world.

GIOVANNI MARTINELLI, who will guest-star for Eddie Cantor Monday, refused to sing a swelling version of "Martha." Instead, Martinelli will sing operatic versions of "A Ticket, a Ticket," and "Margie." Mrs. De Witt Millhouser is one of the backers of Orson Welles' "Danton's Death." The performance of Martin Gabel as Danton is one of the season's highlights. . . . The Roosevelt dance hall building will be torn down for the fair and a 1,000-room hotel erected there. . . . Leane Zugsmith's first play, "At Long Way From Home," will be produced by Herman Shumlin.

LAST NIGHT the final scene of "one-third-of-a-nation" was completed at the Astoria studios. . . . This scene features the big tenement fire. A camera was placed atop the studio to photograph the walls caving in and the flames shooting upward. . . . The action, however, became too realistic—and so the Astoria Fire Department, which had been used in previous scenes, was summoned to put out the out-of-control fire in the studio which was featuring a big tenement fire.

"THE PORT OF MISSING MEN," the magnificent estate left by the late H. H. Rogers, again will be featured in newspaper reports. An announcement soon will be made that it will be sold for nonpayment of taxes, $14,000. . . . "Mendel Marantz," the first book written by David Freedman—who in his lifetime gave his country as much comedy as any other American ever did—is being republished. . . . Sam Nully, able candidate for Supreme Court here, will offer a new clearing system of aid to the courts. It will be an installment method of paying judgments by defendants who otherwise attempt to delay payment by interposing defenses to just claims.

MARGALO GILLMORE met Jacqueline Susan, who had been with her in the cast of "The Women." Margalo complimented her upon her reduced weight, and asked her how it was done. . . . "Exercise did it," Jacqueline confessed. "I just kept shaking my head from left to right." "That seems to be a wonderful way of exercise," said Miss Gillmore. "How often did you have to shake your head that way?" "Only," Miss Susan explained, "when the second helping came along."

THE AMERICAN FEDERATION of Actors now has the highest blood count of any union in the Nation. Five social registers now belong to it—Virginia Uppermer, Marion Pierce, Barbara Bannister, Eleanor French and Sally Clark. . . . That organization last endorsed the candidacy of Leon Fischel—not because he fathered the minimum wage law for women and children in this State. . . . But because he once acted in "The Dybbuk." . . . "A Man to Remember," now at the Rivoli, is highly recommended. Director Garson Kanin deserves the credit. . . . During their separation, the actress learned how to drive a car, and Lulu Rainer learned how to fly a plane. They now have a pact—Lulu never is to ride in a car driven by her husband. . . . who won't fly in a plane piloted by Lulu.

ARCHIE STEWART'S confession is the one which solved the $427,000 Rubel armored-car robbery. . . . Stewart was a familiar figure in the Broadway cafes until he was in an auto accident which resulted in a disfigurement of his face. For two months he wore bandages around his chin and ears until the wounds healed. . . . He was most lamentful of this deterrent to his amorous pursuits—but it saved his life. He was arrested in a murder case and released—when the witnesses who issued identifying statements described Stewart perfectly—except that they said he had a clean, unmarked face.

Minstrel Man

Comic Is 'All Wet' But Still a Hero

Being a hero was wet business for Ray Bolger. He and Judy Garland were singing their opening duet, as Dorothy and the Scarecrow, in "The Wizard of Oz." One of the big Technicolor lights directly over them developed a short circuit. There was a sharp report and a shower of sparks dropped.

Bolger quickly bent over Miss Garland, shielding her from the sparks, which dropped on the back of his straw-padded scarecrow costume.

Almost simultaneously, Director Richard Thorpe seized fire extinguisher while Bolger is in the inflammable straw costume, and soaked the dancing comedian from head to foot.

A duplicate costume was used to finish the scene.

Maureen Showing Tarzan Prowess

"Spring Madness" at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is not without its Tarzan influence. Maureen O'Sullivan, who is featured opposite Lew Ayres, is required to do a scene with dialogue while performing on swinging rings. As Tarzan's official mate, Maureen was taken in hand by Johnny Weissmuller, who has been coaching her on the rings two hours daily at the Hollywood Athletic Club.

Further Tarzan touch is the fact that Jacqueline Wells, also a Tarzan mate, having played opposite Buster Crabbe in the serial production, also is in the cast. Maureen and Jacqueline, however, are college girls in the new picture.

'The Sea Gull' Superbly Done At National

The Lunts Triumph
Cast Is Flawless
A Capacity House

By Nelson B. Bell

"THE SEA GULL," The Theater Guild presents the Alfred Landry-Pontenne production of Chekhov's drama in four acts, through November 12, at the National Theater. . . . The play is directed by Robert Minton; settings and costumes designed by Robert Demond Jones, of the National Theater.

"THE SEA GULL," Chekhov's grim drama of heartbreak, disillusionment and tragic frustration, superbly acted by Alfred Lunt, Lynn Fontanne and a cast that has attained perfection through long association, last evening won the tribute of breathless silence in its most poignant passages, and an expression of profound appreciation at its end, from a capacity audience of discriminating play-lovers assembled in the National Theater.

Somber in its photographic reflection of a small group of men and women at war with life and their individual destinies, the four acts of the play are lightened only occasionally by deft and swift touches of a satirical and bitter humor. They are, however, deeply shot through with futility, hopelessness and the anguish of the human heart. The tragedy of shattered dreams, unrequited love and fruitless groping for the will-o'-the-wisp of happiness embraces youth and old age as well as the years between. The torment of the world's woes has been swept into the narrow cycle of events punctuating the lives of the dozen characters comprising the dramatic personae of the drama, and they have been woven into a complex fabric of eloquent speech and vital force that makes for a tense and eager evening in the theater.

At First a Failure
First produced in St. Petersburg (Leningrad) in 1896, "The Sea Gull," second play from the pen of the dramatist who was educated for the practice of medicine, was an immediate success. . . . Revived two years later by the Moscow Art Theater, under the direction of Stanislavsky, it was accepted with enthusiasm as a work of penetrating insight and tragic power. . . . It has since been acted by many stars of the American stage but probably never produced with more admirable balance, greater skill in reading or more effective setting, than by Mr. Lunt and Miss Fontanne under the auspices of the Theater Guild.

In the role of Boris Trigorin, the eminently successful author, unaware of any of the benefits of his wide fame and great popularity, Alfred Lunt plays the part of a debonair and ruthless philanthropist, impatient for a more substantial success in the field of letters than he has won. Miss Fontanne assumes the role of the vainglorious and temperamental actress, Irina Arkadina, jealous of her stellar eminence and baffled by the sudden rebellion of her son, neurotic dreamer and idealist, against all of the counterfeit glories of the world in which she lives. Mr. Lunt portrays his character with utmost suavity and repression; Miss Fontanne hers with proper flamboyance, imperiousness and petulance.

Every Role Ably Played

But these contrasted etchings by no means dominate the play's gallery of striking portraits. The rich honors of the evening are distributed with unique impartiality among all the members of the cast. In the disturbingly morose roles of Constantine Trepleff, Irina's tragically ineffectual son, and Nina, the ingenious young daughter of a wealthy landowner, who longs for a career on the stage and is deluded into disaster by her love for Trigorin, Richard Whorf and Uta Hagen contribute brilliant performances to an ensemble thickly studied with them, Mr. Whorf is the personification of youthful bewilderment and rebellion; Miss Hagen

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Calif., Nov. 7.—Selnick doesn't make many pictures, but when he does crack out with one it's good. Everyone who sees "You Can't Take It With You" will feel just that way about the picture's over-the-top success. It's not sticky. It reveals a bumper crop of the best actors in showland, including three new ones. Imagine beginning your career at HEDDA HOPPER.

It's so adorable that everyone wanted to take you home. Well, that's Minnie Dupree. I love Maude Adams, but I'm certain she couldn't have done it any better. If as well. Richard Carlson is a grand he-man. And Pauline Goddard has the kind of implish vitality that will carry practically anything, even that big "Wind."

Coming out of the theater, I ran into Janet Gaynor, who said: "Tell me, Hedda, is it really good?" I thought she was kidding, but she said it was the most difficult thing she'd ever done, playing a hard-boiled parasite and trying to show a heart of gold underneath. Just then Merle Oberon, Mrs. Darryl Zanuck, Mrs. Louis B. Mayer and Mrs. Bill Goetz rushed up to hug her. Merle was still wiping tears from her eyes—Janet's question was answered.

It has touched that Frank Capra and all directors would be proud of, proving that Richard Wallace has struck his stride again. Perhaps you don't remember, but he was the director who was so seriously injured in an airplane accident a few years back, but had such faith and courage, that he not only fought his way back to health, but the top wrung of the directors' ladder.

Omar Khan gives us the kind of clothes women like their chaps wear. And the writer put in a reason for them. Franz Waxman's music added, counterpoint to the whole thing.

Here's a tip for the restless sex. Rudy Vallee is arriving in town girls. Line forms at the right, and don't say I didn't tell you.

The luncheon Irene Castle and Betty Davis had the other day at the Warner Brothers Studio was a prelude to more benefits for our best friends—the dogs. The next ball they give for them will be something.

Bette tells me she expects to build a new house next year, but she hasn't found the right location yet. There was a note of sadness about her, which made me feel she's still in love with Ham, but I don't believe they'll ever get together again.

It's always a joy to watch Bette work. This time she was doing a scene with Humphrey Bogart in "Dark Victory." She suggested that he take hold of her shoulder instead of her forearm, which added strength to the situation. She was wearing a sex-revealing dress of white satin and tulle, and thought that a cable coat, which must have cost $25,000, I added if she over that Jack Warner would give it to her as a bonus. She said, "No, but you might suggest it."

The Warner boys laughed at the struggle with the officials of the Virginia Military Academy over the publicity for "Brother Rat." Said old Virginia didn't like its face and name peering out of every magazine. Of course, it's hard for Hollywood to understand that viewpoint. They're used to giving. Why, I went over to get news and came home with three pheasants, and an invitation to fly to Oklahoma City and back. If they'd asked an hour sooner, I'd have gone, too.

I saw luscious Hurrell photographs of Ann Sheridan, who's been in the sex-appetizing class. Olivia de Havilland spent her days on the "Dark Victory" set watching George Brent. Marie Wilson has left on a personal appearance tour. And there's no truth in the report that they'll make a picture called "Yes, My Darling Four Daughters."

If Ben Schulberg, who's producing "The Life of Caruso," wants some real data on him, he might get it from Mrs. Caruso, Jr., who's to be found on the fourth floor of the an exquisite symbol of the crushing disillusionment that can be metamorphosed into a shining faith in the hearts of courageous women. Nor are these all. Sydney Greenstreet creates a perfect embodiment of the retired State Councillor, who drifted at a snail's pace and reached the end of his years with his life still unfulfilled. And Margaret Waller makes no less compelling her role of Masha, who embraces marriage to escape from love. John Barclay adds to the play's acting eminence as the philosophical Dr. Dorin and Edith King George Meader and S. Thomas Gomez further magnify the importance of judicious casting.

In their simple severity, the settings of the four acts, all laid on the country estate of the Sorins, are in consonance with the mood and purpose of the play. . . . Chekhov solves the problems of his characters with no great finality. He does, however, with the assistance of no able acting group, solve the problem of the thoughtful theatergoer in quest of a memorable experience in the playhouse.

Way to Go Home

Ann Sheridan supplies her friends with windshield stickers bearing complete directions to her home.

AMUSEMENTS

NATIONAL
The Theater Guild presents
"THE SEA GULL"
Produced by Alfred Landry-Pontenne
Directed by Robert Minton
Och. Revs. $1.00, $1.50, $2.00, $2.50, $3.00, $3.50, $4.00, $4.50, $5.00, $5.50, $6.00, $6.50, $7.00, $7.50, $8.00, $8.50, $9.00, $9.50, $10.00, $10.50, $11.00, $11.50, $12.00, $12.50, $13.00, $13.50, $14.00, $14.50, $15.00, $15.50, $16.00, $16.50, $17.00, $17.50, $18.00, $18.50, $19.00, $19.50, $20.00, $20.50, $21.00, $21.50, $22.00, $22.50, $23.00, $23.50, $24.00, $24.50, $25.00, $25.50, $26.00, $26.50, $27.00, $27.50, $28.00, $28.50, $29.00, $29.50, $30.00, $30.50, $31.00, $31.50, $32.00, $32.50, $33.00, $33.50, $34.00, $34.50, $35.00, $35.50, $36.00, $36.50, $37.00, $37.50, $38.00, $38.50, $39.00, $39.50, $40.00, $40.50, $41.00, $41.50, $42.00, $42.50, $43.00, $43.50, $44.00, $44.50, $45.00, $45.50, $46.00, $46.50, $47.00, $47.50, $48.00, $48.50, $49.00, $49.50, $50.00, $50.50, $51.00, $51.50, $52.00, $52.50, $53.00, $53.50, $54.00, $54.50, $55.00, $55.50, $56.00, $56.50, $57.00, $57.50, $58.00, $58.50, $59.00, $59.50, $60.00, $60.50, $61.00, $61.50, $62.00, $62.50, $63.00, $63.50, $64.00, $64.50, $65.00, $65.50, $66.00, $66.50, $67.00, $67.50, $68.00, $68.50, $69.00, $69.50, $70.00, $70.50, $71.00, $71.50, $72.00, $72.50, $73.00, $73.50, $74.00, $74.50, $75.00, $75.50, $76.00, $76.50, $77.00, $77.50, $78.00, $78.50, $79.00, $79.50, $80.00, $80.50, $81.00, $81.50, $82.00, $82.50, $83.00, $83.50, $84.00, $84.50, $85.00, $85.50, $86.00, $86.50, $87.00, $87.50, $88.00, $88.50, $89.00, $89.50, $90.00, $90.50, $91.00, $91.50, $92.00, $92.50, $93.00, $93.50, $94.00, $94.50, $95.00, $95.50, $96.00, $96.50, $97.00, $97.50, $98.00, $98.50, $99.00, $99.50, $100.00, $100.50, $101.00, $101.50, $102.00, $102.50, $103.00, $103.50, $104.00, $104.50, $105.00, $105.50, $106.00, $106.50, $107.00, $107.50, $108.00, $108.50, $109.00, $109.50, $110.00, $110.50, $111.00, $111.50, $112.00, $112.50, $113.00, $113.50, $114.00, $114.50, $115.00, $115.50, $116.00, $116.50, $117.00, $117.50, $118.00, $118.50, $119.00, $119.50, $120.00, $120.50, $121.00, $121.50, $122.00, $122.50, $123.00, $123.50, $124.00, $124.50, $125.00, $125.50, $126.00, $126.50, $127.00, $127.50, $128.00, $128.50, $129.00, $129.50, $130.00, $130.50, $131.00, $131.50, $132.00, $132.50, $133.00, $133.50, $134.00, $134.50, $135.00, $135.50, $136.00, $136.50, $137.00, $137.50, $138.00, $138.50, $139.00, $139.50, $140.00, $140.50, $141.00, $141.50, $142.00, $142.50, $143.00, $143.50, $144.00, $144.50, $145.00, $145.50, $146.00, $146.50, $147.00, $147.50, $148.00, $148.50, $149.00, $149.50, $150.00, $150.50, $151.00, $151.50, $152.00, $152.50, $153.00, $153.50, $154.00, $154.50, $155.00, $155.50, $156.00, $156.50, $157.00, $157.50, $158.00, $158.50, $159.00, $159.50, $160.00, $160.50, $161.00, $161.50, $162.00, $162.50, $163.00, $163.50, $164.00, $164.50, $165.00, $165.50, $166.00, $166.50, $167.00, $167.50, $168.00, $168.50, $169.00, $169.50, $170.00, $170.50, $171.00, $171.50, $172.00, $172.50, $173.00, $173.50, $174.00, $174.50, $175.00, $175.50, $176.00, $176.50, $177.00, $177.50, $178.00, $178.50, $179.00, $179.50, $180.00, $180.50, $181.00, $181.50, $182.00, $182.50, $183.00, $183.50, $184.00, $184.50, $185.00, $185.50, $186.00, $186.50, $187.00, $187.50, $188.00, $188.50, $189.00, $189.50, $190.00, $190.50, $191.00, $191.50, $192.00, $192.50, $193.00, $193.50, $194.00, $194.50, $195.00, $195.50, $196.00, $196.50, $197.00, $197.50, $198.00, $198.50, $199.00, $199.50, $200.00, $200.50, $201.00, $201.50, $202.00, $202.50, $203.00, $203.50, $204.00, $204.50, $205.00, $205.50, $206.00, $206.50, $207.00, $207.50, $208.00, $208.50, $209.00, $209.50, $210.00, $210.50, $211.00, $211.50, $212.00, $212.50, $213.00, $213.50, $214.00, $214.50, $215.00, $215.50, $216.00, $216.50, $217.00, $217.50, $218.00, $218.50, $219.00, $219.50, $220.00, $220.50, $221.00, $221.50, $222.00, $222.50, $223.00, $223.50, $224.00, $224.50, $225.00, $225.50, $226.00, $226.50, $227.00, $227.50, $228.00, $228.50, $229.00, $229.50, $230.00, $230.50, $231.00, $231.50, $232.00, $232.50, $233.00, $233.50, $234.00, $234.50, $235.00, $235.50, $236.00, $236.50, $237.00, $237.50, $238.00, $238.50, $239.00, $239.50, $240.00, $240.50, $241.00, $241.50, $242.00, $242.50, $243.00, $243.50, $244.00, $244.50, $245.00, $245.50, $246.00, $246.50, $247.00, $247.50, $248.00, $248.50, $249.00, $249.50, $250.00, $250.50, $251.00, $251.50, $252.00, $252.50, $253.00, $253.50, $254.00, $254.50, $255.00, $255.50, $256.00, $256.50, $257.00, $257.50, $258.00, $258.50, $259.00, $259.50, $260.00, $260.50, $261.00, $261.50, $262.00, $262.50, $263.

Text of Dorothy Thompson's Speech Opening District Drive for Community Chest

Giving Civic Duty The Democratic Way Repaid by Freedom

Following is the text of Dorothy Thompson's address at the Community Chest rally last night:

All over this country tonight a campaign is starting. We have become accustomed to this campaign, so it does not seem to us to be remarkable. But it is remarkable. It is uniquely American and uniquely democratic. It is given a covering phrase to describe it. It is called a mobilization—a mobilization for human needs. I would call it a mobilization of human decency. That is what makes it peculiar. God knows mobilizations have become commonplace. We have in our times, become acquainted with the mobilized nation, with the community constantly and continually prepared for war. Within the last weeks we have seen whole peoples called to arms, and under threat of them, we have seen a strange new type of peace—the investigation in the name of peace of a reign of terror. We have seen people mobilized to get something to get territory—we have seen them gathered blindly, led blindly. We have seen other peoples mobilized, mobilized blindly—only to discover, a few days later, that they have been mobilized in order to give something away. We have seen that did not belong to them. We have seen hate mobilized, ambition mobilized, fear mobilized.

Arises From Bottom

But this mobilization, that begins all over America, is different. It does not come from the top, but from the bottom—in every community, throughout the nation. It is not animated by ambition, or hatred, or fear, but by love. Its object is not to take something, but to give something. It is not ordered, it is not compelled—it is voluntary. It appeals neither to pride nor to fear, but solely and exclusively to good will. It does not emphasize the State, which is power, but the community, which is co-operation. In March the tax collector comes around, and most of us grumble, for grumbling at taxes is the historic and traditional prerogative of free people, exercised even when they know that those taxes are essential for protection, for securing the defense, insuring justice, and promoting the general welfare. Yes, we grumble. And then in November we tax ourselves—not according to our net profits of the year, but according to the generosity of our hearts, to do the things that no government or State, is ever completely able to do, to do the things that keen eyes and warm hearts see and feel must be done, to support the movements that have sprung into existence spontaneously, sometimes because just one man or woman saw a social need that had to be met. And this giving of something more than is demanded, this contribution of the individual to his society over and above what can be compelled, is of the very essence of democracy, which is a unique form of government, in that it is founded, not on force, but on the very thing that impels this community chest movement—the belief that a society and a government can be founded in voluntary co-operation and rooted in mutual good will.

Test of Conscience

It may be that history will say that this kind of government made too lofty demands on poor human creatures. It may be that history will report that it was a most fragile form of society. If one surveys the whole history of the human race as we know it, we must record that for the greater part of it men have been held together in societies, not by free co-operation and mutual respect, but by concentrated and ruthless power. It may be that history will record that this thing that we call free democracy, and which we have tried, and never quite succeeded in achieving, was only a poet's dream, only a noble experiment. Or it may be that it will be called merely an experiment. But this much is certain: its survival power depends upon its nobility. It has no other ultimate authority except the people and the law they make. It has no other cohesive element than good will and human decency. It has no final ruler except the human conscience. That is what William Penn meant when he founded Pennsylvania on brotherly love, and uttered the words, "Either men accept the sovereignty of God, or they will be ruled by tyrants." Today, for some reason or other, there is hesitation among the sophisticated to speak the name of God; perhaps it is shame before Him. But one can put it another way. "Either we will be ruled by the collective conscience, or we will be ruled by force." That is the test of democracy.

And this Community Chest movement, initiated for this city, here tonight, is an annual appeal to and demonstration of the democratic conscience. It presses the realization that democracy is an experiment in friendship. Whatever our doubts of ourselves may be—and who does not have doubts in this revolutionary war world—we have in these days an opportunity to demonstrate our faith in the dream of one of the two or three greatest of American poets.

"I dreamed in a dream," said Walt Whitman, "I saw a city invincible to the attacks of the whole of the rest of the earth."

I dreamed that was the new city of Friends.

Nothing was greater than the quality of robust love. It leads the rest.

It was seen every hour in the actions of the men of that city.

And in all their looks and words.

I happen to believe in the poets... to believe in them more than in all the economists, politicians and planners of new social orders, for they, and they alone, express the vision of nations and of peoples; they dare to utter their most fantastic hopes, to articulate their faith.

And what city could one most hope to see become that City of Friends? This city, of course, the Capital of the Nation, the center of its news, the symbol of its unity, the center of its government.

I accepted the invitation to

DOROTHY THOMPSON

speak here tonight, and to open up your Community Chest campaign, because this particular campaign is more important than all the rest. Washington furnishes most of the front-page headlines today. What Washington does is an example and a symbol. So that it devolves upon the people of this district to do more than meet the needs of an average community; they ought to furnish the example for the country, to demonstrate that in the very city where is concentrated the most governmental power, is also concentrated the greatest voluntary effort and the most spontaneous generosity. I am afraid that you will have to furnish a yardstick, not only of good Government, but of good and happy community relationships.

All people have superstitions, and one of the oldest of them is the idea of the hostage to fortune, the idea of sacrifice in propitiation, the conception that unless gratitude is expressed, grace may be withdrawn. To many people, gratitude seems to be an outworn conception—perhaps because in this democracy we have placed so strong an emphasis on rights, and so weak an emphasis on responsibilities, seeming to forget that every right is attended by a reciprocal obligation. One of our oldest national festivals is that of Thanksgiving, one of the most universal prayers, Grace before meal. The Community Chest movement this year ought to be an expression of gratitude, for all of us, no matter what our station, have many things to be grateful for. Some of the things that we should be grateful for, are things that yesterday we took for granted, believing them inherent in the nature of things, as natural as the air we breathe.

It is a new experience that one wakes up in the morning and says, "I am thankful that I am still free. I am thankful that my government does not make spies out of my neighbors. I am thankful that my children are not taught in school to report my words at the luncheon table. I am thankful that my little boy is not taught to throw a hand grenade. I am thankful that I cannot be thrown into prison for what I have always thought were my best impulses. I am thankful that no permanent blight is cast over my life by the racial origins of one of my grandparents. I am thankful that my neighbors will judge me for what I am and what I do, and not for something over which I have no control." To keep these things which are very dear to me, I am willing to pay, and I know that one way in which I will keep them is by every expression of human solidarity. We shall not keep them if there is rank injustice; we shall not keep them unless there is gratitude for them, expressing itself in social responsibility.

A nation begins to decay when its democracy becomes so leveled and so mean that it precludes such conceptions as gratitude, loyalty, duty, reverence, dignity.

When I was a little girl I lived in a Methodist parsonage.

NEED HELP?

Use Post Want Ads For Quick Action!

When you find yourself stranded with loads of work to be done and need help quickly, use Post Want Ads. They get attention. And Post Ads bring help the same day because they're read the first thing in the morning. Only 38 cents for a two-line ad in The Post. Call

NATIONAL 4200

POST WANT ADS

We were poor—submarginal. I suppose one would say today, when life is reckoned in statistics, and the standard of living expressed in terms of cash income and vitamin consumption. My father never had an automobile, or a radio, and not always a bathroom. An orange was a treat. I had two dresses. I remember one for every day and one for Sundays, and mine were made over, at home, for my younger sister.

An overcoat for my father represented a family budget problem. There was no money for amusements—and not of course, as much canned amusement. My father's salary was $1,000 a year, or, in very good streaks of luck, $1,200.

Education was something you had to wangle for—in scholarships—work for, in more scholarships—and in summer vacations—waiting on tables, or taking some very badly paid office job. Yet my father, who came from the devastated areas of England, never got the wonder of this world, and he brought his children up to be grateful, first to be alive, life itself being a great and wonderful gift, and secondly to be happy to have been born in the widest, freest, most hopeful country on earth, and to believe in that country and to believe in work.

It seemed to him a cause for gratitude that we had a roof over our heads, three meals a day, and meat twice a week, sufficient clothes to be decent, and that none of us were born crippled or congenitally idiotic.

Our meals may have consisted—and often did—of mush and milk and apple sauce, or soup and bread—but I cannot remember when there was ever a time that there was not enough for an extra guest willing to take pot luck, and there almost always was an extra guest. And in good years and bad years, my father rigorously put aside 10 per cent of his income—litter—his charity. That $100 or $150 would have bought our household things which today are regarded as "necessities." But for my father, charity was a necessity.

It was the constant expression of his gratitude for freedom, for work for health, and the expression of his pity for the sick, and the weak, and the unlucky. As a child, I thought my father impractical and unselfish. I was still a young woman when he died, and it seemed to me remarkable that thousands came to his funeral—the funeral of a man who had always lived in small towns and preached, I suspect, rather dull sermons.

But when I was grown, I discovered that my father had given me and a great many other people something never figured by the Brookings Institution. He had made me actually glad to be alive, and conveyed to me the feeling, however illusory, that by and large the world was my friend. That was called the creation of confidence, and has, I have found, some ungraspable value.

I used the word "charity." That is another word that has grown meaner as it has grown older, cheapened from its original sense into meaning too often something that the rich give to the poor, perhaps out of bad conscience. Somehow, like democracy, it has come to be a weak word, perhaps it has been too often honored in the breach. But charity, Charitas, means tender-heartedness and is as truly translated by the word love as by any nonpossessive, nonself-seeking love. I seem to remember that I was forced to learn in my childhood that though one speaks with the tongue of men and of angels, and have the gift of prophecy, and give one's body to be burned, and is able to move mountains, and has not love, one is as a sounding brass and a clanging cymbal.

And perhaps the general brassiness and clanging noise of society in which we live is due to the fact that we have forgotten that the tallest buildings and the longest bridges and the most numerous motorcars and the most efficient governments are not the essence of civilization, but that it is determined by the mental and spiritual qualities of the people who compose it.

Charity is a product of sensitivity. If a democracy loses its sensitivity; if its people fall to be disturbed by their neighbors' wounds, by and by there will be no democracy. We shall all be treated according to our deserts by some self-appointed judges, and Portia told Shylock, in the "Merchant of Venice," how badly off we are if we get what we deserve.

Some realization of all this is back of the Community Chest movement. In the next days, all over this country, in hundreds of communities, and in this District, citizens will be asking other citizens to support the voluntary efforts of the people themselves to meet social needs. Some of these are immediate—food and clothing for people in want. No system of social security yet devised by any State has ever been adequate to meet all of these needs.

Even in such a totalitarian state as Germany, where the security of the people is spread through a network of insurances, most of them old and some of the new, the "Winter Help" has had to be organized. The difference between this form of assistance to the unfortunate and ours is that ours is not enforced. Neither is theirs, theoretically, but collections are made by men in uniform and not to give may be counted as treason to the state, so that charity is extorted by a vision of the probable results of niggardliness. To the Community Chest must be attributed the most hopeful efforts that have been made to rehabilitate into normal life men who have been in prison, that the first-time criminal may not become a confirmed criminal through sheer despair. Out of the funds which are raised will come money for the hospitalization of those who are unable to afford it without full or partial help. Some of the money will be spent for orphan asylums, settlement houses, boy and girl scouts, Y. M. C. A.'s and Y. W. C. A.'s work with delinquent children—rehabilitation work and preventive work as well—all the many spontaneous and voluntary social activities that give America its special character.

The Community Chest really belongs to the community, and its moneys are distributed without regard to politics, race, religious or social creeds, wholly on the basis of recognized needs—and they all the way from providing shoes and rubbers for school children whose parents are unable to keep them properly shod and their noses from dripping, to small and great things that are needed to keep a family together. Sometimes merely a suit of clothes for the head of a family is all the difference between his getting a job and failing to get it.

There is something also that should be said about these voluntary social service organizations. They have invariably been the organizations that have done the pioneering. Many of the charges

You, too, Will Like the "Leisure Liners"

There are many travelers who enjoy a 7 to 9 day trip to Europe... because of the extra dividends in

Fun, Rest,
Health and Money Saved

which a "Leisure Liner" of Cunard White Star affords. These large, steady ships... of 80,000 tons or more... the motorliners Georgic, Britannia, the Carinthia, Francis, Samaria, Seythia, Laconia... let you enjoy to the full all the shipboard pleasures, continental cuisine, suave service in the British manner for which Cunard White Star is famous. Or choose one of the friendly "A" Ships... sailing from Montreal.

NEXT "LEISURE LINER" SAILINGS

Seythia . . . Nov. 11
Georgic . . . Nov. 12
Laconia . . . Nov. 18
Carinthia . . . Nov. 26
Britannia . . . Nov. 26

NEXT EXPRESS SAILINGS

Queen Mary . Nov. 18
Queen Mary . Dec. 2
Aquitania . . Dec. 10
Queen Mary . Dec. 16
Aquitania . . Jan. 4

$159 up $1220 $930
CABIN CLASS TOURIST CLASS THIRD CLASS is all it costs to England,
Ireland and Scotland

In this "Leisure Liner", Samaria and Laconia
Christmas Sailings

8½ DAY CARINTHIA CRUISE
FROM NEW YORK, NOV. 16... $75 up
TO NASSAU, HAVANA

SEE YOUR TRAVEL AGENT

Let him tell you about the Cunard White Star, or ask Cunard
White Star, 1804 K St. N.W.,
Washington, D. C. District 7718
CHOOSE A "LEISURE LINER" OF

CUNARD WHITE STAR

FOR A DELIGHTFUL TRIP TO EUROPE

which are now taken over by the state were started by men of vision and warmth of heart, who saw a need and started to meet it without waiting for the cumbersome apparatus of the government. Governments made wars, but a few noble individuals, whose names we now all know—Henri Dunant, Florence Nightingale, Clara Barton—first introduced nursing and medical care onto battlefields.

Earthquakes, fires and floods have been repeaters in history, but it was private organization which first developed techniques to deal with them and lower their terrors and losses. We should never have had any social insurance if ministers and religious orders and social workers had not first started the investigation of social conditions, and devised organizations to ameliorate them. Government rarely undertakes anything in the social field which has not first been undertaken by individuals, and we owe to the pioneering efforts of private organizations the fact that our prisons are not dungeons, that a child is not treated as a criminal, and that an effort is being made to prevent disease, poverty and crime, instead of dealing with them when they have become an intolerable burden.

In the end we all share in the reward. For a child whose parents cannot afford medical care or are too ignorant to recognize symptoms, except as they are aided and educated by social workers, can start an epidemic which will spread to your child and to mine. The boy left on the streets to learn the ways of life can cost us all an unwilling penny when he grows up into a criminal... and can even threaten our lives. The club, the swimming pool, the settlement house recreation, is a cheap investment—if you want an argument in dollars and cents.

And there is another phase to this community chest movement. As Government becomes more and more centralized—as I believe it is bound to do, at least for a time—and more and more expert, the active participation of the citizen becomes less and less. He votes, but he does not govern himself in the sense that he used to do, in more simple and primitive times. It is therefore all the more necessary that he should be given the opportunity for active participation in the solution of social problems that remain outside of Government, in the fields where social experimentation continually goes on.

This week nearly 8,000 volunteers will be working in this drive, in this district alone. Throughout the country hundreds of thousands will be volunteering, and when the drive is over, and the moneys raised, volunteer workers, side by side with experts, will be working in the organizations that your contributions have made possible, thus vastly increasing the number of citizens participating in a solution of our social problems.

And out of the ranks of these workers, who work because of interest, devotion, and conscience will come in the future, as they have in the past, many of our most competent and incorruptible administrators of Government. In all free countries, the voluntary workers in social organizations have developed into our social scientists and often into our best civil servants.

Here in this district, you are asked to give $2,127,000 for 57 organizations of the free community, the value of whose services is unquestioned by a majority of your citizens. It is not a great deal of money to be distributed over a community of 600,000 people, amongst whom is much wealth and very much comfort. It is just four one-hundredths of your tax bill—and I warn you that if you don't pay it, it will eventually turn up on your tax bill anyhow, and you will be doing something out of conviction, the pleasure of generosity, which is one of the creative expressions of the ego—that ego have that peculiar pleasure of that has so many destructive expressions as well.

So, if you have a roof over your head, clothes on your back, food on the table, care and education for your children and work to do, give out of gratitude, for many have none of these things. If you have a child with straight limbs and rosy cheeks, give as a hostage to fortune, for you are one of the most fortunate of human beings and there are parents whose children are crooked and fragile and pale and lamed and who suffer the most awful of agonies, the agony of being unable to help one's own child. If you have never seen your child gasping through pneumonia as I saw mine do this summer... and recover... give as a thanks offering that no child may have pneumonia because his shoes are worn thin.

And if you are glad that you are still a free citizen of a rich democracy when the lives of democracies are at stake—give as a testimony that you wish to remain so. For the price of freedom is responsibility, and the basis of democracy is brotherly love.

QUALITY IS GOLDEN MILLER

Straight Rye Whiskey

A NEW HIGH IN QUALITY AT A NEW LOW IN PRICE

A "champion" in quality and value. Carefully distilled from the choicest grains, under the most rigid supervision. 100 PROOF—75¢ HALF PINT 1.30 PINT AND 2.75 QUART Distributed by WASHINGTON WHOLESALE LIQUOR CORP.

I'M SICK OF FURNACE TENDING ALREADY!

ONLY 9 DAYS LEFT- IN THIS BIG SALE

ONLY $188.55 BUYS AN Automatic GAS HEATING UNIT

SPECIAL EASY TERMS

Call DISTRICT 8500 TODAY FOR A FREE estimate of the cost for a whole season of AUTOMATIC GAS HEATING in your home.

WASHINGTON GAS LIGHT CO. • 411 10th St. N.W. • District 8500

The Washington Post

Registered in U. S. Patent Office

An Independent Newspaper.
(Published every day in the year.)

Eugene Meyer, Publisher.
Floyd R. Harrison, Comptroller.

The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to use for republication of all news dispatches credited to it or not otherwise credited in this paper and local news of spontaneous origin published herein. Rights of republication of all other matter herein are also reserved.

New York Office: 270 Madison Avenue
Chicago Office: 260 North Michigan Avenue

DELIVERED IN WASHINGTON
Daily, Sunday, 1 yr. $7.50 Daily, Sunday, 1 week: 15c
Daily only, 1 yr. $5.50 Daily only, 1 week: 10c
Sunday only, 1 yr. $3.00 Sunday only, per copy: 10c

BY MAIL—MARYLAND, VIRGINIA, WEST VIRGINIA AND NORTH CAROLINA
Daily and Sunday, 1 yr. $8.00 Daily only, 1 yr. $6.00
Sunday only, 1 yr. $3.50 Daily and Sunday, 1 week: 15c
Daily only, 1 week: 10c Sunday only, per copy: 10c

OTHER STATES, MEXICO AND CANADA
Daily and Sunday, 1 yr. $10.00 Daily only, 1 yr. $8.00
Sunday only, 1 yr. $5.00 Daily and Sunday, 1 week: 15c
Daily only, 1 week: 10c Sunday only, per copy: 10c

All Subscriptions by Mail Payable in Advance.
Entered at the Postoffice at Washington, D. C., as second-class mail matter.

TELEPHONE NATIONAL 4200.

Tuesday, November 8, 1938.

Better Public Service

One of the most potent factors in building up the merit system has been the accurate analyses and forthright statements of the National Civil Service Reform League. When this agency speaks the public may be certain that its criticism or advice will be impartial and sincerely aimed at improvement of the public service.

In the current annual report of the N. C. S. R. L., for example, President Roosevelt is warmly commended for his executive order extending civil service status to all nonpolicy-making positions not exempted by law. The President's order, the league points out, is a distinct advance over previous executive extensions, since noncompetitive examinations are required of incumbent employees before they can obtain the benefits of the merit system.

On the other hand, the board vigorously denounces existence of the spoils system in "the greatly expanding administrative agencies regulating and controlling our individual rights, privileges and possessions." It properly cites, as an example, the employment of attorneys, examiners and experts by the National Labor Relations Board, without regard to civil service rules. An agency exercising extensive power over the country's economic system cannot hope to free itself from suspicions of bias so long as the most important half of its staff is subject to the pressures inherent in the spoils system.

No less defensible is the continued exemption of deputy collectors of internal revenue from the system of competitive tests. As the N. C. S. R. L. points out, the 70 per cent increase in deputy collectors during the fiscal year 1937, accompanied by a slight decrease in the number of clerks, suggests that even this bad policy is being abused. These are vital administrative positions. To use them as political plums is to trifle with government in a dangerous way.

Democracy is put to a severe test whenever any great number of employees of the state are subject to political pressure by the party that happens to be in power. Realizing this peril, the N. C. S. R. L. asks that Government employees be prohibited from making contributions to any political party or campaign fund. Civil service employees would also be forbidden to take part in political activity. Recent findings of the Senate Campaign Expenditures Committee thoroughly confirm the wisdom of these recommendations.

What seems to be needed most of all in this field is a mobilization of support for reforms that are obviously desirable. The Civil Service Reform League has done an excellent job of analyzing the weaknesses of the Government's personnel system. In many cases it has also helped to stimulate public officials to remedial action. Increasing emphasis on this phase of its work seems to be essential if the glaring deficiencies and defects still apparent in the Federal personnel system are to be overcome.

On Using Local Talent

The question of employing local talent on District government projects has arisen in connection with the extension of sewers to purify Rock Creek and other streams. According to J. B. Gordon, District sanitary engineer, first consideration is ordinarily given to local firms in planning District improvements. But indications are that the Commissioners intend to pass over Washington engineers in this instance.

The attitude of the Commissioners stems from the fact that a special board of engineers made a study of these stream purification projects in 1934 as a PWA project. No member of that board is associated with the local firms seeking this assignment. Especially in view of the fact that speed is essential to secure PWA funds, the desire of the Commissioners to employ some of the experts who conducted this survey can be readily understood.

But it is necessary to ignore the local firms to secure the service of engineers who composed the special board? Several Washington firms have offered their services jointly so as to make certain that the work would not lag. Moreover, they have offered to associate themselves with any outside experts that might be recommended by the Commissioners.

This suggestion appears to be reasonable. If it can be used as the basis for a compromise, competent engineering service would undoubtedly be secured without establishing an unfortunate precedent.

Russia Takes Stock

Twenty-one years after the successful seizure of power by the Bolsheviks, Soviet Russia finds her international position very much what it was in 1917. As at the moment of the regime's coming of age, isolation is again Russia's lot, even as it was in the years following the November revolution.

In the intervening period the pendulum of Soviet foreign policy has swung from one extreme to the other and back again. The original period of isolation lasted for years. The November revolution was tantamount to a declaration of war against all capitalist governments. Some of these retaliated by actively intervening on behalf of Russian elements seeking to overthrow the rule of Lenin. And while, by 1922, all such efforts were revealed as utter failures, Soviet Russia's isolation, broken only by the establishment of a common front with Germany, then also a pariah, continued for some years longer.

The change in Soviet foreign policy came with Japan's attack on China and Hitler's accession to power in Germany. To Russia's leaders, those developments envisaged an ultimate attack on the U. S. S. R. As a consequence the hostility previously shown toward such capitalist nations as France and Great Britain was temporarily abandoned in favor of co-operative action with them against the potential aggressors. To that end, Russia joined the League of Nations, up to then an object of Communist vituperation; made alliances with France and Czechoslovakia and shelved the world revolution program for one of promoting popular fronts against fascism.

This policy, summarized in Litvinov's famous phrase that "peace is indivisible," is now in ruins. At Munich Russia was left out in the cold and the concert of Europe established there as the new instrument of European appeasement included no representative of the Soviet union. Moreover, with Hitler astride Czechoslovakia, Germany now has a stepping stone toward Russia which, in "Mein Kampf" is specifically indicated as the goal of Nazidom's policy of continental expansion.

Whether Hitler will actually move east, in an effort to encompass the wheat fields and the mineral resources of the Ukraine, or pursue the older Drang Nach Osten policy symbolized before the war in the Berlin-Bagdad Railway project, is far from clear. Obviously the Soviet leaders have to consider both possibilities. To prevent the first from becoming a reality the Soviet union must strengthen its defenses. It may also return to the former policy of world revolution, a step possibly foreshadowed in the statement of Premier Molotov that "we must strengthen our ties with the working class abroad." But the possibility of a deal between the Soviet and Nazi dictatorships that would defeat the Nazi steamroller for the Ukraine is also by no means out of the question.

It is an interesting fact that despite his bitter antagonism to bolshevism, one of Hitler's first acts in the international sphere was to renew the 1926 treaty with Russia. That treaty stemmed directly from the Rappallo treaty of 1922 by which the Soviet union and Weimar Germany made common cause against a hostile world. Even though, for the moment, continued Russo-German hostility is more likely than a rapprochement between these nations, the latter development can by no means be ruled out.

Thus Russia remains an enigma. Cut off from Europe, she also must reckon with the hostility and the ambitions of Japan. Lacking unity and harmony within her far-flung borders, she may become a prey to the aggressors. The successive purges clearly indicate that all is not well in Russia. However, the fact that the regime has managed to surmount plots and conspiracies whose existence it has itself publicized indicates that any belief in an imminent breakdown of the Bolshevik experiment is most far-fetched.

The Job At Rockville

The rank and file of citizens in Montgomery County probably have little interest in the eleventh-hour effort to make political capital out of the proposed survey of that county's government. But they have every reason to be intensely interested in the signing of a contract designed to initiate modernization of their local agencies of community service.

As in many other counties throughout the Nation, the governmental machinery in operation at Rockville is both obsolete and inefficient. A thorough overhauling, with expert guidance, is the most vital issue confronting this rapidly growing political unit.

Montgomery County is no longer a rural area with few urgent governmental problems. It now includes many residential sections that are really a part of Greater Washington. These urbanized communities are daily increasing their demands for various types of community service. In many respects the character of the county has changed. And more extensive development along similar lines may be expected as Washington's suburbs are extended farther into Maryland.

Modernization of the county government to keep pace with these changes is essential. Businesslike organization and procedure must be substituted for the haphazard and loosely controlled system now in operation. While increasing efficiency and distributing the cost of local government more equitably, it should also be possible to close up any existing loopholes for graft and favoritism.

The fact that this study is sponsored by the Montgomery County Civic Federation gives assurance that its objective is non-partisan. Since all members of the Board of Commissioners are now pledged to assign the task to the Brookings Institution, it may be assumed that an expert and impartial survey will be made. That is cause for real gratification, without regard for party lines.

It is still a mystery why the majority members of the board refused to sign a contract with the Brookings Institution last week, after having approved the study and an appropriation of $5,000 to finance it. Since both parties had endorsed the proposal, final action by the board could just as well have been taken before the election. However, the current scramble for political advantage is of very little concern. The positive assurance from both sides that the survey will be made is vitally important.

New-World Unity

At Montevideo in 1933, and at Buenos Aires three years later, real progress was made by the 21 New World republics in perfecting and strengthening the peace machinery of this hemisphere.

The constructive result of these labors is apparent in the fact that during the past two years a number of difficult boundary disputes have been submitted to arbitration. Even the thorny Chaco problem, which led Bolivia and Paraguay into a bloody and suicidal war, has now been satisfactorily settled.

But even as possibilities of internecine warfare in this hemisphere have diminished the chances of attack on the territory of American republics from without have increased. The spirit of aggression is abroad in the world and there is no telling where it will strike next. Latin America, with its vast and still largely untapped resources, cannot be regarded as completely outside the scope of totalitarian ambitions.

At the Lima conference, when it convenes on December 9, the nations of the Americas will face a double task. Efforts will continue along the path laid down at Montevideo and Buenos Aires, to strengthen the spirit of co-operation and good will which now marks the relations of the countries in this hemisphere, to strive further to eliminate forever potential causes of war in the New World.

But that procedure alone is no longer enough. Developments in Europe and Asia during recent months have thrown the Americas upon themselves. While these events have tended to emphasize the interdependence of the 21 republics of this hemisphere, they have also made it peremptory to translate realization of this fact into measures of mutual defense. As Undersecretary Welles pointed out in his radio speech Sunday: "Our respective freedom, independence and future welfare may depend upon our continued solidarity."

Already, one line of possible action has been laid down. At Buenos Aires the delegates proclaimed that any threat to the peace of any one of the American republics is a threat to the peace of all of them. Immediate joint consultation was agreed upon as essential.

As the richest and most powerful of the New World nations, the United States has a singularly important role to play. For more than a century the Monroe Doctrine has never been seriously challenged. There is no longer the same certainty that it will continue to go unchallenged. That is why the strengthening of an American defense system is seen as a vital necessity.

The United States Government recently deeded 200,000 acres of land to an Indian tribe, without asking for the return of the beads.

"A large number of men would quit their wives if they weren't cowards," declares a psychologist. Only the brave desert the fair, eh, doc?

Overworked Words

From the Minneapolis Tribune.
The ten most overworked words in the United States and those responsible for their abuse have been recorded by Wilfred J. Funk, dictionary publisher and editor. They are:

1—Okay: Children and shop girls. 2—Terrific: All persons exposed to Hollywood for more than 24 hours. 3—Lousy: Same as 2. 4—Contact: Advertising workers. 5—Definitely: Society. 6—Gal: Broadwayite. 7—Racket: Tradesmen. 8—Swell: Interior decorators. 9—Impact: Columnists and commentators. 10—Honey: Stock brokers.

Anyone who rides the street cars or elevators or listens inadvertently to sidewalk conversations can easily supplement Mr. Funk's list. "Cute," "marvelous," "really!" and the long popular "kid" are only a few examples of other words that are cruelly overworked. An interesting record might also be compiled by the analytical-minded of words that have been underworked for some time. "Walk" and "work," for instance, are heard less than in other days. "Grit" and "pluck" are not as common as in the era of Horatio Alger fiction. As for "thrift," we encounter it much less often—particularly when politicians meet.

Marching Down The Rainbow

From the Chattanooga News.

Letters to the Editor

Support The Red Cross

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Since it is more difficult to see things clearly when we are excited than when we are calm, and since the whole world is far more excited today than ever, we should not be surprised to find later on that our judgments have not been free from serious mistakes.

This is especially true when we endeavor to form opinions concerning Asia, and especially China and Japan, where differences in psychology and in ways of life render the window panes almost opaque. Concerning Asia, we might well begin by saying, "All I know is that I know nothing," and upon this clean slate begin to write our knowledge.

One thing we may be sure of, however, namely, that just as all human beings have the same general form, even so all hearts respond to real proof of brotherhood. The Red Cross, for example, speaks a language everyone understands; and whatever good works we may do through the Red Cross must follow us, be future history what it may. Do we doubt that the suffering in China (and Japan, also) is vast beyond our comprehension? Then what better can we do than support this great organization of ours which is engaged in the direct and immediate relief of sufferers?

Unlike wars, and even boycotts, relief for the distressed bears no fruits of hatred and evil toward us, but instead bears fruit of friendship, increasing trust and responsiveness. If we consider friendship among the greatest possessions, and if we really want friends among the nations, let our hearts have their full say through the Red Cross.

• BOLLING SOMERVILLE.
Norwood, Va., Nov. 2.

The New Community Chest Policy

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A communication signed by splendid citizens has recently reached me, in which I am advised that the Community Chest has adopted a "new policy." This policy is to encourage contributors to designate their preferences among the agencies to which their gifts with specific designations will affect Chest grants to agencies and that as much as 50 per cent of a subscriber's contribution may be designated to any one agency.

Thus far I have been requested to make designations to three different agencies. How many additional requests, if any, of the same nature may reach me between now and the conclusion of the Chest campaign. I do not know. If the requests addressed to me are addressed to all contributors, it is apparent that they cost thousands of dollars which would, or should, do more good if deposited in the treasury of the chest. Is this quite fair to the smaller and financially less able agencies who cannot circulate their work. But in practice they rebelled at the idea that any of their own money might go to organizations with which they were not in sympathy. They, therefore, penalized those which they presumably favored by refusing to make any contributions whatsoever.

It seemed important to emphasize to such potential contributors that the Chest is not like a foundation with a board of directors determining how funds shall be used, but is rather a channel through which contributors can give in the most economical and practical way to the agencies to which they wish their activities they would aid if they were separately solicited by the various social agencies.

"Sound Policy" states that he is a small contributor, because he is not well acquainted with the work of the many agencies in the Community Chest. An attempt has been made, by various means, to enable him to become better acquainted, and, it is hoped, correspondingly more generous, because it is the constant experience of those active in social work that real generosity only is based upon some knowledge of what is accomplished by the money contributed. There is real danger that a blanket gift, made with the sense that it is the right thing to do, but without any great urgency of interest in the needs of the contributor who signs himself "Sound Policy." There is sound basis for his argument in favor of a pool from which a conscientious and well-informed volunteer budget committee would determine the relative needs of the member agencies.

But the emphasis upon designations was dictated by two considerations: (1) An increasing number of people were forgetting that the Chest is a federation of agencies, each of which solicited its own funds before the federation was formed, but found it quite expensive both in time and money to carry on the perpetual search for support, and were tending to think of the Chest as a single organization

Railroad Reorganization

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I see that President Roosevelt, the high salaried officials of the railroads, and labor, are about to settle financial troubles of American railroads.

Amendment of the existing bankruptcy act to permit speedy railroad reorganization by forcing on security holders of the railroads either the choice of accepting devaluated bonds, etc., in exchange for their present one, or complete loss, is the grandiose plan that the master-minds now propose to keep the rails from submerging.

In other words the President and his agents have decreed that the American investor is the lad that must take the count in the matter of railroad reorganization. Undoubtedly millions of dollars of junior securities will be wiped out. In the election campaigns throughout the States, Congressmen explain that this simply means that Wall Street will take the beating, but actually hundreds of thousands of persons represented by insurance companies heavily invested in railroad bonds will pay for the wages which the New Deal insists must be paid to labor, regardless of whether the railroads can earn the wages.

There are plenty of businessmen and small investors, too, throughout America that have no dealings whatsoever with the mythical Wall Street bogeyman, who will be made the victims of New Deal political manipulation in this great problem.

The very audacity of an administration capitalizing one class against another is as patent as a clear sky in this matter for those that care to inquire as to what are the real facts. The idea that labor is party to wiping out such obligations is a case of giving nothing but take from the other fellow!

HARRY W. RANDOLPH.
Washington, Nov. 5.

Gravelly Point Airport

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Post of October 28 brings bad news to those who use the Mount Vernon Memorial Highway, not only because of the despicable beauty which will be affected by the plan of the proposed airport, but also because of dangers introduced in the layout.

When Gravelly Point was first talked of for an airport, we were glad to note that the plan was sanctioned, it was condemned by the military authorities as an interference with the military needs of the Bolling Field across the Potomac and the radio testing station to the south of it.

The beautiful views of the Potomac River from the highway would be seriously affected by the establishment of the air field. In raising the field above high-water mark, it would make the river appear very narrow and distant.

The map shown in the "Final Plan" in the above-mentioned issue is worse so far as river view is concerned than in the previous proposal, and the proposed moving of the map to point (7) brings it within a few hundred feet of the Potomac railway yards. The latter already is an eyesore and smoke of the yards a detriment to the effect of which will be greatly increased by the proposed move.

The position of the field will be a serious element of danger. Automobiles will inevitably stop to see take-offs and landings. The highway will be greatly increased by having four new branches to and from it; one near the railway bridge, another near (3), another to (4) and still another pair near (1). Does the public have no way of expressing its opinion, as before Congressional committee, and not be subject to a dictatorial decision which involves the taxpayers' money? GEORGE S. RICE.
Alexandria, Va., Oct. 29.

The Post Impressionist

Day Coach

WE WERE all sealed in the same capsule and maintained at an even temperature. There was not so much resignation as is usual with train passengers, perhaps because of the inordinate number of children present—out of all proportion, I should have said, to the falling birth rate. But then, this train was coming up from the South, from the belt which eminent sociologists and statisticians have ably demonstrated, with charts and shaded maps, to be the incubator of our surplus manpower.

As we wound through the mountains the night nosed into us, flattened against our windows and blackened them out—turned them into dark mirrors in which our narrow world was dimly reflected. And in this narrow world it was bedtime—according to the conductor's watch. But this, alas, was a day coach and the railroad was obviously determined to keep it a day coach no matter what the hour. The huge lamps along the top of the car were cruel, unblinking dragon-eyes that searched out every child and every nook and cranny wherein it might hide.

It was the second night of the baby across the aisle. Since he was a hardened veteran, he turned in early. His mother had tried to rig up a little shelter of newspapers into a sort of tent. The idea was to shield his face from the overhead glare, but the tent wouldn't stay up. But in spite of his rumbling tent and the hard, white light that brought out his little dough face like a museum piece, he slept with a detachment and serenity that were enviable.

Down at the end of the coach on the long seat, their legs sprawled in various directions, slept four lovely little golden-haired girls, like princesses in a fairy tale. In the corner of the seat, down up in a newspaper which had been open at one end, were the remains of their supper—chicken bones, bread crusts, orange peel. These little girls had feasted well. Their mother held her hat over the tiniest of them, shading her face.

It was from the willing, everlasting glare that everybody was seeking to retreat. The old gentleman down the aisle was sleeping under a copy of Western Stories, which covered his upturned face like the roof of a pagoda. His thrown-back hand waved gently with the motion of the train. Cowpunchers, no doubt, loped rhythmically through his dreams. A young couple slept with their faces buried in each other's arms. Many hat brims touched many chins.

One little girl traveling with her father was determined not to give in. She was about 2 years old and wore pigtail which nobody undid for the night. It was way past her bedtime and she was a kidnaped, were showing signs of nervousness. He had provided himself with enough toys to give her a new one every 30 miles or so, but now these had given out. They lay on the seat and floor completely demolished—chewed crayons, torn books, a battered jumping-jack.

She refused to lie on the pillow he had rented for her, but made herself a little bed with his coat and a piece of wrapping paper, but it was too artificial and she wouldn't like play-acting. She wouldn't stay in it very long at a time.

The train was due in Washington at 11 a. m. At 10 she began to cry, at 11 she was screaming. Her father took her in his arms and made a futile march up and down the aisle for what must have been at least a 50-mile run, but her screams were as incessant as the clack of the wheels. One woman stage-whispered that the man was a kidnaper—that anything could happen right under your nose these days.

By midnight the whole coach was astir, hunting aspirin, giving advice. The father held his squirming child, thanked people blankly. The poor fellow looked pretty well whipped. Finally the conductor was persuaded to unscrew the little bulb in the passageway by the ice water faucet. Our dragon-world was bereft of at least one of its demonic eyes, and father and child retreated to the dimmed sanctuaries—out of sight but not out of hearing.

I was bringing home a Sally Rand doll bedecked in many-colored feathers. I had held out for two hours against a willing generosity, knowing my sad plight if I arrived home giftless. But at last I rooted it out of my suitcase and took it to the screaming child, certain that such a brilliant gift must do the trick.

I found father and child in the semi-darkness of the passageway, standing by the ice-water faucet. The little girl held a paper cup and screamed for water. Each time her father filled her cup she dashed the water on the floor where there was already a huge puddle. He filled it again and again, but he looked on with the desperation of the sorcerer's apprentice as the puddle grew and grew. I presented my doll, half-heartedly now, and it was immediately tossed on the floor, where somebody coming for water stepped on its celluloid stomach and smashed it. It lay in the pool, its plumes mournfully trailing in the dirt.

We reached Union Station a little ahead of our time. When I saw the little girl again on the freight elevator, she had stopped crying and her tears had dried into streaks of smut, but she was still defiantly awake. Z. ENGLISH.

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler

Still Good Men

BRUCE BARTON, who seems to be squinting down the barrel at the Presidency, passed some remarks in a piece in Collier's recently which describe better than any other effort that I have seen the mental attitude of some of the big-name New Dealers and of the New Deal itself.

Mr. Barton perceived in the Washington Administration a "distracting growth of that malady that may be termed the intolerance of the well-doer."

And said that as a boy, in a country parsonage, where the spare room and the table conversation generally were monopolized by some reformer, he observed that "no man can so cheerfully eat of his neighbor's food, make extra cooking and cleaning for his neighbor's wife, use his neighbor's vehicle and force sacrifices on his neighbor's children as the man who is bent on reforming the world."

"I discovered," Mr. Barton wrote, "that nobody can be quite so intolerant, no one can so cheerfully sow such seeds of violent hate, as he who is himself convinced of his own righteousness. Each of these workers feels in his own heart that he has made a financial sacrifice to pursue his particular line of human betterment—sure that if he himself had devoted his talent to moneymaking he would have achieved a fortune. He convinces himself that he is entitled to special thanks from the community and sometimes attains the highly satisfying conviction that the purity of his motives justifies any means."

PARTS OF THIS QUOTED matter suggest the figure of Mr. Harold Ickes, who gets $15,000 a year, but when he felt the need of a rest cure put himself away in the Naval Hospital at $37.5 a day for room, board, attendance and all, undoubtedly in the honest belief that service of such value as his to the country deserves such consideration. He also comes to mind along of Mr. Barton's phrase about the sowing of seeds of violent hate by men who believe that they have made financial sacrifices to pursue each his particular line of human betterment. Mr. Barton himself may have had Mr. Ickes and his rest cure at $37.5 a day in mind, but that would be unimportant.

More meaty is the challenge to the idea that because the New Deal is composed of consecrated men—if it is—the removal of those men from office and power would be a step toward some dreadful national fate. Such an idea has been put forward lately, possibly in deep sincerity, but I just don't think it is true, preferring to believe that if the New Deal were turned out in 1940 and a Republican or a fusionist Government were installed the gains of the New Deal would be consolidated and improved and business would leap at the chance to employ people. I think it would be possible to cheer Mr. Roosevelt on his way into private life with thanks for a noble effort and much achievement and inaugurate the new President with the best wishes of the country.

SOME PEOPLE ALWAYS hate a President, as those New Dealers who hate Herbert Hoover and hate the very names of Hoover and Harding will have to admit. But the hatred of the present time has been wiped up by the big names of the Administration and the camp followers, not by the Republicans or Tories or economic royalists.

I can't believe that everything is staked on the continuance of the New Deal and the re-election of President Roosevelt or the election of someone proposed by him. And I do believe that there are several men, not Fascists or Communists, not bigots or rabble-rousers, any of whom could turn in a good performance as President of the United States.

THE NEW DEAL presumes to outlaw as un-American almost all those who actively oppose it on any phase, and that obviously can't be so. The old way has been left behind, but there were good men then and there are still good men, intelligent and efficient and as patriotic and devoted to democracy as any New Dealer, who could carry on the Government without resort to hatred.

I don't know what sort of businessman it is who can believe in Nazi-fascism. There must be some, of course, just as there are New Dealers who believe in measures of regimentation borrowed from both Nazi-fascism and communism, but think of themselves as pure Democrats. But any businessman or any employee who has listened even an hour to the story of these lamas knows that the American system is best.

It wasn't agreed when Mr. Roosevelt was elected and re-elected that the New Deal was to be a dead end, and I don't believe it is.

Copyright, 1938, by United Features Syndicate, Inc.

Anti-Fascist Talk

By Rockwell Kent

Rockwell Kent, author and president of the United American Artists, will address a mass meeting advocating "Democratic action" as a protest against "Fascist aggression" Thursday at 8:15 p. m., at the Washington Auditorium.

Conversation Piece

A man was walking home in the gray dawn, with every nerve jumping, and what the French call "tension in the toes."

He arrived at his street, and saw a milk cart standing in the road. As he walked past, the horse turned its head and said: "Good morning." "Good morning," said the man; then stopped, stared, and said: "Hey! What's that?"

"I said good morning," said the horse. "Well, I'll be damned!" said the man. "Why?" asked the horse. "Well, I've never heard of a horse that could talk before." "No, I suppose not," said the horse, "but you see, I can."

"Well, I am, indeed," said the man, staring curiously at the horse. "Peculiar sort of horse, aren't you?" "Peculiar? Ha, I'm a former Derby winner." "No, no really?" "I am, indeed."

"Well, I'll be damned," said the man again, and walked on, rubbing his head. At the door of his house he met the milkman. "Hey, listen, milkman," he said, "that's a peculiar sort of horse you've got."

"Yesir," said the milkman. "Has he been talking to you, sir?" "Heard him with my own ears!" "Ah. Did he tell you that he'd won the Derby by any chance?" "That's right."

"Well," said the milkman, putting down a bottle on the doorstep, "he's a dirty liar. He only came third."

From "Courier," British Quarterly.

Pedestrian Problem

A Symposium By Our Readers

Faulty Mechanism

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is obvious that pedestrians in Washington have been paying less and less regard to traffic signals for some time. There must be a reason for this. Perhaps the signals are not as good as they might be.

It will do little good to try to regulate pedestrians if the mechanism of regulation is faulty. Two difficulties are that the signals are mechanical and that they have been devised almost entirely to regulate machines. Pedestrians have had to shift for themselves, although downtown they greatly outnumber the people riding in automobiles. The amber light has been eliminated at many crossings and where there is still an amber light it averages only a few seconds, about long enough for a pedestrian to take three or four steps.

The result is that most of the pedestrians who are caught in the crossing on a change of lights have to jump back, run across, or stand in the middle of the street between two streams of cars. Besides being hazardous this has probably educated a good many people to take chances at other times.

Those who regulate the signals may claim that it is up to the drivers to respect the pedestrians, but what chance has a pedestrian against a machine? How many policemen who are directing traffic look at the pedestrians when changing signals? Very few. In New York City the police seem rather to favor the pedestrians.

When these major factors have been adjusted some additional steps must be taken. All rules should be enforced. Many pedestrians do not look at the signals at all, they simply watch the cars. In short they do not consider that the signals apply to them.

R. C. WELLS.
Washington, Nov. 1.

Two Proposals

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In the discussion of "pedestrian control" versus "car control," I think one point seems to be overlooked. This is, that while motor drivers are supposed to be at least physically fit and mentally competent, this obviously cannot be the case with all pedestrians. The latter are of all sorts—the very young, the very old, those with poor eyesight, those recovering from illness, those who are lame or have weak hearts and cannot hurry.

It is not always possible for all these people to cross in the time allowed, and when they try to cross themselves as best they can, they are dubbed "jaywalkers" and accused of being at fault when they get killed. This seems to me like saying that someone would not have been killed if he had not been so careless as to get in the way of the gun. Is not the burden of carelessness on the one who carries the weapon?

Personally, I always cross with the lights, but there have been many times when I owed my life only to the fact that I am active and in possession of every faculty; and my heart aches for the handicapped who are hooted at and hustled by impatient and inconscient drivers.

Pedestrian control may be one answer, if it does not make the motorist more careless, but I suggest two other remedies:

1. No more street widenings.
2. Provision of "safety islands" on streets which have been widened. In Paris and London these abound, and serve the double purpose of separating lanes of traffic and giving the pedestrian a refuge. We have only a few here.

H. S.
Washington, Oct. 30.

Case In Point

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As to the pedestrian control which is under discussion, I would like to say that I would welcome control if it gave me some lights. At present it is a matter of "save qui peut." I wonder there are not more pedestrians that die of heart failure in the middle of the street. If the authorities will guarantee a safe period for crossing, I will guarantee to use it.

HILDA MARTIN.
Washington, Oct. 28.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The Opposition

IN THIS INTERVAL when the election speeches have all been delivered and the votes have not yet been counted, I have been remembering some remarks made many years ago by George Santayana. The practice of liberty as we understand it in America presupposes two things, said he.

"That all citizens are fundamentally unanimous, and that each has a plastic nature, which he is willing to modify." Translated into the words that we now use, this would mean that a democratic order will work when all concerned are agreed on ultimate objectives, when no sizable number of voters are revolutionaries and irrevocable, and when men are willing to change their minds and modify their actions as a result of debate with their opponents.

Thinking about Mr. Santayana's remark, I read an article by my colleague, Mr. Ernest R. Lindley, in which he printed a list of New Deal measures "that have come through this campaign free of major criticism." It is an impressive list, extending from the Civilian Conservation Corps through the banking laws and the laws administered by the Securities and Exchange Commission to the TVA.

Mr. Lindley says that these measures came into being in the face of an "historical struggle" but that now there is no avowed or important opposition. And then, though he does not say so in so many words, Mr. Lindley leaves the reader with the impression that the opposition has been as ineffective as it has been stupid and reactionary, and that in the working out of the New Deal opposition and criticism have been a nuisance rather than a benefit.

MR. LINDLEY is, I think, very much mistaken about the historical facts and in his reasoning from the facts. It is in the main true that at the end of six years of excited controversy a great many of the major measures of the New Deal have been generally accepted. I think, as he does, that this is a good thing. But it is not true that the measures that are now accepted are the same measures we should have had if there had been no opposition. It has been opposition, both from the outside of the New Deal and from the inside, which has modified the initial proposals and their subsequent administration. And it has been in this process of give and take that the measures which are now acceptable have been made acceptable to the great majority. The result, which Mr. Lindley approves, could not have been achieved without the opposition which he scorns.

Had opposition been ineffective in the past six years, there would be no such general agreement on so many principles and measures as there is today. For the measures would have been in many ways different and their administration would have been very different. In this very struggle, which Mr. Lindley dismisses as "hysterical," the New Dealers and their opponents have learned from each other, and if they now are able to agree on so many things, it is precisely because they have had to modify their principles and their practice.

THE NATIONAL UNITY of a free people depends upon a sufficiently even balance of political power to make it impracticable for the administration to be arbitrary and for the opposition to be revolutionary and irrevocable. Where that balance no longer exists, democracy perishes. For unless all the citizens of a state are forced by circumstances to compromise, unless they feel that they can affect policy but that no one can wholly dominate it, unless by habit and necessity they have to give and take, freedom cannot be maintained.

Freedom is a way of life for moderate men, not for willful and reckless extremists. The conflicts of irreconcilable interests, the disorder that only a tyrant can deal with.

Copyright, 1938, New York Tribune, Inc.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Talking In Billions

(A typical and wholly natural conversation in typical American home which has tried to follow all the economic programs of the hour.)

Ma (to Pa)—You're late for dinner again, Luther.

Pa—It was detained at the office in a billion-dollar conference. How're you feeling?

Ma—Not so good. I've got a fever.

Pa—How high is it?

Ma—Think it's 2,500,000 degrees.

Pa—That's pretty high, isn't it?

Ma—Not the way they quote figures these days. By the way, the rent is due.

Pa—You've got the $3,346,780 to pay it, haven't you?

Off the Record

By Ed Reed

Ma—No; I spent that for my new fall outfit.

Pa—What did you do with the $4,500,000 I gave you last week?

Ma—You didn't give me $4,500,000; it was $3,750,000,000.

Pa—Don't be technical.

Ma—Junior got a nice report card at school this month.

Pa—What was his mark?

Ma—He ranked 1,250,000,000 in a class of 10,500,000,000.

Pa—Those figures can't be right, ma.

Ma—Who worries about figures being right these days? Anyhow, they give you the general idea.

Pa—I'm taking tomorrow off to play golf.

Ma—How's your game now?

Pa—Much better. My drivers are averaging 250,000,000,000 yards now straight down the middle, or rather down the middle.

Ma—I remember when you were satisfied if you could drive a ball 138,000,000,000 yards.

Pa—That was away back when Hoover was in office. Say, I sunk a swell putt the other day; 7,456,788,456,000 yards right into the cup.

Ma—Is that a good putt?

Pa—It was a good putt on one edge of the green!

Ma (as Pa reads the paper)—What's new in Washington?

Pa—Nothing much except that there are 800,000,000,000,000,000 yards now straight down the middle, or rather down the middle.

Ma—I remember when you were satisfied if you could drive a ball 138,000,000,000 yards.

Pa—That was away back when Hoover was in office. Say, I sunk a swell putt the other day; 7,456,788,456,000 yards right into the cup.

Ma—Is that a good putt?

Pa—It was a good putt on one edge of the green!

Ma (as Pa reads the paper)—What's new in Washington?

Pa—Nothing much except that there are 800,000,000,000,000,000 yards now straight down the middle, or rather down the middle.

Ma—I remember when you were satisfied if you could drive a ball 138,000,000,000 yards.

Pa—That was away back when Hoover was in office. Say, I sunk a swell putt the other day; 7,456,788,456,000 yards right into the cup.

Ma—Is that a good putt?

Pa—It was a good putt on one edge of the green!

To get election returns tonight, keep your dial tuned to WJSV for direct election returns from The Post's city room.

Ole Debil Surplus

One very cold day an old gentleman saw a small girl in a ragged, withered coat peeping out of a dilapidated pair of shoes. Her father was out of work.

"Why has he lost his work?" the old gentleman asked.

"Cos the factory's shut," replied the child.

"Why is that?"

"They've got too much stock, so the men have been put off."

"What do they make there?"

"Boots!"

From the Industrial Christian Fellowship Journal. Reprinted from Living Age.

'United Front' Is Surveyed

By Mark Sullivan

SOME OF US WOULD like to go through the testimony before the Dies committee, to assay it to give proper value, or in some cases lack of value, to the witnesses—in short, to sieve what is fact from what is alleged. I would like to find just what is the amount of truth in the charges against Communism in America, how it operates, where it is active.

As beginning, I have before me the verbatim record of the first ten days of the Dies committee's hearings. There are 979 pages, over half a million words, the equivalent of four or five ordinary books.

From this record I take one witness. His name is James B. Matthews. I have no information about him except what appears in this record. He has been a teacher and writer. Reading his testimony, it seems to me he has an exact mind. He practices precision in his choice of words. When he states a fact, he states it as that. When he states a rumor, he states it as that. When he states his judgment, he states it as that. When members of the committee ask him loosely phrased questions to which an answer "yes" or "no" would have been insufficient, Mr. Matthews was careful to amplify his answer so as to make it tell the exact and complete fact.

AT THE OPENING, Mr. Matthews gave his qualifications. I quote what he said, making only the very slight changes necessary to eliminate duplications:

"From 1922 until 1935 I was probably more closely associated with the Communist Party of the United States than any other individual in this country. Since 1928 I have made five trips to Russia. I was not a member of the Communist Party. I was what is known in party circles as a 'fellow-traveler,' one who goes along as faithfully as any other member but who, generally for strategic reasons, does not hold a party card. There is such a thing as strategic non-membership in the Communist Party."

Here we run into one of the difficulties of estimating the extent of communism. Evidently many Communists refrain from joining the party. They wish to be able to say "I am not a Communist." They take and keep this status as a part of the Communist technique. Not only is there this category of "non-membership" Communists. Overlapping it is another class of "fellow-travelers." These, like the "non-membership" members, are able to say "I am not a Communist" wherever that denial will meet a charge, or disarm suspicion, or otherwise serve the party's purposes.

IN THIS BRIEF preliminary statement of Mr. Matthews we run into yet another impediment to estimating the extent of communism. The Communists operate "under the table" when they call "united front" organizations. As Mr. Matthews put it:

"The Communist Party relies, for its extensive influence in public affairs, on the tactic known as the 'united front.' It is by means of this device that the party's influence reaches far beyond its immediate enrolled membership. Nothing is more essential to a show of the Communist Party, I think, than a detailed 'knowledge of the united front.'"

What are these "united front" organizations? Mr. Matthews names 20 "organizations" for which I definitely did work, which the Communist Party set up for the purpose of putting the lie to the charge of being a Communist. He says that there are some 50 more "of which I had personal knowledge."

I hesitate to reprint the list here, but I feel that, unless I can prove it to my own knowledge, I should not name any organization or individual as having any connection with the Communist Party. However, I will mention one as an example, because Mr. Matthews' statement of its connection with the Communist Party is convincingly detailed and factual. About the American League Against War and Fascism, of which Mr. Matthews was an official, he says that on one occasion "we had to have funds instantly and they were sent over in cash by special messenger from the office of 'Earl Browder,' the American head of the Communist Party."

IN THE TECHNIQUE of a "united front" organization, the central corps is a few "fellow-travelers" who act in understanding with the heads of the Communist Party. Mr. Matthews said that if they "could get an efficient group of 2 or 3 per cent in any organization," they could use it for their purposes.

Mr. Matthews covered only the small sector of Communist activity he knows, the "united front" movements. Other witnesses, some equally definite, described or alluded to the activity of Communist Party members in many other ways, by indirect methods, in schools, churches, labor unions, the press, such government organizations as WPA, and even in local divisions of the post office.

Copyright, 1938, New York Tribune, Inc.

Prelude To Lima

By Barnet Nover

The Americas And The World

THE COROLLARY to Munich is more armaments. That is true of Great Britain though the British prime minister has made friendly co-operation with the Fascist dictator the very basis of his "policy of appeasement." It is true of France, though that nation is already groaning under a staggering burden of debt and a hopelessly unbalanced budget. And it is true of the United States, moved though we are by thousands of miles from Central Europe.

Instinctively Americans feel that American security has somehow been imperiled by what happened at Munich. This does not mean that many in this country believe that before long Boston and New York and Philadelphia and Washington will be as directly under the guns of the aggressor as was Prague last September. The Atlantic, fortunately, is still wide. But the shortening process arising from the progress in aviation goes on apace. It may not be long before our Atlantic seaboard is as near in time to Europe as London is to the airbases of Germany. And in the meantime the possibility of an assault on the security of the smaller and weaker republics of the Americas cannot be discounted.

For decades after President Monroe sent his famous message to Congress the relative freedom enjoyed by this hemisphere from foreign aggression was far more the consequence of British unwillingness to permit continental European powers from extending their empires to the New World than of any American capacity to inhibit such a development. And it is significant in this particular that the only nation which managed successfully to ignore the prohibitions of the Monroe Doctrine at certain times and get away with it was Great Britain. Thus while the Argentine republic has never scooped British sovereignty over the Falkland Islands and Guatemala lays claim to British Honduras, those colonies remain indisputably British.

Whether the British can and will be able to continue her historic role in this hemisphere any longer is not clear. But insofar as she abdicates, our responsibility increases.

NO WONDER, then, that the immediate and instinctive response of the people of this Nation to the latest developments on the continent of Europe was a demand for increased armaments. As Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles said in his radio speech of Sunday:

"As a Nation we will assure ourselves that we are in a position to defend ourselves from all aggression from whatever source it may arise and to be prepared to join with our fellow democracies of the New World in preserving the Western Hemisphere safe from any threat of attack."

For these reasons the Lima conference, which convenes next month, will have profound implications for all Americans, north and south of the isthmus.

The Federal Diary

By Scott Hart

THE FACET (Federation of Architects, Chemists, Engineers and Technicians) is taking a militant viewpoint on the definition of that word so current since 1932—"emergency." The group, one of the most important in the service, has established a four-point program for Procurement which includes their attitude toward tenure, proper classification, promotion policy and personal policy.

The emphasis on the "emergency" is thus summed up:

"The procurement division, in carrying out its share of this work (public buildings) has been employing hundreds of architects and engineers. The present organization of this department has been looked upon by many as a temporary one, to be disbanded after the 'emergency' is over. That this 'emergency' will continue in the service has been recognized by Congress, which at its last session appropriated the necessary funds for a 'long-term' public building program. However, the administration of the division under the constant threat of curtailment is placing upon large numbers of architects and engineers a degree of insecurity that constitutes a needless injustice."

Thereupon, the FACET, in the first point of its program, asks that the government employ all its officially informed of the length of their employment in definite terms. And there is the one catch in the program. And also a most interesting point.

If we understand correctly, the FACET presumes that the "emergency" is here to stay. This is both frightening and delightful. And also it would seem that the FACET thinks it possible to define the conditions of an "emergency." This would be more than absurd.

The point is interesting. For "emergency" of any character is by its very nature unpredictable. It calls for a multiplicity of mediums; it may last a week, it may last a month or a year or two. The devices which serve to combat it in one day, might even enhance it in the next. There might, in the very midst of it, come another "emergency" which would end all emergencies.

So, what seems strange is the proposition to inform all emergency workers of the length of their employment in definite terms. Most certainly, everyone wants to see the "emergency" employer status cleared up, but how any predictability can operate within an "emergency" is enough to make the deepest thinker lose all the sleep at night which he needs to fortify himself against his thinking in the day.

Will the gentleman in the RRB who submitted for publication the manifesto which concluded on "Lives of great men all remind us" be able to tell us what we can do to make our lives sublime, please call by The Post so we can talk the matter over with him?

Copyright, 1938, New York Tribune, Inc.

AT HOME ABROAD

With so many men from so many lands coming to Lewis & Thos. Saltz, it is a source of keen satisfaction to us to see how well we can please them all. Good taste, it seems, is universally sought after—and appreciated.

SUITS & TOPCOATS $40 TO $65
"OXFORD" CLOTHES $65 TO $100
"JOHN SHANNON" ENGLISH COATS $50
C & K CAVANAGH EDGE HATS $10, $20
FRENCH, SHRINER & URMER SHOES
FINEST IMPORTED AND DOMESTIC HABERDASHERY

LEWIS & THOS. SALTZ INCORPORATED
1409 G STREET, N. W.
DISTRICT 1822
NOT CONNECTED WITH SALTZ BROS. INC.

Aquarium Lands 40-Pound 'Cat'—Sheik Rides at Horse Show

The Post is the only daily morning paper in Washington with A. P. WIREPHOTO Service.

Post Staff Photo.

D. A. R. Preserves Old Church Records

The Livingston Manor Chapter of the D. A. R. is copying records of Christ Church, 620 G street southeast, Washington's oldest church, for the genealogical department of the D. A. R. Shown (from left) are Mrs. Frederick Sparrow, in charge; Miss Nellie Grant Ross, State chairman; Mrs. John Edwards, chapter regent; Mrs. Robert Holm, chapter chairman.

Post Staff Photos.

Mississippi 'Cat'

Fred Orsinger (left), director of the Bureau of Fisheries aquarium, and M. C. James, assistant chief fish culturist, place a 40-pound Mississippi mud catfish in its new home. The catfish was one of 1,800 water animals received yesterday. At right is a leatherback turtle, another newcomer.

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

Arabian Sheik Rides in Horse Show

Attired in native costume is Sheik Khalil Ben Al-Elrouff of Nadj Saudi, Arabia, who is shown entering Madison Square Garden to attend the National Horse Show, in which he will ride one of his mounts. The sheik is accompanied by R. Wilson Evans, of New York.

The Way It's Done

At right—This is what would have happened yesterday if The Post-Metropolitan Police search for a cautious driver had been successful. On the first day's tour to find a driver entitled to the award for an extraordinary act of courtesy or caution, not an award was given. Demonstrating how the award is made are (from left) Policeman George Patton, "safety officer;" Maj. Ernest Brown and Richard Griswold, head of the Life Underwriters, with Olive Varney at the wheel.

Post Staff Photos.

Prospective Champs

At left—Candidates for honors in the baby show at Moose Hall, the finals of which are set for next Monday. They are (top, from left) Kenneth Waler, Patricia Ann Moder, Marilyn Doty, Pat Ann Lillie, Billy Schaub, Ralph Johnston; (bottom row) Norma Denison, Ellen Alberding, Cynthia Schneider, Jacqueline Hamerdinger, Joy Ida Scherff.

Reunion On the Coast

At left—On another of her whirlwind cross-country jaunts, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt visited her son, James, at the ranch near Hollister, Calif., where he is recuperating. She arrived from Seattle, stayed overnight, then flew to Fort Worth to see Elliott. She plans to vote today at Hyde Park.

Parking Meters Going In

The installation of parking meters that will dot the curbs of busy downtown thoroughfares began yesterday when workmen drilled holes in walks and set up the meter posts. Shown at work are Perry Everhart (left) and Fred Chewning, who will supervise the installations.

Post Staff Photo.

Auxiliary Holds Donor Luncheon

Approximately 850 persons attended the donor luncheon yesterday of the woman's auxiliary of the Jewish Consumptives Relief Society at the Mayflower. Shown at the luncheon are (from left) Mrs. Nathan N. Wallace, first vice president; Judge W. M. Lewis, of Philadelphia, the speaker; Mrs. Martin Mendelsohn, president, and Dr. Lewis I. Miller, chairman of the J. C. R. S. medical board and secretary of the board of trustees.

Your Figure

Woman of 40
Weighing 240
Should Reduce

Or Else Lose Husband
Same Goes for Men
Diet Linked to Love

By Ida Jean Kala.
ADVICE to the lovelorn is not in my line. A writer on this subject recently observed that a woman weighing 240 pounds cannot expect to have very much allure except to the Orientals, and that if she wants to hold her husband she should not gain another pound.
She added that since this woman is 40 years old it would be impossible for her to reduce without making herself look prehistoric. And that's what I take exception to. In my opinion, there is only one thing for a woman of 40 weighing over 200 pounds to do—and that is reduce.
Reducing is not aging. Instead of looking prehistoric, this woman would look a good ten years younger and be apt to live 15 years longer for the loss of her was not prepared for publication today, owing to the illness of Miss Haworth. The column will be resumed on her recovery.

Mary Haworth's Mail

excessive weight. She should take off from 75 to 90 pounds, and that much weight could be lost in as short a period as 18 months without the slightest risk to the reducer's health.

It would, of course, be very foolish to plunge into an extensive weight reduction program without first consulting a physician. In most cases the doctor is heartily in favor of weight reduction, for today the health hazards of an excessive burden of weight are fully recognized. After a physical checkover, the important thing is to adopt a safe and sane method of reducing. The health and looks must be safeguarded with the proper diet and by a program of daily exercise—mild at first and gradually more vigorous.

It would be no easy task for this 240-pound woman to bring her weight to normal, for dieting is probably the world's most rigorous test of will power. But if she has the courage and will to go about her program wisely she can make her husband fall in love with her all over again, by looking like the girl he married.
And do you know what I think? Any woman who allows her weight to soar to any such figure deserves to lose her husband! She shows that she loves food more than she loves her man. Of course, the same holds true for the man who lets his waistline get away out of bounds. It is my belief that if men and women would keep themselves in trim, there would be an appreciable reduction in the number of broken hearts.

Men's Fashions Abducted by College Girls

Piracy has invaded many of the Eastern campuses in the form of co-ed brigands. Oftentimes these heartless schoolgirls steal the very coat off prep school boys' backs. A recent "loan" is the Hi-Ho corduroy coat, being held on to tightly by the lad, below. The girl adopts his pork pie hat, pigskin gloves and a country tweed, once worn by men only

A Woman's New York

By Alice Hughes

New York, Nov. 2.
AS MAY have been gathered from these fugitive essays, I am always interested in the doings of young "debutantes" of the town, and I have a hunch that you are to a degree—but alas, in my case it is pretty morbid, in spite of their glittering activities for various "sweet charities," they do seem fairly futile and ever pitiful butterflies—and their hurrying into the social arena is quite a racket.

For these reasons it is a hot pleasure to focus the weary eyes on a girl here who is in her teens, who is as pretty as any of the lot, and who has joined her mamma in a successful fight out of a financial slough by beauty, grit and a measure of young talent. The kid is Cobina Wright, Jr., and the mom is Cobina, Jr., who refused to say "uncle" when the stage turned sour in the depths, alone's depths, and who scrubbed along, turning a few pounds where she could, until her child grew into a young beauty and could get in and punch, too, which is now.

So the blonde little Cobby is having a fall of it. Last week she began singing at the very ultra Sert Room of the Waldorf, where Eve Symington warbled. And Cobina, Jr., is the only socialite songbird I haven't wanted to fricassee. She really needs the roubles. She also has a part in a forthcoming play called "Lovelet," after a short apprenticeship at a straw-hat theater on the outskirts.

Now here is a case where a young girl of so-called "society" is just as laudable and praiseworthy in her struggle to make good as any underprivileged kid on the lower East Side, it seems to me. At any rate, I give you Cobina Wright, Jr., and senior, too—very good. What a pleasure it is to go to bed for a kid on that social layer who isn't a dope, a time-waster and a petty show-off.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—The biggest day of the year for the poor, little sick and crippled kids at our colossal Bellevue Hospital has come and gone. The rodeo's annual visit even whips that of the circus. On cold and crutches the youngsters watched the roping and the riding—and the sight both warmed and touched the heart, I'll tell you.

Two especially pretty ladies at El Morocco, a few nights ago, gave their names to a befuddled cameraman as Mrs. Robert H. Cobb and Mrs. Roger B. Pryor—but he cheered up when he learned that they were also Gail Patrick and Ann Southern, of the flicks. Shame to kid a boy like that.

We still see Nita Naldi around town now and then. Who remembers when she was one of the very top vamps of the old silent screen era? You and you! That makes three of us old fogies.

Here it is, girls! Step up and grab yourself a bottle! Going fast over a local counter is a new liquid preparation which forms a protective non-skid film over the bottom of the bath tub. That stuff should save many a broken arm.

The local Hollywood branch has been stepped up by the arrival of the Fredric Marches, with their pair of adopted children, and Lin Root, an old friend of mine now writing a play. Her son, Jonathan, and the two young Marches play together and go to school in the same bus—and do not, I hope, make unpleasant comparisons between Beverly Hills and our poor little city.

A girl can't save here any more—not even when she is getting a finger wave. Why, the other day a covey of five brutes with guns stalked right into the Paris Beauty Culture Academy (some name, hey, babe?), and took over $300 from the beauty culturist and the poor customers. A lady gets no peace any more at all.

Antique Jewelry, Silver, Shell, Field, Furniture, Mirrors, Brasses, Art Objects and Wedding Gifts.
ARNOLD GALLERIES
1800 G St. N.W.

Younger Generation Leads
In Filching Men's Styles

Slacks, Sweat Shirts School Standards
Hi Ho Topcoats Prove Adaptable
Pigskin Gloves Another Stolen Item

By Marshall Adams

The Post Fashion Editor

THE YOUNGER generation is an imaginative lot. Its Shakespeare cautions it to "neither a borrower nor a lender be," which it takes with a pinch of salt, for it marches right out and filches ideas to its heart's content. Teen aged girls, above all others, beam most buoyantly when they have affected a cold steal from big brothers' or best beaus' wardrobes.

With the majority of women this fall looking helpless and demure over their bare shoulders or violet-scented muffs, it becomes something of a relaxation to come upon neatly tailored sports wear unashamedly forged from men rather than from grandmother's album. College girls are notable for their originality in taking what they want from masculine style sources. Their slacks and sweat shirts have become as standard in some feminine school wardrobes as they are in those of prep school boys.

Prep School Fashions
It's not often that a really new silhouette is launched for men which proves itself popular at birth. Men usually are so cautious about experimenting with color, line and new fabric that they bend over backward toward the tried and true. Prep school lads are the designers' whitest hope in sampling new trends, and, as a result, school-aged girls forage from these lads more than from any other masculine group. The Hi Ho coat is typical of their talking ways.

Though introduced early this fall for men only the Hi Ho topcoat has proven itself adaptable and popular for both young men and women. Its tailored ease of short, boxy line, its use of vast patch pockets and its combination of corduroy and cheerful cotton plaid make of it a lively companion on the most conservative campuses.

Hints From Hats

The country tweed topcoat for women is similar in casual charm to its second cousin, the Hi Ho. Although not quite so knee length, it possesses the same boyish freedom as the masculine tweed coat it was pillaged from. Its decisive checks are toned down, according to true masculine dictates, by an unobtrusive dark felt "pork pie" which brave men tried to popularize a couple of winters ago.

Sturdy pigskin gloves and white buckskin oxfords also have been gracefully won over to the demands of feminine wearers. A novel idea being sponsored locally is the man's crew hat which curly haired girls are adopting in either white flannel or gabardine. The only masculine reminder left on these sports hats is the row of initials stitched onto the crown which are supposed to represent the wearer's favorite team, football player or movie star.

Double Shades
For Windows

Well-dressed windows this winter will wear two separate shades. One shade on the street side for outside harmony, one on the room side for inside harmony, has been suggested by a manufacturer for perfect satisfaction in giving light in a room, yet keeping the curious from seeing within from the street. Two shades are hung on the windows, a dark one for the outside and a light one on the inside to reflect the light from the room.

New colors introduced in shades to enhance room settings include larkspur blue, sunrose, chrysanthemum and springleaf green.

STURDIFOLD
VENETIAN BLIND
CLEANER

It's new! It's practical! It's different! Here is an amazing new liquid Venetian Blind Cleaner... one pint cleans 200 to 250 square feet. NON-FLAMMABLE, no objectionable odor. Replaces the old fashion system of "soap and water" cleaning now!

60c

Cash and Carry Service Only!
WASHINGTON
SHADE & AWNING CO.
2021 17th St. N.W. (JUST ABOVE YOU ST.)

The Gentler Sex

By Malvina Lindsay

Basic Dress

"Of course the dress may look a little plain, but then you can do such wonderful things to it... Beads? ... Oh, yes, beads would be darling, and I tell you what I'd get—some of those antique gold ones, sort of soft and dull and real heavy, you know. Or, one of those stunning chokers of massed glittering gold beads would be nice. Then you could have some heavy gold bracelets, or maybe an antique gold ring. It tells you what else would be good. Some awfully good-looking turquoise or jade beads—maybe with gold settings. And of course you could always have pearls to change off to. Then when you got tired of beads you could have a clip—even a couple of clips—real stunning ones in antique gold or maybe one of those enormous flower ones. This dress'll make a wonderful background for jewels.

"Cocktails? ... Of course you can wear it to cocktails. All you have to do is to add a little bolero of velvet or satin or fur—any Persian lamb would be nice. But if you didn't want to go to that expense you could get yourself a little turban of velvet flowers and then accent its color in some suede gloves or pastel jewelry. Say, I tell you what would be stunning with that dress! A Persian cigarette case or compact. And then you could have a little Persian hat to match!

"You know with a dress like that you can have a lot of different little hats and then match 'em up in your belts and bags—or even in your shoes. Now, a bright red suede belt, one of those real soft wide ones, would give that dress a lot of life. Then you could have a big stunning red pocketbook. Or you could have a little fur turban—one of those mink doll hats would be nice—with a touch of red in it.

"Then you could also have a wide green suede belt and some green suede gloves—and maybe a jade bracelet. Then when you got tired of color you could put on a dashing wide black suede belt with a big swanky buckle—silver would be nice, and you could have some silver jewelry to go with it. Silver's awfully good now.

"Then for street wear, if I were you, I'd have some alligator shoes and a bag to match. And then for a change you could have a bright leather belt of some kind with a little leather boutonniere to match. Leather's awfully good, too.

"There's an awful lot you can do to dress up that dress. Now when it gets colder you could have a bright scarf of some kind and match it up with a bright, stunning bag, or with some colored gloves. Then when you got tired of that, you could have some cute little collar—real dainty lingerie ones, you know. And some unusual handkerchiefs would do a lot to pep up that dress this winter. Then next spring you could get yourself a fur neckpiece—say, for that matter, one of those chubby fur coats would add a lot to it right now.

"You see, there's virtually nothing you can't do with it. You'll find in the end it certainly pays to buy a basic dress."

Rules Suggested
In Washing Woolens

It's time for woolens, but how to keep them clean, and fluffy, is the question.

You can safely wash your finest wool garments at home, to say nothing of your blankets, and save time, energy and money, when you have a household washer.

Briefly—here are the cardinal rules: plenty of moderate temperature water, with unusually heavy suds; brief washing; several rinses in the same temperature; no draining of the tub while a blanket is in it; water removal with the extractor or very loose wringer; careful hanging out to dry but never in cold weather.

Menus
For TodayBy Alice Clayton,
The Post Food Editor.

BREAKFAST
Chilled fresh plums and pears
Fried hominy Broiled spiced ham
Buttered cinnamon toast Apple jelly

LUNCHEON
Cream of tomato soup Salted whipped cream topping
Salmon Snack
Chilled fresh vegetable salad
Toasted crackers and cheese
Orange float

DINNER
Chilled carrot juice
Cornstuffed lamb chops
Brown potatoes
Jellied mint relish Glazed turnip and beet strips
Whole wheat bread Currant jam
Date pudding Hard sauce
Demi tasse

SALMON SNACK
Combine one 8-ounce can of salmon, flaked, with 2 tablespoons of chopped ripe pitted olives and 2 of pitted chopped green olives. Blend in 3 tablespoons of mayonnaise, ¼ teaspoon of salt, a speck of pepper. Use as a filling for desired number of celery sticks which have been cut into edible lengths.

Gadget Makes Smoking in Auto
A Real Thrill

Driving an automobile and smoking a cigarette are the two most popular American activities, according to a recent survey. A designer, with an eye toward creation of a nearly flawless gift, has just launched a product which makes it possible to enjoy driving and smoking in comfort at the same time.

It is a compact metal box holding 25 cigarettes, as many of the average cigarette case. At the rear of the box is a brace which attaches itself to the steering column. The most crotchety driver may keep one hand on the wheel, swerving around corners and policemen, and with the other hand pluck out a fresh, uncrushed, lighted cigarette.

These "smokers" are custom-built and limited in distribution.

STEINWAY PIANO

An absolutely beautiful piano of console type and astonishing tone. $550
DROOP'S • 1300 G

Be Smart For Your Age

Beautifully manipulated drapery makes this rayon cotton-wool gown perfect for the larger, more mature woman. The lines are soft both in the bodice and the skirt. Lightly tinted pleated material. Long sleeves. $22.95

The Palais Royal, 11th Street, N.W., Third Floor

THE NEW Jelleffs

STARTLING VALUES IN Precious Persian
ENAMELED CASES!

Cigarette Case, $2.95 Carry-All, $7.95 formerly $25.

Compact, $1.95 formerly $10.

At the very moment that rich Far Eastern effects are most important in costume accessories, we bring you these extraordinary values in precious Persian cases. Authentic reproductions of treasured old Damascene brocades, enamel in clear, rich colors on gold-tone metal. Compact cigarette case, and "carry-all." Buy them for yourself... and for magnificent Christmas giving!

Now! "Appreciation" Events Throughout
the Store—For Ex.:

$3 Suede and Kid Gloves...$1.95
$3 Leather Handbags...$2.95
$3 Pure Silk Slips...$1.95

STREET FLOOR

• For under her coat
• For around the house
• For doing the marketing

Mother Likes a Warm COAT SWEATER

Collar types
Cardigan styles

3.99

Just arrived! Cozy wool or rayon, silk-and-wool sweaters. 5 and 6-button types, bright variety of styles and colors. So attractive, we can just see you borrowing Mother's when you're off skiing or hiking. Incidentally, they rate a warm welcome as Christmas Gifts! Black, wine, navy, green, brown. Sizes 36 to 46.

Lansburgh's—Sports Shop—Second Floor

Society Goes 'Russian' in Big Way at Reception At Soviet Embassy—Then to Chekhov's Play

Election. Though, Keeps Some Away
Spotlight Centered on New Notables
Number of New Deal Officials Noted

By Hope Ridings Miller.

The Post Society Editor.

SOCIETY WENT "RUSSIAN" in a big way yesterday, with just about everybody in town turning out for the reception at the Soviet Embassy, and many going on later to the Chekhov play, "The Sea Gull," at the National Theater. Nothing brings out the Capital's creme de la creme like Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne; and no embassy gathering in a larger or more interesting flock than the Soviet Embassy. At the latter you not only see almost everybody who goes to the average large reception, but also a number of Government big-wigs who rarely make social appearances.

Yesterday, however, the crowd was not so huge as it usually is, and a good many "faces" you generally see there were conspicuously missing. For example, the sizable Congressional contingent—schools of Senators and even more Representatives—that can always be counted on to attend the Soviet parties weren't there, probably because they're all at home either trying to get re-elected or helping someone else get back.

But the gathering was still big enough, and there were dozens of new notables to center the spotlight and make you forget who wasn't there. So far as that goes, whether you like them or not, you'll have to hand it to the Soviets. When they give a party, they angle not so much for top-flight tea-table society as for high-powered Government notables. In contrast to a number of diplomats who come and go without meeting anybody but social registerites, the Soviets manage to mingle with scores of persons who are just as important, and sometimes more so.

THE CHARGE D'AFFAIRES of the embassy and Mme. Constantine Oumansky received their guests in the ballroom, which was decorated for the occasion with huge vases of chrysanthemums. Mme. Oumansky was gowning in a floor-length frock of sapphire and silver crepe with corded bands outlining the short sleeves and the laped neckline. A corsage of orchids on her left shoulder completed her costume.

While the crowd filing up the broad crimson-carpeted stairway was long, there were some bold guests now and then who dared to stop the receiving line long enough to inquire about the retiring Soviet Ambassador and Mme. Troyanovsky. The response was more polite than enlightening . . . and the line moved on.

THE OCCASION marked the twenty-first anniversary of the Socialist revolution, but it went off very much like the average annual celebration in Washington embassies and legations. In fact, judging from the gay groups that clustered around the long, heavily laden table in the dining room, it was primarily a very pleasant party and the reason for its being given mattered little.

As usual, the art salon was as crowded as the spacious dining room, and the two rooms on the third floor where caviar, cocktails and other refreshments were served were equally as popular. The general trend of movement was from the ballroom to the dining room . . . on to the art gallery, and back through the ballroom on the way to the third floor.

Glanced in the crowd were a number of service-set notables, a scattering of residential Washingtonians, the usual quota of diplomats—with the exception of the Germans and Italians, none of whom seemed to be there—and several members of the press.

AMONG THE early arrivals were Mrs. J. L. Houghteling, who came with Mrs. Herbert Feis; the Commandant of the Navy Yard and Mrs. George Pettengill; Mrs. Frederick W. Bosch and her daughter, Miss Betty Bosch; Mrs. Warren Lee Pierson; Charles H. March, of the Federal Trade Commission, and Mrs. March; Mrs. Harry W. Blair and Mrs. Henry Gratton Doyle.

The Wage-Hour Administrator, Elmer Andrews, and Mrs. Andrews were among those coming during the first half of the party; also, the Assistant WPA Administrator, Aubrey Williams, and Mrs. Williams; the Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, the latter wearing a snappy black ensemble; Mrs. Donald Richberg, in a trim plum-colored frock and hat, with Mrs. Louis Caldwell; Mrs. Peyton March, Mr. and Mrs. Preston McGowan, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hogue, Mrs. Howell Moorhead and Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Morris and their son, Edgar Morris, Jr.

OSCAR L. CHAPMAN, Assistant Secretary of Interior, was there; also, Mrs. Harry H. Woodring, wife of the Secretary of War; Ales Hrdlicka, of the Smithsonian Institution; Jerome N. Frank, of the Securities and Exchange Commission; Justice and Mrs. Justin Miller; Dr. and Mrs. Charles Stanley White, the latter wearing a handsome wine ensemble; Mr. and Mrs. J. Fred Essary and their daughter, Miss Peggy Essary, in a smart red frock with a hat to match; Mrs. George Allen, whose

The Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Henry A. Wallace were among the hundreds who turned out yesterday for the gala afternoon reception at which Washington society helped celebrate the twenty-first anniversary of the Soviet Republic. In the absence of the Ambassador, Alexander Troyanovsky, who, it is rumored, will not return, the Charge d'Affaires and Mme. Oumansky were hosts.

black off-the-face hat and tailored frock were set off with a double silver fox necklace; Emil Hurja, Mrs. John Herrick, Miss Mary Anderson, of the Labor Department; Mr. and Mrs. Edwin D. Canham, Ernest Lindley, and Dr. Isadore Lubin, of the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Still others in the crowd were the house guests at the Soviet Embassy, V. V. Bourmann, Deputy Commissioner of the U. S. S. R. to the New York World's Fair, and Boris M. Yofan, chief architect of the Socialist pavilion at the fair.

Among the representatives from the Diplomatic Corps were the French Ambassador, Count Rene Doyne de Saint Quentin, and several members of his staff, including the Military Attache, Lieut. Col. Emmanuel Lombard, and Mme. Lombard, and the Naval Attache, Commander Pierre Benesch and Mme. Benesch. V. A. L. Mallet, Counselor of the British Embassy, was there; also the Ambassador of Turkey and Mme. Ertegun; Senora de los Rios, wife of the Spanish Ambassador, who arrived with the Minister-Counselor of the Spanish Embassy and Senora de Lecuona; the Minister of Finland and Mme. Eero Järnefelt; the Siamese Minister and Mme. Abhail Rajamaitri; the Lithuanian Minister, Povilas Zadeikis; the Counselor of the Rumanian Legation, Mircea Victor Babes; Mme. Vladimir Hurban, wife of the Czechoslovak Minister; the Bulgarian Minister and Mme. Dimitri Naumoff; the Latvian Minister and Mme. Bilmanis, and many, many others.

Dora Thompson Feted by Aunt, Daisy Prentice

To Make Bow Here
Mrs. Hempstone's Child
Guest at Luncheon

Miss Daisy Prentice entertained at a luncheon yesterday in honor of her debutante niece, Miss Mary Dora Thompson.

The guests were the Misses Martha McKenna, Mary Parker, Edith Pearson, Anne Sterrett, Carolyn Chantry, Betty Chandler, Eleanor Dramel, Betty Hutchison, Margaret Johnson and Mrs. J. C. Dempsey, Mrs. Clarence L. Waters and Mrs. Joseph W. Leverton, the latter three of Annapolis.

Miss Thompson is the daughter of Mrs. Smith Hempstone, who organized the Washington Junior League here 25 years ago, and is a granddaughter of Theodore W. Noyes. She will be presented to Capital society at a tea December 3.

Capt. and Mrs. Hempstone recently returned to Washington after several years spent partly in Newport and partly in San Diego. They are making their home with Mr. Noyes, in whose home Miss Prentice resides.

Junior Leaguers Fete Mrs. Pratt, Former President

The visit here of Mrs. John Pratt, of New Orleans, former national president of the Association of Junior Leagues of America, has been the signal for a flurry of parties. Mrs. Pratt came here to address the season's opening luncheon of the league today to celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the Washington branch.

Miss Cecil Lester Jones, the league's president, will entertain at a cocktail party today for Mrs. Pratt, who is the house guest of Mrs. Marshall Digges. The latter gave a dinner for her last evening.

Yesterday Mrs. Pratt was honored guest at a tea given by Mrs. H. Chotard Eustis, formerly of New Orleans, in her apartment at 1835 Phelps place. Mrs. Eustis was assisted by her debutante daughter, Jane.

Among the forty-odd guests were Miss Jones, Mrs. Digges and Miss Anne Carter Greene, a former president of the Washington League. The hostess wore a street length black frock with a gold and red lame top.

Melchoirs Due Here Tomorrow

Laurenz Melchior, who will be soloist with the National Symphony Orchestra at its first evening concert of the season tomorrow night, will arrive in Washington this morning with Mrs. Melchior. They will be here in time for breakfast with Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Townsend, who will entertain them during their Washington stay.

Tomorrow evening, the Charge d'Affaires of Denmark and Mme. William Eickhoff will be hosts at the supper party arranged for them at the Danish Legation, at 1620 Belmont street northwest. When the function was planned, the Minister, Otto Wadsted, was expected to be here in time for it, but since he has been detained in Paris because of illness the Eickhoffs will all in for him. Mr. Wadsted is expected to arrive in New York Thursday and will come directly to Washington. Mme. Wadsted, who is remaining on in Europe for a while, will join him here later.

Mr. Melchior sang in Richmond last evening and will come here from there early this morning. On Friday, he appeared in a concert with Lottie Lehmann in Philadelphia. Mrs. Townsend stopped by to hear them on her way to New York. Mr. Melchior and Mrs. Lehmann will appear at her final morning musicale of this season February 6.

Notes of Society

Official and Residential

Jouett Shouse at their residence in Georgetown.

Baron Ulrich von Gienanth, Attache of the German embassy, has taken an apartment at the Wardman Park Hotel for the winter.

Miss Betty DuPre and Miss Mildred Rockwell have returned to their studies at Mary Washington College in Fredericksburg, Va., after spending the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Chaffield-Taylor. Mrs. James Clement Dunn is Mrs. Armour's sister.

The French Ambassador, Count Rene Doyne de Saint Quentin, will be guest of honor at a dinner Tuesday evening, November 13, given by Mr. and Mrs.

Mr. and Mrs. Harrah Mulliken have opened their home here after spending the summer at their camp on Lake Champlain. With their daughters, the Misses Eleanor and Ruth Mulliken, they have been hosts this week to their cousin, Lady Blackett, of London.

Mrs. and Mrs. Clayton Ely Emig have as their guests at their home, Emigold, their daughter, Mrs. De Forest Mellon, of Cleveland. Mrs. Emig entertained a party of 12 at luncheon on Saturday at the Army and Navy Club in honor of Mrs. Mellon.

Capt. and Mrs. John H. Gibbons have gone to White Sulphur Springs for a few days before leaving for a Florida winter. They have been at the Sulgrave Club for several days since closing their home.

About The Town

With Dudley Harmon

PARTIES—but this time political instead of the other variety—are the main interest of Washington society today as elections are held all over the country. Everybody is wondering what old faces will be missing from the scene after the votes are counted and what new ones will enliven the Capital this winter.

There are several candidates for election who, perhaps, more from the point of view of personalities than of politics, are particularly interesting to the people who make up the social whirl here.

Former Senator Warren Barbour, who is running again in New Jersey, was with his beautiful wife, one of the comparatively few prominent senatorial figures in society when they lived here. They entertained frequently in their home on Kalorama Circle, which is now occupied by Miss Audrey Campbell. Their many friends here hope he will win over William H. L. Ely, Democratic candidate.

If Gov. George Earle is elected Senator, Washington society will be considerably enlivened by the presence of the Pennsylvania Governor and his wife, who have charm as well as money. Both are widely entertained when they visit here. On the other hand, Senator James J. Davis, who is running against him, and Mrs. Davis have made a circle of friends here who would be disappointed to see him lose.

The campaign which Maj. Henry Leonard has been conducting for representative from Colorado has interested his friends here, but since the Leonard's home is in Washington anyway, it wouldn't make so much difference to Capital society if he lost. He is running as a Republican.

Other contests in which society is interested include the race between Senator Robert J. Bulkley of Ohio and Robert A. Taft, son of Mrs. William Howard Taft, who lives here; and the campaign of Representative Caroline O'Day, close friend of Mrs. Roosevelt, who took the stump for her when she first ran several years ago; Representative Edith Nourse Rogers, the prettiest of the women in Congress and one of the most hospitable; and Thomas Eliot, New Dealer and former counsel of the Social Security Board, who is running against veteran Robert Luce of Massachusetts.

TO PASS from elections to a wedding, that on November 26 of Rebecca Trucco and Robert Knowlton will be preceded by a number of parties. The largest will be the dance which her sister, Maria, will give for her on Saturday, November 19, at the embassy. The former Ambassador to Chile and Mrs. William S. Culbertson are planning a dinner in honor of Miss Trucco, whose father is Chilean envoy here, and her fiancé.

A LIBERAL FRIEND wants to know waggishly if the Communists have a hand in it, doesn't sound like Nazi propaganda.

PARTY NOTES: Rear Admiral and Mrs. Mark Bristol will be hosts at dinner before the reception on Saturday evening at the Cuban embassy in honor of Col. Batista.

TALENTED Margot Garrett Zuberbuhler is doing some serious writing these days. She recently completed a short story with the problem of career versus being a housewife as the main theme.

TRAVEL NEWS: Mrs. Dwight Davis, Mrs. George Garrett, Mrs. James Clement Dunn, Mrs. Dean Acheson and Mrs. Charles Hofer are all taking off together by plane today for Pittsburgh. They will search for sculpture there for the next exhibit of the Museum of Modern Art. . . . Mrs. Henry LaRue Roosevelt will return today from Philadelphia, where she visited her son, Nicholas Roosevelt, and his wife, the former Vera Story. . . . Tomorrow of Ohio and Robert A. Taft, son of Mrs. William Howard Taft, who lives here; and the campaign of Representative Caroline O'Day,

MRS. ROBERT W. CHAMBERS, who has taken a house on Twenty-fourth street for the winter, will be joined there shortly by her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Chambers, Jr. Mrs. Chambers is the widow of the famous novelist, and has spent much time in Washington.

Autumn Races Next Week-end To Climax Middleburg Season

Sandees and Miss Noland to Be Joint Hosts
Mr. Leiter to Give Dance for 300 Afterward
North Wales Club Event to Honor Miss Stokes

The Middleburg season this autumn will come to a climax next week-end when the annual Middleburg fall races will be held. This event attracts hundreds of social notables from Washington, New York, and the surrounding country.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel C. Sandes and Miss Charlotte Noland will be joint hosts at luncheon before the races, entertaining at the Sandes home, Benton Farms, Mrs. Claude A. Swanson, wife of the Secretary of the Navy, and Mrs. Woodrow Wilson will be among guests.

One of the largest parties of the year will be held following the races, when Thomas Leiter will give a dance for 300 guests at the North Wales Club in Warrenton. The party is in honor of Miss Mary Stokes, attractive daughter of Mrs. Henry Drummond-Wolf, of London, and of Sylvanus Stokes, of Annapolis.

The big Glenwood Park course has been re-worked, under the expert guidance of the foreman in charge of the brush packing of the National Cup Foxcatcher course, of which William duPont, Jr. is head. Mr. duPont, who is a member of the Middleburg race committee, will inspect the completed jumps sometime this week.

Highlight of the races will be the run for the Glenwood National Cup, the $1,000 feature brush race, over Grand National type fences. Warner L. Ballazzi's Ad Lib, trained by William B. Streett, of Warrenton, is a likely favorite for the Glenwood National.

Contesting this gallant little chestnut will be such stars as Louis Stoddard, Jr.'s Blackcock, winner of the Virginia National at Warrenton last May and the Cedarhurst Grand National this year on Long Island; F. Ambrose Clark's Birmingham; Mrs. Clark's Eastern Shore; J. Frederic Adams' Bell Man, a consistent performer; Little Hard, of the Sandy Woods Stable, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Verner Z. Reid, of Pinehurst; Big March, running in the colors of Mrs. Philip Schwartz, and Ray Wolfe, winner of the R. Penn Smith Handicap.

At a "family dinner" last evening, Mrs. Delos A. Blodgett celebrated her birthday. Among those present were her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Parsons Erwin, and her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Delos A. Blodgett 2d, who flew down from their home in New York to be present.

Yesterday afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Blodgett 2d entertained his mother at a luncheon at Pierre's.

Holcombs Hold First Fall 'At Home'

Mrs. Vogel, Mrs. Upshur Aid
Breckinridges Attend
Also Seth Williames

By Elizabeth Healey.

Looking into the quiet quadrangle back of the quarters with the lights of the stern barracks surrounding it, one might have been in a lonely outpost in India. But the distant ring of a streetcar bell, the gay lilt of voices and the strains of the orchestra in the background made one remember that this was the Marine Barracks in the heart of Washington, and that Maj. Gen. Thomas Holcomb, Commandant of the Marine Corps, and Mrs. Holcomb were having their first "at home" of the winter season.

Mrs. Holcomb, whose sprained ankle can't keep her from enjoying life, received her visitors from a great chair, beside which stood the general. She wore a floor-length tea-gown of lavender and fuchsia chiffon.

In the second drawing room, the windows of which were also draped in a gold shade, members of the Marine Orchestra, in their brilliant red uniforms, played while one of their number sang.

Assisting during the afternoon in the high-ceilinged dining room were Mrs. Clayton B. Vogel, Mrs. William P. Upshur, Mrs. R. B. Putnam, Mrs. R. C. Berkeley, Mrs. Holland Smith, Mrs. William Hupertus, Mrs. Charles T. Brock, Mrs. W. P. T. Hill, Mrs. Cornelius P. Van Ness, Mrs. F. H. Williams, Mrs. Joseph O. Butcher.

Among the guests during the afternoon were Maj. Gen. and Mrs. James C. Breckinridge, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Frederic L. Bradman, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Seth Williams, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. R. F. Williams, Col. and Mrs. Edward A. Ostermann, Col. and Mrs. Alexander A. Vandergrift, Col. and Mrs. Joseph Knighton, Col. and Mrs. Henry Larsen and Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Donald Curtis.

Also there were Col. and Mrs. J. C. Smith, Mrs. Smith in duobonnet boucle, with matching accessories; Col. and Mrs. Maurice Shearer, she in black velvet with a rose velvet hat; Col. and Mrs. William W. Ashurst, Mrs. Ashurst in a blended ensemble of lavender and rose; Capt. and Mrs. Walter A. Wachter, the latter in black with a fascinating necklace of hundreds of strands of copper wire in graduated loops; Capt. and Mrs. Cornelius P. Van Ness, she in a plum shade of crepe with matching accessories and a trim of cut steel beads, and most of the officers of the Marine Corps in their colorful uniforms.

Also noted were Capt. and Mrs. Frank Whitehead, Capt. and Mrs. Levin Taylor, Capt. and Mrs. Frank S. McAllister and Capt. and Mrs. E. S. Piper.

Many Members Of Society To Hear Dr. Dewey on Art

Prominent members of Capital society are among those who have made reservations for the lecture to be given on Sunday by John Dewey, at the Phillips Memorial Gallery. Dr. Dewey, who is making his first public appearance in Washington in many years, will speak on "The Philosophy of the Arts."

Expected to be present are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss, Mrs. Walter Bruce Howe, Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. L. Corrin Strong, Mrs. Avery Conoley, Dr. John W. Studebaker, Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Draper and Dr. Julia Hahn.

The lecture is a joint presentation of the Washington Dance Association and the Phillips Memorial Gallery.

Mrs. Hitchcock Leaves To Meet Her Sister

Mrs. Gilbert Hitchcock is in New York, where she went to meet her sister, Mrs. Denman Kountze, of Omaha, Neb.

Mrs. Kountze will return to Washington with Mrs. Hitchcock this week and will be here for several days.

Brooks
1109 G Street

a coat that is so
CASUALLY PERFECT
you can literally
"live in it"

Grand tailoring, expensive appearance . . . and a perfect dream of adaptability! A smart four-pocket, boxy coat . . . in "Kinkana," a handsome nubby wool-and-rayon fabric. Rich clear colors . . . black, beaver brown, teal blue, grape or wine. Sizes 12 to 20.

16.95
Better Coats—Second Floor

At SLOAN'S ART GALLERIES
715 Thirteenth St.

Valuable Antique Tapestries, Antique Furniture, High-Grade Reproductions of all the well-known Old Periods, Semi-Antique Oriental Rugs in all sizes, Antique Silver, Two Large Kaitaire Diamond Rings, Valuable Large Kaitaire Diamond Silverware, Luxurious Upholstered Chairs and Davenport, Decorative Mirrors, Fireplace Garlands, Etc.

TO BE SOLD AT PUBLIC AUCTION
Within Our Galleries
715 THIRTEENTH STREET

Today, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday
November 8th, 9th, 10th, 11th and 12th
AT 2 P. M. EACH DAY

FROM THE
ESTATE OF MARY G. BAKER,
Deceased

Elizabeth B. K. Beach, Executrix Samuel F. Beach, Attorney
The National Savings and Trust Co. and Other Estates and Owners.

Catalogue on application to
C. G. SLOAN & CO., Inc., Auctioneers
ESTABLISHED 1891

3 Portraits of Character 12.50

Men prefer our portraits. They have quality without fuss, dignity, force. Famous Underwood portraits from $15 a dozen. Phone now for appointment.

UNDERWOOD
UNDERWOOD

1230 Connecticut Avenue
District 4486

The Integrity of the store from which you buy is of Importance.

Julius Garfinckel & Company

The New Importance of
JEWELLED SPLENDOR AND THE GLEAM OF GOLD IN COSTUME JEWELRY

Is Beautifully Expressed in Our Exclusive Selections.

Have our massive gold-colored bracelets clanking at your wrist; add the glitter and gleam of lovely jewel tones in our colored-stone clips; earrings to match; ring of mammoth size; and know that you have beautiful and different modern costume jewelry. We are showing an especially interesting group of French pieces, including the newly favored flower designs . . . dog-collars, Rhinestones; pearl and other precious jewel simulations in fascinating pieces. Our forte is in matching sets . . . let us show you how it's done.

F at Fourteenth

'Who's Who' of University Women Honor Dean Morriss, of Pembroke

Dr. Woolley Speaks
Convention Planned
U. S. Aid Discussed

By Jessie Ash Arndt,
The Post Staff Writer

A who's who in women's colleges could have been compiled last night from the guest list at the dinner given by the Washington branch of the American Association of University Women, honoring Dean Margaret S. Morriss, of Pembroke College, national president. Other members of the board here for the session being held in preparation for the Denver convention next June, also were honored at the affair.

Dean Morriss, who was introduced by Mrs. Robert Olesen, president of the local branch, discussed "Problems and Plans of the National Organization." Among the matters to come before the national convention will be that of Federal aid for education, she said, and indicated that such assistance was generally favored by the association. "All of us who believe in land-grant colleges—and many would not be here to-night if there had not been these—must acknowledge the importance of Federal aid," she said.

Another important problem on which the convention will decide is that of the acceptance of graduates of teachers colleges into the association membership. Since 1929, the American Association of Universities' standards have been used as those of the A. A. U. W. Teachers colleges are now to be included under these, and the association will be obliged to take action on the question. It is one they have had under consideration for some time and on which they have been conducting a survey of their own.

Dean Morriss discussed the rapidly growing interest in the arts program of the association. She also expressed gratification about the fellowships the association maintains.

Organizations such as the A. A. U. W. owe it to women to offer such fellowships, she said, other things being equal, an award open to both men and women is usually given to a man as it is considered more likely that he will continue to carry on his research than will the woman, she pointed out.

Following a brief resume of the conference of the International Federation of University Women, which Dr. Mary E. Woolley, past president, attended as a delegate, Dean Morriss discussed the clubhouse in Paris, which has been offered the American Association if it will assume its maintenance. Although it is a beautiful building and important as a center of international friendship among university women, the advisability of the A. A. U. W.'s assuming responsibility for it is a question, she said—one which will come before the convention in June.

Dean Morriss and Mrs. Olesen, who were seated together at the head table last night, made a striking picture. The former wore a silver lame jacket with a black skirt trimmed with long inserts of lame. The silver in the material blended with the color of her hair. Mrs. Olesen wore a gown of black chiffon, with a heavy cobweb design in gold, matching the golden tones in her hair.

Post Staff Photo.

Dean Margaret S. Morriss, of Pembroke College, Brown University (center), president of the American Association of University Women, who was guest of honor last night at a reception and dinner given by the Washington Branch, in conversation with Dr. Mary E. Woolley (left), former national president, and Mrs. Robert Olesen, president of the local group.

Others seated at the head table were Mrs. Durward V. Sandifer, first vice president, and Miss Elsie Green, second vice president, of the local branch; Dr. Louise Pound, of Lincoln, Neb., first vice president of the national; Mrs. Arthur S. Heineman, of Los Angeles; Mrs. Adan Leroy James, of Montclair, N. J.; Mrs. H. K. Painter, of Minneapolis; Mrs. W. S. Garney, of Greeley, Colo.; Dr. Katharine Rogers Adams, of Albany, N. Y.; Dr. Susan M. Kingsbury, of Bryn Mawr, Pa.; Mrs. L. T. Merwin, of Portland, Ore.; Mrs. Fred G. Tryon, Mrs. James McClintock and Mrs. Harry Lee Franklin, of the national headquarters of the A. A. U. W. Dr. Kathryn McHale, general director, was unable to be present.

Officers of the Washington branch who were present were Mrs. Richard Hogue, Mrs. G. R. Wilhelm, Mrs. Colin W. Whitaker, Mrs. John Donaldson, Miss Myrl O. Rhine, Miss Mary Louise Chace, Mrs. G. L. Swiggett, Mrs. Parker D. Trank, Mrs. Frank S. Smith, Mrs. Edmund Campbell, Mrs. Lawrence Radford, Miss Bertha Nienburg.

Jewish Relief Auxiliary Holds Luncheon

800 at Annual Fete
$4,000 Is Raised
For Denver Hospital

More than 800 members of the Jewish Relief Auxiliary of the Jewish Consumptives' Relief Society yesterday attended the annual donor luncheon held in the ballroom of the Mayflower Hotel.

Proceeds of the affair, amounting to $4,000, will go toward maintenance of the sanatorium in Denver, where a number of Washingtonians are patients.

Guests of honor at the luncheon, at which Mrs. Martin Mendelsohn, the president, presided, were Judge William M. Lewis and Mrs. Lewis, of Philadelphia, and Dr. Lewis I. Miller, of the board of the Denver sanatorium, and Mrs. Miller. Judge Lewis, who opens the convention of the J. C. R. S. in New York each year, commended the Washington auxiliary as one of the largest and most active in the country.

Mrs. Mendelsohn introduced Mrs. Nathan Wallace, executive director of the luncheon; Mrs. Joseph Millenson, treasurer for the affair and a past president of the auxiliary, and Mrs. William Levy, also a past president, who had much to do with its success. She also especially mentioned work for the rummage shop conducted for the auxiliary by Mrs. Louis Dinowitz. Among those praised were Mrs. Benson Goldman, Mrs. Louis Stein and Mrs. Sarah Ehrlich.

The donor luncheon is the largest money-making affair sponsored by the auxiliary. Another smaller one will be the dance, February 12, of which Mrs. Harry Brandt and Mrs. Joseph Friedman will be in charge.

A feature of the program, in addition to Judge Lewis' talk, was a skit, "The Cry of the Opera Dolls." It was directed by Bernice H. Hollands, with Miss Paula Heilmann as accompanist and Mrs. Castel Eskin as commentator.

Hadassah Talks Begin Tomorrow

Dr. Louis L. Kaplan, of Baltimore Hebrew College, will begin his series of lectures under the auspices of the Hadassah Institute of Jewish Education, which is the educational program inaugurated by the Washington Chapter of Hadassah, tomorrow at 2 p. m. at the Jewish Community Center.

His subject will be, "Thirty-five Hundred Years—The World's Enigma."

The topic will cover the history of the Jews and an interpretation of each period. The lectures to follow will take place Monday, November 21; Monday, December 5, and the fourth and concluding one on Monday, December 19. Mrs. Samuel Dodek is chairman of the committee.

Countess d'Alviella To Speak Today At Y Luncheon

Countess Helene Goblet d'Alviella, president of the National Y. W. C. A. of Belgium, will be the guest speaker today at the World Fellowship Luncheon of the local "Y."

Members of the committee are: Mrs. William S. Culbertson, chairman; Miss Helen Lyon, Mrs. W. E. Allison, Mrs. Arthur Cull, Mrs. Charles Drayton, Mrs. H. W. Frantz, Mrs. S. L. Henderson, Mrs. Ralph Kennard, Mrs. McCall Kerbey, Mrs. J. T. Schaefer, Mrs. G. Stone, Mrs. A. B. Summers, Mrs. B. H. Warner, Mrs. W. F. Willoughby, Mrs. D. E. Yarnell, and Mrs. Ernest Smith.

The luncheon is sponsoring a benefit doll's fair November 18-22.

Bedtime Story

By Thornton W. Burgess.

Refugees

The misery that you can share is somehow easier to bear—Bobby Coon.

Bobby Coon was a refugee. So was Uncle Billy Possum. So were Happy Jack Squirrel. So were others in the Green Forest after the hurricane. You know a refugee is one who is left homeless by some great disaster like a flood or a storm or a fire.

Bobby Coon had happened to be at home when the hurricane swept through the Green Forest. Mrs. Bobby and the children were off somewhere looking for a feast of wild grapes. They are fond of these. At first Bobby had not been afraid. Even when the tree in a big hollow of which was the family home began to sway Bobby thought little of it. Many times had he been rocked to sleep by the slight swaying of that tree when the wind blew hard. But when the tree began to creak and strain and he heard other trees falling he became anxious, and then frightened. And when at last that tree had split and torn apart Bobby had fled in terror, finding refuge in a hollow log on the ground in which Uncle Billy Possum was covering. Somehow it was comforting to find someone else equally frightened, for it is true that misery likes company. Bobby and Uncle Billy are not close friends, but each was glad of the other's company.

When the storm was over and they ventured out of that hollow log they were bewildered. This wasn't the Green Forest they knew so well. All about were fallen trees. Other trees were partly over, leaning against their neighbors. Great limbs had been torn from still others. Bobby and Uncle Billy felt lost. It was no wonder that when Uncle Billy asked Bobby where he was going from there he replied that he didn't know. It was just as with Uncle Billy. So for a while they just sat where they were. Then they wandered away, one in one direction and the other in another direction, both anxious for they knew not where to go.

Bobby was not worried as to where he could find a place to sleep. Sleeping away from home was no new experience with him. He had done it often. He had slept in old

Working For Washington

Shoes, Underwear, Needed by Pupils

P.-T. A. Makes Appeal for Needy
2,900 Were Aided During 1937
Mrs. L. S. Brooks Directs Work

By Christine Sadler.

SHOES and heavy underwear are the big clothing needs of Washington's underprivileged school children, according to Mrs. L. S. Brooks, chairman of the student aid committee of the District Congress of Parents and Teachers, which last year provided clothes for 2,900 pupils.

"We never have enough money for either," she said. The winter underwear is needed because the children so often live in unheated homes and practically none of it ever comes to us in second-hand bundles."

The committee receives $1,200 a year from the Community Chest for shoes, but usually remains around 100 pairs behind the requests. In addition, hundreds of reconditioned pairs are given out each year. Committee members love to put good shoes on pupils' feet, but probably the most touched they have ever been was last spring when they bought a new pair for the valedictorian of a high school class.

His Flight Related

"He had not asked us, but his teacher had learned why he was not coming to commencement," Mrs. Brooks said. "Usually they do ask for the clothes. We sometimes get worried because they have no hesitancy about asking. Five years ago the situation was different."

Clothing for boys is hard to find, because boys have a way of wearing things out. The committee has no trouble clothing the girls, but it has learned that second-hand clothes that are halfway in style are more liked by girls than new dresses committee members try to make.

Most of the children helped are members of large families. Many of them have to be helped right through to graduation. The committee sees that all graduates on the list have brand-new outfits that match up with those the other children are wearing.

17 Years of Work
The committee's work has been under way for 17 years and has increased each year. The members saw all day twice a week and spend additional time collecting bundles donated at different schools. Teachers check on student needs and are the follow-up contacts. A permanent file is kept of every transaction.

The Red Cross, the Needlework Guild and the Sunshine Society are among the organizations which contribute to this feature of the P.-T. A. work.

Mrs. Brooks is serving her second year as chairman. She has been in parent-teacher work ever since she moved to Washington four years ago from Pittsburgh. She is a member of the Central High School group now, although she started out with her daughter at Powell Junior High, where she was student aid chairman.

Army Daughters Meet
The Daughters of the U. S. Army met at the Army-Navy Club yesterday with L. R. Pennington, of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, as guest speaker.

Fashion says SMALL WAISTS

Slenderizes YOUR WAIST

A NEW TWO-WAY STRETCH GIRDLE

$1.19

Slenderize your waist with one of these new girdles—small, medium and large sizes.

Kann's

Notion Dept., Street Floor.

THE TOP CANNOT ROLL DOWN OR CURL

Madame Chairman

By Suzanne

THE LEAGUE OF REPUBLICAN WOMEN yesterday accepted with regret the resignation of Mrs. Cantacuzene as its president. Action was taken at the board meeting in the morning, followed by the regular meeting of the league yesterday afternoon in the Mayflower, addressed by Miss Marion Martin, of the Republican National Committee.

Mrs. Frank Mondell, acting president, appointed a committee headed by Mrs. Mary Logan Tucker to consider a successor to Mrs. Cantacuzene. Other members are Mrs. Virginia White Speel, national committeewoman for the District; Mrs. William R. Castle, Mrs. William Morton Grinnell and Mrs. Henry Albers. The league is keeping open house for members and friends to hear election returns tonight, with Mrs. Howard S. LeRoy as hostess.

THE BOARD of the D. C. Congress of Parents and Teachers is having its regular meeting this morning at 10 o'clock in the board room of the N. E. A. Building. After the business meeting, Mrs. Charles A. Roe will conduct a brief institute for the members.

APPOINTMENT of Alice Hunt Bartlett, of New York, as chairman of art for the National League of American Pen Women was announced by Audrey Wurdemann.

(Mrs. Joseph Auslander), president, following the November board meeting yesterday. Mrs. Bartlett, who is well known in Washington, is American editor of "The British Poetry Review."

MRS. ELLERY C. STOWELL is speaking today at a meeting of the Montgomery Club of Chevy Chase at the home of Mrs. H. T. Wensel.

Selly Arch Preserver Shoes

Sold Exclusively in Washington at HAHN 1207 7 St. * 3212 14th St.

BEST & CO.

4431 CONNECTICUT AVE., N.W., NEAR ALBEMARLE ST. • Emerson 7700

THE ANNUAL AUTO SHOW IS NOW BEING HELD IN THIS BUILDING

A BRIGHT LINING TO YOUR VELVETEEN SKATING SKIRT

7.95
SIZES 12 to 18

Skirt with 10-in. lining of rayon taffeta

EVERY time you circle or turn on the ice, a flash of bright red or green livens the soot-black velveteen of this skirt. It has a wide circular flare for complete freedom-in-action. You'll want to top it with a soft brushed wool sweater and "A Tisket A Tasket", our suede baby bonnet.

SWEATER, 5.00. "A TISKET, A TASKET", 1.95

EASY PARKING SPACE

*Reg. applied for

Keep off the chill breezes "SLUMBER-WYN" Pajamas in pinstripe lisle by Van Raalte

Not a chance of chills in Slumber-Wyns! They're made of bunny-soft lisle in comfortable two-piece styles. With long sleeves, ski bottom trousers, bow tie at the neck, rope tie at waistline. Warm and comfy for sleeping or lounging. Petal pink, light blue, canary, Normandie, green, coral. Small, medium and large sizes.

$2

"Because you love nice things"

Lingerie—Main Floor

THE HECHT CO.

7 STREET AT SEVENTH

NATIONAL 2000

What! HOSIERY That Will Not Run!

It's True . . . See Our 3-Thread

"Selma" KANT-RUN HOSIERY $1.25 pr.

Punch holes in them—tear them—snag them! The damage stops because every stitch is locked so it cannot continue! Although they're a sheer diamond mesh hose, at a few feet away they look like a very sheer, lovely chiffon. In stunning Fall shades . . . Harvest, Brier, Pumpkin, Beaver and Chow. Sizes 8½ to 10½.

Hosiery Headquarters—Street Floor

Kann's

Farley Sees 'Sabotage' in G.O.P. Tactics

Victory Held Certain
Walter Johnson Says No
He Wants Varsity Team

James A. Farley, Democratic national chairman, in his final election appeal last night, charged a "tremendous effort" had been made by Republicans and others to "sabotage" the Roosevelt policies, but declared "there is not a moment's doubt as to the verdict."

Against him, the Republican National Committee presented Walter Johnson, the "Big Train" of baseball, who expressed his concern over "things happening in Washington," and told the country "the second team has been in long enough—let's put in the varsity."

The two speeches, broadcast over the National networks, were the last word from the two national party organizations before voters start to the polls, beginning at 6:30 a. m. today.

Farley pleaded with the party workers, whom he thanked for their "fine service" to overcome the tendency "to slow up" in the "certainty of victory."

"Many citizens may be inclined to figure," he said, "that as the retention of control of both houses of Congress by the majority party is assured there is no need for their voting."

He called for workers to discourage such sentiment and make it certain that the full Democratic vote is cast.

Groups whose interest are neither Democratic nor Republican, Farley declared, "masquerading under all sorts of patriotic titles," have "contributed in every way to a mass effort to break down the measures that have been enacted to give the ordinary citizen a decent break in our economic system."

.....

Lack of Program Cited

He repeated his charge that the Republicans are without a program and refuse to say which New Deal enactments they would repeal, though the Democratic leader charged his rivals really want to "kill or hamstring" the wage-hour law and "cripple" the Securities and Exchange provisions "so that promoters could continue to prey" on the credulous.

"The whole question," he continued, "is whether this program of sabotage is to be encouraged or if the people will administer a fitting rebuke and reaffirm the Nation's faith in President Roosevelt and in the policies which have redeemed our country from the worst economic plight in which it ever found itself."

Walter Johnson, however, introduced by G. O. P. Chairman John Hamilton, took the air to point to "about 11,000,000 unemployed and 20,000,000 on relief" and to declare his belief that "the Government in Washington, trying to get control of everything, has made it impossible for individuals to get their teeth into the trouble and start us toward the top again."

Charges by Johnson

"We all know they have told the farmers how to run their farms," he went on. "They have told business what they could do and couldn't do. They have told all of us what we ought to do and frowned on us when we didn't do just as we were told. I wouldn't be surprised if they'd like to be able not just to tell us what we ought to do but that we had to do it."

"And that, I say, is not American. I honestly believe that if we could be permitted again to go slumming into this long drawn-out depression in good old American style we'd be out of it in jig time."

He criticized provisions for the social security reserve fund, which he said had all been spent. "Did you imagine," he asked, "that the money for the tremendous spending being done by the New Deal was coming out of thin air?"

Big Fund Criticized

He declared there was no necessity for building up such a big fund. "It just gives the administrator in power a big pot of money, and it would take a strong-minded administrator to keep from spending it."

He added that "the Republicans wish to change the part of the bill that puts that great pile of money at the disposal of the politicians in Washington. That's fair. That's the American way."

The former big league pitcher is running for election as commissioner of Montgomery County, Md., on the Republican ticket.

From neither party headquarters came any last-minute claims as to the number of Congressional seats to be won or retained.

U.S. Offices, Banks To Close Friday, But Not Big Stores

For the first time Washington will celebrate Armistice Day as a legal holiday Friday, but most big downtown stores plan to stay open.

All Federal departments and District banks will be closed for the day. Holiday schedules have been arranged by railroads, bus lines and planes.

Employees of stores planning to keep open who are members of military organizations will be excused so that they may participate in the parades and memorial ceremonies, officials said.

Last May Congress designated November 11—Armistice Day—as a legal holiday in the District.

NUT HARD COAL, $10.25

SPECIAL STOVE, $8.25; STOVE, $10.25; EGG, $10.00; PEA, $2.50.

ARMISTICE MINE IN VIRGINIA

We Deliver to You and Us

Delivered in BAGS to Your Bin

BLUE RIDGE COAL CO.

2021 2045 Jackson 1900

Established 1895

LOUIS ABRAHAMSON

COANS ON JEWELRY

2021 2045 Jackson 1900

CASH FOR YOUR OLD GOLD

711 G St. N.W.

College Must Give Students Character, Says Antioch Head

Self-Reliance Needed
Liberal Arts Secondary
Vital to Democracy

The 41-year-old president of a college that believes in "preparing the student for life by having him participate in life" expressed the opinion yesterday that American education needs "a pretty good overhaul" if democracy is to be upheld.

Algo D. Henderson, head of Antioch College, Yellow Springs, Ohio, explained that students must be trained in self-reliance, independence of judgment and maturity of thought as well as the liberal arts. "We must have strength of character in the individual to sustain democracy," said Henderson, a Washington visitor yesterday, who in 1936 succeeded Dr. A. E. Morgan, ousted chairman of the TVA, as president of Antioch.

"It seems to be generally the case in the United States that instruction leans toward mass education and dependence of the individual on constituted authority," he observed.

Without losing sight of the liberal arts, Henderson pointed out, Antioch has added to its curriculum a system of vocational training that enables the student "to get an idea before he leaves college of what he is going to do afterward."

Every student—man or woman—spends at least three years alternating between academic life and practical experience in any one of scores of businesses and professions, ranging from selling to civil engineering and from farming to social work.

Asked if it was not difficult to find jobs for the 700 undergraduates, Henderson replied, "Well, it isn't easy, but we manage to get it done."

About 30 Antioch students were recently working in Government offices, department stores and elsewhere in Washington, he said.

"Young people ought to get some knowledge of their lifetime activities; they ought to meet various classes of people; they ought to mature their personalities," declared Henderson.

He said Antioch's efforts to meet

.....

Andrews Aide

Called Red Writer

Dies

Continued from Page 1.

are not Communists but who were opposed to these two evils.

Matthews told the committee that in the early 1930's he was connected with 28 communist united front organizations. He testified:

1. That he had been associated with Heywood Brown, newspaper columnist and president of the American Newspaper Guild, in "at least five communist united fronts."

2. That a communist workers' school in New York was using as a textbook a volume entitled "Left Wing Unionism," written by David Sapos, chief economist of the Labor Relations Board. Sapos commented that the book was primarily a descriptive analysis and that "communists have taken strong exception to my interpretations and evaluations of their actions."

3. That the Communist Party was "throwing the full force of its support" behind Democratic candidates in Pennsylvania, Ohio and New York who were supporting New Deal policies.

4. That the Communist Party was "building its strongest revolutionary movement" in three areas of the United States: an industrial triangle including Detroit, Pittsburgh and New York; the Pacific Coast and the South. In the South, he said, the party was relying upon "incitation of Negro population against the whites."

5. That Ben Golden, whom he identified as assistant director of the Labor Relations Board's regional office in New York, had told him Mrs. Elmer Herrick, director of that office, was "playing 100 per cent into the hands of the Communists."

Matthews, who said he was a former official of Consumers Research of Washington, N. J., said he was asked to submit the company's side of the labor dispute to Golden, and that Golden agreed "we had a conflict with communism" and suggested the company accept arbitration.

"If I did not agree," Matthews continued, "the case would pass into the hands" of Mrs. Herrick, who, Golden said, was "playing 100 per cent into the hands of the Communists and you have no chance with her."

He said the Labor Relations Board ordered Consumers Research to reinstate 42 strikers and pay them "hundreds of dollars" of back wages, but that after the company refused to comply the board proposed settlement of the matter for $100, $50 each to two reinstated workers.

.....

TRICO

Radiator Covers

complete the beauty of well-furnished and decorated rooms, prevent radiator units and provide proper humidity. Reasonable prices convenient terms.

Estimates Without Obligation.

FREDERIC B. BLACKBURN

5027 Georgia Ave. N.W.

Phone GEorgia 9827.

.....

Money Can't Buy Better Teeth

Plates $15, $10 and $50

Plates Covered While You Wait

Work Done in 30 Days Laboratory

No Lens Waiting. No High Prices.

CROWN & CO. 1000 10th St. N.W.

.....

$5 0000 $5

Extensive, 61—By Clin. Dr.

Dr. SMATHERS

ORIENTAL SPECIALISTS

Over 1000 National Club

(17th and Ave. St. N.W.)

Hours: 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. 7 p. m. to 9 p. m.

.....

5027 Georgia Ave. N.W.

Phone GEorgia 9827.

.....

5027 Georgia Ave. N.W.

Phone GEorgia 9827.

.....

5027 Georgia Ave. N.W.

Phone GEorgia 9827.

Roosevelt Told Party Will Win Crucial States

Roosevelt

Continued from Page 1.

the most trouble—the upper peninsula—is now declared to be in the Democratic column by at least 20,000. It was in defense of Gov. Murphy that President Roosevelt issued a scorching blast two weeks ago against Representative Martin Dies, of Texas, and his committee investigating un-American activities, following testimony that Gov. Murphy had shown "treasonable inactivity" at the time of the Flint all-down strikes and the Lansing "labor holiday."

Held Ohio Safe

In Ohio, the Democratic candidate for Governor, Charles Sawyer, should come to the Cuyahoga County line with at least a 60,000 majority, the confidential ears-to-the-ground informants say. Once over the line, a Democratic stronghold is found in Cleveland, which should serve to increase the lead over John W. Bricker, Republican, by 100,000 to 125,000. A lesser lead is predicted for Senator Robert Bulkley, who is having heavy going against Robert A. Taft, son of the former President.

Reassuring reports continued to come in today about the chances of the Democratic line, which should remain safely in the Democratic column. While California should remain safely in the Democratic column, the program espoused by the two candidates, "30 Every Thursday," should lose according to advisers received here.

.....

Continued from Page 1.

Reassuring reports continued to come in today about the chances of the Democratic line, which should remain safely in the Democratic column. While California should remain safely in the Democratic column, the program espoused by the two candidates, "30 Every Thursday," should lose according to advisers received here.

.....

Continued from Page 1.

Reassuring reports continued to come in today about the chances of the Democratic line, which should remain safely in the Democratic column. While California should remain safely in the Democratic column, the program espoused by the two candidates, "30 Every Thursday," should lose according to advisers received here.

.....

Continued from Page 1.

Reassuring reports continued to come in today about the chances of the Democratic line, which should remain safely in the Democratic column. While California should remain safely in the Democratic column, the program espoused by the two candidates, "30 Every Thursday," should lose according to advisers received here.

.....

Continued from Page 1.

Reassuring reports continued to come in today about the chances of the Democratic line, which should remain safely in the Democratic column. While California should remain safely in the Democratic column, the program espoused by the two candidates, "30 Every Thursday," should lose according to advisers received here.

.....

Continued from Page 1.

Reassuring reports continued to come in today about the chances of the Democratic line, which should remain safely in the Democratic column. While California should remain safely in the Democratic column, the program espoused by the two candidates, "30 Every Thursday," should lose according to advisers received here.

.....

Continued from Page 1.

Reassuring reports continued to come in today about the chances of the Democratic line, which should remain safely in the Democratic column. While California should remain safely in the Democratic column, the program espoused by the two candidates, "30 Every Thursday," should lose according to advisers received here.

.....

Continued from Page 1.

Reassuring reports continued to come in today about the chances of the Democratic line, which should remain safely in the Democratic column. While California should remain safely in the Democratic column, the program espoused by the two candidates, "30 Every Thursday," should lose according to advisers received here.

.....

Continued from Page 1.

Reassuring reports continued to come in today about the chances of the Democratic line, which should remain safely in the Democratic column. While California should remain safely in the Democratic column, the program espoused by the two candidates, "30 Every Thursday," should lose according to advisers received here.

.....

Continued from Page 1.

Reassuring reports continued to come in today about the chances of the Democratic line, which should remain safely in the Democratic column. While California should remain safely in the Democratic column, the program espoused by the two candidates, "30 Every Thursday," should lose according to advisers received here.

.....

Continued from Page 1.

Reassuring reports continued to come in today about the chances of the Democratic line, which should remain safely in the Democratic column. While California should remain safely in the Democratic column, the program espoused by the two candidates, "30 Every Thursday," should lose according to advisers received here.

.....

Continued from Page 1.

Reassuring reports continued to come in today about the chances of the Democratic line, which should remain safely in the Democratic column. While California should remain safely in the Democratic column, the program espoused by the two candidates, "30 Every Thursday," should lose according to advisers received here.

.....

Continued from Page 1.

Reassuring reports continued to come in today about the chances of the Democratic line, which should remain safely in the Democratic column. While California should remain safely in the Democratic column, the program espoused by the two candidates, "30 Every Thursday," should lose according to advisers received here.

.....

Continued from Page 1.

Reassuring reports continued to come in today about the chances of the Democratic line, which should remain safely in the Democratic column. While California should remain safely in the Democratic column, the program espoused by the two candidates, "30 Every Thursday," should lose according to advisers received here.

.....

Continued from Page 1.

Reassuring reports continued to come in today about the chances of the Democratic line, which should remain safely in the Democratic column. While California should remain safely in the Democratic column, the program espoused by the two candidates, "30 Every Thursday," should lose according to advisers received here.

.....

Continued from Page 1.

Moon Blushes in Eastern Sky In Rare Daytime Total Eclipse

Eclipse

Continued from Page 1.

ians didn't know what was taking place.

"What makes the moon so red tonight," was one nervous inquiry. "I'm at Fourteenth street and Park road, where's the moon?" an amateur bent on seeing the eclipse inquired.

Sun and Moon in Sky

While the eclipse was caused by the shadow of the earth passing between the sun and the moon, both sun and moon appeared to be in the sky for five minutes after the moon rose.

This was caused by refraction, Father McNally said. Bent light rays made both the sun and moon seem higher than they actually were. In fact observers who were lucky enough to get a clear view of the moon rising in total eclipse were seeing the moon before it came above the eastern horizon and seeing the sun after it sank below the western horizon, Father McNally said.

At the Georgetown observatory, the moon was first observed about 5:45 p. m. as it emerged from clouds still in total eclipse and appearing a pale shade of red.

Naval Observatory officials said the eclipse was one of the brightest they had ever observed. Its brightness, they said, was caused by the sun's light reaching it through outer atmosphere of the earth.

After remaining in total eclipse 82 minutes, the bright rim of the moon began to peer around the earth's black shadow, the umbra, at 6:07 p. m. and emerged at 7:12 p. m. It did not leave the penumbra, the earth's outer shadow, and regain full brightness until 8:14 p. m.

.....

Continued from Page 1.

Reassuring reports continued to come in today about the chances of the Democratic line, which should remain safely in the Democratic column. While California should remain safely in the Democratic column, the program espoused by the two candidates, "30 Every Thursday," should lose according to advisers received here.

.....

Continued from Page 1.

Reassuring reports continued to come in today about the chances of the Democratic line, which should remain safely in the Democratic column. While California should remain safely in the Democratic column, the program espoused by the two candidates, "30 Every Thursday," should lose according to advisers received here.

.....

Continued from Page 1.

Reassuring reports continued to come in today about the chances of the Democratic line, which should remain safely in the Democratic column. While California should remain safely in the Democratic column, the program espoused by the two candidates, "30 Every Thursday," should lose according to advisers received here.

.....

Continued from Page 1.

Reassuring reports continued to come in today about the chances of the Democratic line, which should remain safely in the Democratic column. While California should remain safely in the Democratic column, the program espoused by the two candidates, "30 Every Thursday," should lose according to advisers received here.

.....

Continued from Page 1.

Reassuring reports continued to come in today about the chances of the Democratic line, which should remain safely in the Democratic column. While California should remain safely in the Democratic column, the program espoused by the two candidates, "30 Every Thursday," should lose according to advisers received here.

.....

Continued from Page 1.

Reassuring reports continued to come in today about the chances of the Democratic line, which should remain safely in the Democratic column. While California should remain safely in the Democratic column, the program espoused by the two candidates, "30 Every Thursday," should lose according to advisers received here.

.....

Continued from Page 1.

Reassuring reports continued to come in today about the chances of the Democratic line, which should remain safely in the Democratic column. While California should remain safely in the Democratic column, the program espoused by the two candidates, "30 Every Thursday," should lose according to advisers received here.

.....

Continued from Page 1.

Reassuring reports continued to come in today about the chances of the Democratic line, which should remain safely in the Democratic column. While California should remain safely in the Democratic column, the program espoused by the two candidates, "30 Every Thursday," should lose according to advisers received here.

.....

Continued from Page 1.

Reassuring reports continued to come in today about the chances of the Democratic line, which should remain safely in the Democratic column. While California should remain safely in the Democratic column, the program espoused by the two candidates, "30 Every Thursday," should lose according to advisers received here.

.....

Continued from Page 1.

Reassuring reports continued to come in today about the chances of the Democratic line, which should remain safely in the Democratic column. While California should remain safely in the Democratic column, the program espoused by the two candidates, "30 Every Thursday," should lose according to advisers received here.

.....

Continued from Page 1.

Reassuring reports continued to come in today about the chances of the Democratic line, which should remain safely in the Democratic column. While California should remain safely in the Democratic column, the program espoused by the two candidates, "30 Every Thursday," should lose according to advisers received here.

.....

Continued from Page 1.

Reassuring reports continued to come in today about the chances of the Democratic line, which should remain safely in the Democratic column. While California should remain safely in the Democratic column, the program espoused by the two candidates, "30 Every Thursday," should lose according to advisers received here.

.....

Continued from Page 1.

Reassuring

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

CAPITAL CAPERS: Whoever wins today, money's master, a Washington bank advertisement says, "FHA loan to be repaid in 12 equal payments of $16.33, or $1.63 less than you borrowed; hurry before they sell out." An eminent labor leader here wears a gray suit (that used to belong to Clark Gable); the pants are silk-lined at the knees. Gov. Happy Chandler's handsome spouse made her debut in Washington society ten weeks sooner than if Kentucky had elected Happy to the Senate.

Internal Revenue's machinery has been oiled and speeded up so that 1937 income tax returns are being checked, and additional sums collected from citizens who thoughtlessly neglected to pay enough. Once upon a time they were two or more years behind. Maybe it's because the Government needs the money now.

On some Government office walls hang signs, "Don't phone Frisco before 12, Denver before 11, Chicago before 10." That's what comes from governing a land 3,000 miles wide, with four time zones. When a Washington official is going to lunch at 12 his aide in Los Angeles is just coming to work at 9.

—from barytone to President?—
If Tom Dewey of New York has anything to celebrate tonight, he can sing "The Never Told Her Love," which was his punch song at his only concert when he was a promising barytone. . . . And if things don't go well, he can hum a few matches of "Heath Ho," which is what he hums when he's chasing chisels.

There's a deceptive semi-official aura about a costly engraved invitation in Washington. Embassies and legations send out so many of them that the diplomats themselves are often a pushover for the paste-board squares. So the invitation racket is worked to death. The other evening the entire Diplomatic Corps received expensive invitations to a Shrine Temple premiere; and believe it or not, quite a few showed up, in starched shirts.

POTOMAC CAVIAR: In White House circles they call the gem from Texas "Hamilton Fish." Dies, because of his quaint resemblance for G.O.P. Fish. The all-American caviar, only among the 1938 Governors, and landed in the first cow pasture outside Pennsylvania. There, the story goes, he had his co-pilot point out the State insignia, as he could proceed in cognia.

—the Governor flew in—
Foes of elegant Gov. Earle have started another rude tale about him. They say that he started off once on a junket in a State airplane (he's the best, worst and only among the 1938 Governors) and landed in the first cow pasture outside Pennsylvania. There, the story goes, he had his co-pilot point out the State insignia, as he could proceed in cognia.

IN SOLONS' SALONS: If a Congressman dies in office, his wife gets a year's salary, $100, even if he has only a week to serve. His clerks get their wages for six months or until his term of office would have expired.

Some Congressmen's clerks live with their bosses and pay board and room. Helps make ends meet.

In passing on the status of the child labor amendment, drift among the Legislatures these many years, Chief Justice Hughes and his legal aides haven't much precedent to lean on. Of the 3,000 amendments to the Constitution proposed in 100 years, only 28 have been sanctioned by joint resolutions of both houses; and of these 28, only 21 have been ratified by three-fourths of the States.

And one of these amendments repeated another; you know which ones.

Copyright, 1938, Washington Post and Publishers Syndicate.

Sun Will Melt Earth, End Life, Says G. W. Savant
One of these days the earth will melt and, of course, all life will disappear. Dr. George Gamow, of George Washington University, said last night in a lecture.

But, he hastened to add, there's nothing to worry about because it won't happen for a couple of million years. In fact, no essential change in climate may be expected during the historical period, he said.

Dr. Gamow explained that the sun at present has about 60 per cent hydrogen and will become 100 times hotter when the hydrogen content drops down to a few per cent.

Local News Financial

Scenes at Community Chest's Eleventh Campaign Mass Meeting

Miss Thompson Urges Chest Aids Symbol of Democracy

Continued from Page 1.

Association marched to the platform. There one group of reserves held up placards which spelled out the slogan of the campaign, "Give a Hand-Up—Not a Hand-Out." A second group carried placards reading "Community Chest—1939."

Jennings pointed out that $2,127,000 has been set as the minimum which the local Chest will attempt to raise for the coming year.

$100-$500 Gifts Drop
Newbold Noyes, associate editor of the Star, declared the generosity with which people in the middle income brackets contribute to the Chest would determine the success of the campaign.

He asked workers to find out why this year's campaign is so important. He said that the Chest is "not a charity," but a "symbol of democracy."

He told campaign workers "not to feel that there is anything degrading in asking anyone with food on his table to give. He also warned them not to drag the campaign out too long."

Noyes said that if the tax collector is substituted for "pure charity," the Chest is "not a charity," but a "symbol of democracy."

He likewise suggested that they "set a figure, double it, and then a third, thought send in a substantial increase."

William J. Flather, Jr., campaign chairman, declared the purpose of the drive was to "make this a better city in which to live next year."

"Remember," he said, "it is not the Chest which needs help, but poor, sick, discouraged people. Workers in making solicitations and contributors in making gifts should keep them in mind."

The Chest's goal, Miss Thompson said, "is not a great deal of money to be distributed over a community of 500,000 people, among whom is much wealth and comfort."

"It is just four one-hundredths of your tax bill," she added, "and I warn you that if you don't pay it, it will turn up on your tax bill anyhow, and you will not have the pleasure of doing something out of conviction."

Issues Warning
Individual citizens in Washington and in communities throughout the country, she said, should contribute generously to the Community Chest, since it stands for the old-time voluntary method of looking after the needs of one's community in a world that is drifting toward consolidation of all social functions in government.

Miss Thompson warned that democratic principles would not survive if people fail to fulfill the responsibilities which devolve on them as citizens.

"If you are glad that you are still a free citizen of a rich democracy when the lives of democracies are at stake—give as a testimony that you wish to remain so," she declared.

Last April McAllister was driving his cab near the Union Station when he saw two robbers hold up an elderly man and escape in a waiting automobile. After a five-mile pursuit across town, he watched the men enter an apartment house in the Northwest district. Informing a detective friend of a money peddle, he led police to the hideout. The robbers were arrested and jailed. Night before last McAllister again assumed his policeman's role, this time in the 1700 block of New Hampshire avenue. He chased a colored man, who had mistaken a woman's purse for several blocks, but the bandit escaped.

Last night he had better luck. Again in the 1700 block of New Hampshire, McAllister saw the same man at work. The purse snatcher grabbed the pocketbook of Mrs. Alta N. Edwards, 1725 New Hampshire avenue, and fled down an alley. Hot in pursuit in his cab, McAllister trapped the man in a garage and held him at bay with a wrench until the police arrived.

Four thousand persons crowded into Constitution Hall (upper, left) last night to hear Dorothy Thompson, columnist, at the Community Chest rally. Girl Scouts carrying banners bearing the names of Chest member agencies (upper, right) were on the program, as were Girl Reserves (lower) who held cards forming the Chest's slogan "Give a Hand Up."

Small Claims Court's Work Commended

Praise by Judge Scott
Justice Is 'Humane'
1,516 Cases in October

Out of a total of 1,516 cases filed in the District's new small claims court in October, Judge Armond W. Scott conducted 156 contested cases, 10 conciliated cases, 228 cases settled before trial, and handed down 1,015 judgments.

In his report to Attorney General Cummings, Edward M. Carr, clerk of the Small Claims and Conciliation Branch of District Municipal Court, also pointed out that the "installation payment feature of the system is being used increasingly by defendants, with 222 stays of execution being granted during the month authorizing payment of judgments in convenient installments."

Judge Scott, in a second report, declared: "I have seen hundreds of people receive a type of judicial service which was never possible before. I have seen them come in as plaintiffs and without lawyers, receive guidance and assistance from the clerk. I have seen them come in as defendants and receive prompt hearings, without lawyers, without long and costly delays."

"I have witnessed for the first time in the District of Columbia justice being administered in small cases in a humane manner."

Teach Character To Combat Crime, Dr. Ballou Urges

Warning that crime is on the increase among young persons between the ages of 10 and 25, Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, yesterday called for a "changed philosophy" which will stress character education in American schools.

In an address over Station WJWS, sponsored by the High School Teachers Association of the District, Dr. Ballou asserted "justification and necessity for a program in character education will be found in the increase in juvenile delinquency which has taken place in the last quarter of a century."

"Our educational philosophy must be expanded to give rightful place in our school program to an adequate program of occupational adjustment," he said.

"Yes," maybe I should have been a cop," McAllister said last night.

Parking Meter Rules Foreseen As Causing Official 'Headaches'

How and When to Collect the Nickels
Length of Motorists' Stay Also Worry
Test of New System Starts Thursday

Proper enforcement and personnel for Washington's latest experiment—parking meters—may mar the early success of the project which begins Thursday, it developed yesterday.

As workmen began yesterday erecting poles to hold the machines, which cost the District $44.45 each, far-sighted officials began counting the headaches in store.

First, the problem of collecting the nickels which will give the motorist either 60 minutes or 20 minutes of parking depending on the zone.

Under the law which authorized purchase of the "parking gadgets," the collector of taxes was designated as the person to receive the coins. There was no mention as to the proper party to collect the nickels.

The Commissioners, however, named Collector of Taxes Chatham Stevens to do it.

"I don't know how often to collect the money, whether to use the same system employed by the telephone company of substituting an empty box for the full one or have a man open the box and empty out the money in a big sack," Stevens confessed.

In the busy areas, where there will be 310 meters, particularly near banks, where parking beside a meter is limited to 20 minutes, it is expected the coin boxes will have to be emptied each day. The box only holds about 42 nickels.

Secondly, the problem of enforcement of regulations. Parking in certain zones is limited to 60 minutes per motorist.

"We don't have enough police to keep an adequate check on this," Commissioner Hazen has said.

The motorist, he explained, is only entitled to 60 minutes, and no more. But suppose he enters a parking area which was vacated by a motorist who only consumed 10 minutes of his allotted time.

"According to the regulation the second motorist will get the remaining 50 minutes free and if he wants his additional 10 minutes he will have to deposit a nickel," Hazen declared.

The problem is, who will tell the motorist to leave the space when his 10 minutes has expired. Meanwhile, the parking restriction at intersections became effective yesterday, only, however, at the intersections having white curb lines.

(Picture on Page 12.)

4 Chinese Freed Of Drug Charges
Narcotic charges against four Chinese taken into custody Saturday night were dismissed yesterday by United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage when police officers told him they did not have a search warrant when they entered the house in the 1400 block North Capitol street.

The four men arrested were Foo Lee, 50; Lee Leong, 25; Wasang Yapp, 30, and Sam Lee, 26. All pleaded not guilty to the charges.

Detective Lieut. Joseph W. Shimon, chief of the pickup squad, who led the raid, said the evidence will be presented to the grand jury. He said nearly a pound of opium was confiscated at the house.

WPA School For Shut-Ins Is Approved

Passed by President Starts in Two Days Teachers Interviewed May Be Permanent

President Roosevelt yesterday approved the District Works Progress Administration's visiting teacher project, which will provide 209 "shut-in" children with educational facilities heretofore denied them because of their physical infirmities.

The project, calling for instruction of the disabled helpless youngsters in their homes and at Gallinger, Freedmen's and Children's hospitals, should get under way in the next two days, District WPA and school officials said.

List Ready Today
Lists of teachers with the necessary qualifications should be completed today, Robert L. Haycock, assistant superintendent of schools, said last night. More than 200 applicants have been interviewed by Haycock and officials in the office of Mrs. Mary Steele, director of the WPA division for education and recreation here.

The WPA will pay salaries of seven white teachers, nine colored teachers, two supervisors, a clerk and two field workers, while the District school system and Health Department will be cosponsors of the project.

"I am particularly gratified to see that President Roosevelt has approved this project, but it is hoped by all that some youngsters and the Budget Bureau will allow us additional teachers so we can make this instruction a permanent service within the school system," Mrs. Henry Gratton Doyle, president of the Board of Education, said.

Continues Until June
In its estimates for 1940 the board asked for six additional teachers for crippled children, she said.

The present plan will provide teachers for the crippled youngsters only through the current school year ending in June, 1939. Cost of the project will be approximately $18,500.

President Roosevelt's approval of the project climaxes efforts launched by The Post to obtain aid for crippled children's relief work when some youngsters were left off school bus routes this year because of lack of school funds. Ross Haworth, District WPA administrator, conceived the project to provide the necessary visiting teachers.

Pastor Assigned
Centerville, Md., Nov. 7 (P).—The Rev. Harold Hallman has been named pastor of the Wye Mills and Starr Methodist Episcopal churches, succeeding the Rev. George H. Murphy, who has accepted a pastorate at Bethel Church, near Chesapeake.

Mammoth's Tusk Found in Colorado
By Dr. Roberts
The Smithsonian Institution yesterday reported the finding of the tusk of a mammoth, ancestor of the elephant, by Dr. Frank H. H. Roberts, Jr., who has just completed his fifth summer of excavations in northern Colorado.

The Lindemeyer site, where the archeologist has been working, marks one of the earliest known habitations of human beings on this continent.

Bones of an extinct variety of bison and an ancient camel were found previously on the site.

Aged Man Is 74th Victim Of District's Traffic in Year
John P. Smith, 71, 2618 P street northwest, died in Georgetown Hospital yesterday, the seventy-fourth fatal traffic in the District this year.

Smith succumbed to head injuries sustained Saturday evening when he was knocked down by a car driven by Leroy Hamilton, colored, 39, 1743 S street northwest, a messenger in the War Department. The accident happened in the 2700 block P street northwest.

Hamilton was charged at the time with reckless driving under the name of Hilliard A. Jones. Before Smith died yesterday, Hamilton was arraigned in Police Court on a charge of reckless driving and released under $500. He still used the name of Jones.

It was not until late yesterday that police learned Hamilton's driving permit had been revoked and that he was using one issued under the name of Jones.

In the meantime, a coroner's jury held Russell D. Riley, 30, a sailor attached to the Naval Research Laboratory, for Police Court action under the negligent homicide act in the traffic death of Abraham Ellis, 55, of 3915 South Capitol street.

Riley was released in custody of his commanding officer after the inquest. It was testified that Ellis was killed Saturday morning when Riley's machine ran off the road and struck a telephone pole and overturned at Naylor road southeast, just this side of the District Line.

Last year's traffic toll at this time was 86.

Sells Used Auto Tires Thru Small Post Ad
When Mr. A. V. S. wanted to sell his used auto tires, he couldn't wait for prospective buyers to come to him. He ran this small ad in The Post and told Washingtonians what he had to offer.

Several Post readers called and Mrs. A. V. S. quickly sold his tires. No matter what you have to sell, if there is a market, Post ads will find it. It costs only 38 cents for a 2-line ad. Call National 4200 The Result Number Automobile tires, 4.75x18; 2 almost new, 2 very good used. C.R.E.A., AT. 1330-1.

Heurichs the Team
18 Games at Home
And 18 on Road
Open November 26

Folks began to readjust the selves and talk sanely about football again. They began to appreciate the fact that their football players were, after all, boys. A that one mere boy-like mistake could bring the greatest winning streak in all of college football. And now know that Bernie Bierman, in a sense, appreciated that living. He put his best football team on the field after it had named. On the next three Saturdays a chastened Minnesota clattered Iowa, 52-0; Texas, 47-0; and Wisconsin, 24-0. A lick-

Galento is mighty sore at Champion Louis—mighty sore. His hands are aching, and at the same time he draws a beaker of beer from his Orange Tavern. "He doesn't dirt," says Tony. "He's kept his stomach steady. He's got a good 'n'en he talks John Henry Lewis is taking a run-out on me and fight him, instead."

At that 240-pound Galento was slated to meet 175-pound J. Henry at Philadelphia late in June. But on July 21, just after finishing his boxing workout, he was stricken with pneumonia. He whisked into an oxygen tent and was called off.

Galento recovered from the illness he was matched with Harry Thorne of Minnesota, for a 13-round bout at the Philadelphia Convention next Monday night. "Tony is ringing for that bout now."

When Tony accepted the Thorne match, he and Manager Jacob

Bill Davis, Davidson, counted day, and Wake Forest has a agreement with Western Mar in the big Baltimore Stadium

Last week-end's games with

Gray, S. Caroline		8	5	0	30	game with J. Sterling Morton Ju
Jones, Richmond		8	5	0	30	for College and died in a hospi

Bramham said the minor league total represented the minimum.

2,500,000 over last year.

Down In Front

By Richards Vidmer

Random Reflections

New York, Nov. 7.—Naming the best football team in the country is as impossible a task as picking an All-American team. It can't be done with any justice.

Going on the records there are several who still barge along in the unbeaten brigade. Among them are Tennessee, T. C. Duke, Dartmouth and Santa Clara. But to say that these, individually or collectively, are better teams than Pittsburgh, Fordham, Minnesota, Alabama, Northwestern or Cornell isn't entirely logical, although each of the latter teams has been beaten.

Notre Dame may be beaten by Northwestern or Minnesota, Dartmouth by Cornell, Duke by Pittsburgh and even if the others do survive it won't prove that they are the best teams in the country. An undefeated record doesn't mean anything these days; at least it doesn't mean anything except that the all conquering were favored by the schedule.

It was conceivable, when the schedule for 1938 was made three years ago, that Columbia, just as an example, might go through the current campaign undefeated. Three years ago Colgate was getting easier; Pennsylvania was in the nature of a set-up; Cornell hadn't been very strong for ten years; Navy was a long way from the top; Syracuse was slipping; and Brown was down to the bottom of its football fortunes. The only really tough games on Columbia's 1938 schedule, viewed from the distance of 1935 when it was made, were Yale and Army. But football fortunes change, and when the year rolled around, Army and Yale are the only two members of the group who have been beaten. Navy, Syracuse and Brown are still to be played, but the Navy has come forward steadily, Syracuse has turned the corner and definitely is on the upgrade, and Brown has made an amazing recovery almost overnight.

Who Did They Ever Like?

Under the present system of playing seven and eight games a season, a team should be counted a success if it manages to win half of them. A major game, theoretically, is a game against an opponent in the same class, and if a team goes through a campaign undefeated, then it isn't playing teams in the same class. Not every week.

That may be open to argument, but let's take a look at schedules of the undefeated. Tennessee reduced the possibility of defeat at least four Saturdays by booking Sewanee, Clemson, the Citadel and Chattanooga. By beating Centenary, Marquette and Tulsa, Texas Christian hardly enhanced its standing as a national power. Duke has used V. P. I., Davidson and Wake Forest as run-ins, and the ladder to recognition. Dartmouth booked Bates, St. Lawrence and Dickinson as insurance.

Notre Dame has done a real job in going through a schedule of Kansas, Georgia Tech, Illinois, Carnegie Tech, Army and Navy without a defeat, but the path ahead, which includes Minnesota, Northwestern and Southern California, is even stiffer and the odds are against the South Benders surviving.

The time is passed when a team can point to a season without a defeat, without even a tie, and claim a place on the peak. The football fans are borrowing a phrase from Horace, "contending asking, 'Who did you ever lick?' The answer has to include at least half a dozen prominent teams or isn't at all convincing. In other words, it isn't a question of how many you lost, but whom you played, and sometimes the team that has lost even a couple of games deserves a higher ranking than one which went through without a setback.

So it doesn't necessarily follow the Carnegie Tech failure that Pittsburgh still isn't the best football team in the country. But then, who is?

What of It?

There have been several exposures of the football racket in the last five or ten years. In fact, the publishing business has produced a season a complete loss without one sensational article showing what football players earn while going through college. This week, the magazine Look tries to catch up with the parade with an illustrated article declaring "college football is a racket."

This seems very daring and startling, but after perusing the statements and accusations, which include names, it leaves the reader rather cold. It's no secret that coaches, alumni and friends try to persuade promising football players to go to the universities in which they are interested. It's hardly news that most football players have jobs while they're in college, bringing in an income of something between $10 and $50 a month over the span of a year, nor is it startling to learn that most of them receive scholarships which provide their room, board and tuition.

But after all, what of it? Other boys have jobs in college, too. Furthermore those who do not go out for athletics have a chance to make far more money than the ball players; they have more time to devote to their jobs. And others receive scholarships. The boys who work on the college publications make as much as $5,000 a year without any outcries of "college magazines are a racket." After all, they're selling something the public pays for. And the public pays to see football games.

Pete Galiano Whips Tommy Rawson in Arena Bout

Jimmy Jones Wins Over Sewell Hipps

Both Are Exhausted
A Bruising Battle
Hipps Loses Teeth
Abe Denner Wins

By Lewis F. Atchison.

Pete Galiano, one-time sparring partner with Barney Ross, last night outpunched and outboxed Tommy Rawson, of Boston, in an eight-round bout at the Arena.

Down for a nine count in the fifth, after Galiano sent a whistling left hook crashing into his bridge-work, Rawson got up and waged one of the fiercest comebacks ever witnessed at the W street establishment.

He tore open an old wound over Galiano's right eye, and rocked him with blistering rights to the body. He jabbed and crossed, and moved around like a master, outsmarting the curly-haired Italian at every turn of the round.

Wins Seventh, Too

And he won the seventh, too, continuing his jabbing with remarkable success, while Galiano, the aggressor in the earlier rounds, vainly tried to weave past his busy fists and resume his hattering tactics to the body. The last round was about even, with Rawson hoping and looking for a knockout blow which never came.

Galiano went to work on the New England Irishman with a vengeance in the first five rounds, blasting him with wicked left hooks to the body and a right that time and again grazed his opponent's chin. Rawson's nose dripped blood as early as the first round, and several times the Baltimorean rocked him with both hands to the head.

Jimmy Sullivan New Ring Judge

James A. (Jimmy) Sullivan, one of the city's most prominent sportsmen and a high-ranking official of the District A. A. U., was appointed a judge yesterday at a meeting of the District Boxing Commission.

Sullivan has been serving as a judge of amateur bouts since 1934, and brings to the sport a thorough knowledge of boxing, acquired as an amateur ringman and ardent fan. His appointment virtually is certain to find favor with the fans, who have been clamoring for a new deal on the benches.

The commission also appointed Pierce A. Britt an inspector and negotiated an agreement with Promoter Joe Turner whereby working judges will receive two ringside seats to future shows.

Galileo's Best Round

Galileo's best round, of course, was the fifth, wherein he all but finished the former collegian. Rawson appeared to be trying to set up Galiano for a good right-hand smash, shooting straight, but none too accurate and not very potent left jab to the face. Galiano either waved the left aside or took it on the forehead, and moved in with both hands pumping leather to the body.

Jimmy Jones Wins

Jimmy Jones outpunched and outslugged Sewell Hipps in a bruising eight-rounder that left both boys exhausted at the finish. Hipps, as rugged and determined as his opponent, lost a couple of teeth during the fray, but didn't seem to mind, and made a great comeback after the free extractions.

Jones shook up the sailorman with two straight rights to the chin, followed by a series of thunderous right hooks to the kidney in the third round, and he dug more punishing hooks to the body in the fourth. But Hipps was not easily discouraged, and in the fifth bounced a couple of rights off Jimmy's chin that brought a forced smile to Jimmy's face, but hurt.

Hipps' best round was the seventh, when he started by taking a stinging left hook to the jaw that knocked out the teeth. Then he tore back at his adversary with a flurry of leather, staggering him with a right to the jaw, and punting the body in a vain attempt to score a knockdown. Jones weathered the storm, however, and held his own throughout a punishing last round of fighting.

Abe Denner carved a clean-cut decision in Tommy Ricco's bruised features in a six-rounder, out-jabbing and out-generaling the Camden brawler. Denner, a vastly improved ringman, crossed up Ricco with right crosses several times during the bout, and almost dropped him in the fourth with four good blows to the head.

Ricco, plainly puzzled and at a disadvantage because of his short reach, rushed in desperately in the fifth and sixth rounds, whaling away with both hands in wild abandon. But if he expected Denner to give ground and run he was sadly disappointed. Abe merely buried his head on Tommy's shoulder and slugged it out with him.

Jerry Hall lost a six-round decision to Toby Scroggins, and Frankie Wills outpointed Frankie Martin in the four-round opener.

Galento

Continued from Page 18.

derstood that John Henry Lewis would meet Galento if Tony beat Thomas.

However, last Thursday Promoter Mike Jacobs in New York announced that he had signed John Henry to fight Joe Louis for the latter's heavyweight crown at Madison Square Garden on January 27. "After John Henry walks out on me and Promoter Muggsy Taylor in Philadelphia, I'm drawing the colon line," Galento said today. "I won't even disgust myself with any colored fighters except Joe Louis. Louis knows I can lick him, but he'll fight me because I'm the only white hope left."

Candid Camera Shot of End Diving for Ball

No physical freak is Joe Carrig, Catholic University end, although only his head, shoulders and arms are visible as he falls on a fumble. It is a bit of trick photography in which no trick was intended. Carrig will be in the starting line-up for C. U. against Miami at Griffith Stadium on Armistice Day.

'Riot Act' Is Read To Colonials by Angry Mr. Reinhart

Performance Against Clemson Disgusts Coach
Catholic U. Looks Toward Big Charity Game
Hoyas Will Work Light for Mountaineers

Plainly disgusted at the play of the Colonials against Clemson on Saturday, Coach Bill Reinhart lectured his George Washington squad for an hour yesterday, warning them that serious changes were imminent if they showed no improvement by Wednesday and then sent the Buff boys through a bruising two-hour scrimmage at the ball park.

Reinhart shifted Sunny Jones to center from tackle, and tried Bob Nowaskey at fullback in an effort to strengthen the club, both offensively and defensively. The results were marked. "When darkness closed over the field, the first and second teams still were battling, with the 'first' looking decidedly improved on offense."

With Duce Keith playing Jones' old tackle spot and Bob Farris replacing Nowaskey at end, Reinhart thought he could see a little improvement when it was all over. "But don't forget, Kansas is not soft," he said. "The way we played against Clemson, they'll still be awfully tough for us. We've just got to improve. That's all there is to it."

Reinhart indicated the shift might not be permanent and said he might change the entire line-up before Saturday. With its crack 100-piece band lending able support, the Kansas delegation will move here late this week on its first Eastern trip in five years. In 1933, the Jayhawkers beat G. W. 7 to 0 here. Kansas alumni already have reserved a large block of lower grandstand seats. Seats in this section may be purchased at the G. W. ticket office, 725 Twenty-first street northwest.

Cards Determined For Holiday Game

A note of grim determination pervades Catholic University as the Flying Cardinals buckle down to work for their American Legion game with Miami University on Armistice Day at Griffith Stadium.

Tickets for the clash are selling like hot cakes due to the victories scored by the two opponents over the week-end. "Underdog Catholic U. unleashed a crushing last-quarter attack to nose out a scrappy De Paul, 14 to 13, while Miami U. was swamping Georgetown, 44 to 0."

Athletic Director "Dutch" Bergman has mapped out a stiff and thorough program of work for the four days before the game. Not only will the Cards polish the smashing offensive they exhibited against De Paul Saturday, but Coach Bergman is anxious to bolster the team's nose-100-satisfying defense, particularly in the line.

Jack Harding, Miami U.'s coach, a product of Pittsburgh U., has a reputation for turning out versatile elevens, and Bergman is still stressing "head-up playing and alertness." The Bergmanites are the underdogs in Friday afternoon's clash, which is all right by Catholic U.'s rabid followers. The Brooklanders were on the wrong side of the "expert" ledger Saturday, but they upset the odds and won. Saturday before they were favored and found themselves soundly trounced by St. Louis. "Crossing up the experts seems to be the Cards' favorite pastime."

Hagerty Plans Light Work for Hoyas

With most of his gridders busy with examinations, Coach Jack Hagerty decided to give the undefeated Georgetown U. football squad a day

Redskins Second in Passing

Giants Are First
Danowski Is Tops
Packers Lead West
Cards Tray 211

Team	Yds.	Yds. Per Pass	Yds. Per Att.	Yds. Per Comp.	Yds. Per Int.	Yds. Per Fum.	Yds. Per Kick	Yds. Per Punt	Yds. Per Drop	Yds. Per Other
Green Bay	2,377	21.09	163	75	1.00	0.00	0.00	0.00	0.00	0.00
Detroit	1,634	12.68	88	33	1.00	0.00	0.00	0.00	0.00	0.00
Chicago	2,012	18.26	138	62	1.00	0.00	0.00	0.00	0.00	0.00
Cleveland	1,742	20.95	176	63	1.00	0.00	0.00	0.00	0.00	0.00
Chi. Cardinals	1,843	21.82	211	99	1.00	0.00	0.00	0.00	0.00	0.00
Eastern Division
Washington	2,419	18.21	169	81	1.00	0.00	0.00	0.00	0.00	0.00
New York	1,814	12.30	130	49	1.00	0.00	0.00	0.00	0.00	0.00
Brooklyn	1,600	21.52	127	49	1.00	0.00	0.00	0.00	0.00	0.00
Philadelphia	1,370	24.38	147	45	1.00	0.00	0.00	0.00	0.00	0.00
Pittsburgh	1,681	19.84	183	58	1.00	0.00	0.00	0.00	0.00	0.00

By the Associated Press.

New York, Nov. 7.—Sparked by the high-class pitching of the veteran Ed Danowski, the New York Giants are the only team in the National Professional Football League to complete more than half of the passes attempted this season.

The Giants have thrown 130 aerials in seven games and made good on 69, or 53 per cent, of them. Washington's Redskins, despite the presence of Slingin' Sammy Baugh, have completed 81 of 169 for 47 per cent and second place in passing effectiveness in the loop. Green Bay's high-scoring Packers lead the Western division, with 75 complete in 163 attempts.

The air-minded Chicago Cardinals have completed more than any other team, a total of 99, but they've tried 211.

With the Packers still setting the league scoring pace—192 points in nine games—the only change in the latest week-end program saw the Chicago Bears take second place from Washington. The Bears now have 132 points to the Redskins' 126. The Packers' total represents a 21-point-a-game average.

Defensively, Detroit's Lions and the Giants shared the honors. The Lions have allowed opponents only 40 points in seven games and have given up only 1,285 yards of gain to their rivals. The Giants, while scored on for 75 points, have given up only 1,280 yards.

Washington, with a 302-yard average per game and a total of 2,419 yards in eight games, remain out front in ground-gaining. Green Bay and New York, with respective averages of 264 and 259 yards, trail the Redskins.

Redskins at Peak For Bears' Game

Chicago, Nov. 7.—The Redskins will be at peak strength on Sunday against the Chicago Bears in the important battle at Wrigley Field—important because the Redskins by winning that game can assure themselves a chance at the Eastern Division title.

The team that Coach Ray Flaherty will send on the field against the Bears will include all four of his star backs who failed to see action against Pittsburgh yesterday. Andy Farkas is rapidly recovering from a bruised foot, Bill Hartman's leg muscle injury has virtually healed, Max Krause's twisted knee is functioning again and Jay Turner is no longer troubled by his bruised leg.

Tomorrow Flaherty will take the Redskins into Wrigley Field, scene of the battle, for a prolonged workout. It will be the Washington team's first return to the Chicago park since their 28-21 victory over the Bears for the league championship last December.

Fordham Given Rest

New York, Nov. 7. (AP)—For the first time since Jimmy Crowley became head football coach at Fordham, he gave his squad an afternoon off from practice when there was a major game coming up the following Saturday.

Nagurski-Savoldi Mat Bout Splits Bergman's Allegiance

C. U. Mentor Once Coached Bronko
Notre Dame Alma Mater of Joe and Dutch
Match Set for Arena Thursday

With the Bronko Nagurski-Joe Savoldi bout coming up Thursday night at the arena, Mr. "Dutch" Bergman, director of athletics and head coach of football at Catholic University, finds himself in somewhat of a quandary.

Bergman is not a regular customer at the Thursday night muscle exhibitions, but this week will find him in a ringside pew—a strangely silent man. He's interested in both contestants, and his allegiance is divided between them. Bergman, you see, is a graduate of Notre Dame, which happens to be Savoldi's alma mater, too, but he also coached Nagurski at Minnesota. The Cardinal mentor has half-way solved the problem by inviting both wrestlers to practice Thursday afternoon at Brookland, where the squad will put the finishing touches to preparations for its game with Miami. Bergman also has extended an invitation to the pair to sit on the bench with the boys at the game Friday afternoon.

Bergman acknowledged Nagurski as the greatest fullback he ever laid an eye on, while coaching him in the finer points of football at Minnesota in 1927 through 1928, and ventures the opinion that if he's half as good at wrestling it will be a long time before he loses his championship belt. "Dutch" never had the pleasure of seeing Savoldi in action, but is willing to take the word of competent observers that the Italian was a good man, too.

Nagurski has been campaigning in the Midwest with great success during the last six months, but is back East for a brief visit. After working here Thursday he is booked in Richmond, Baltimore and New York, but Savoldi is the toughest warrior he will encounter on his tour. Joe, you may recall, is the man who threw London in a dramatic bout, when the Greek was at the peak of his career.

By way of assuring the fans of full value for their money, Promoter Joe Turner has added the "Golden Terror" to the card, pitting him against Frank Brown, brother of Orville Brown. Frank will continue the task of trying to unmask the "Terror" begun last week by Tom Mahoney, and the chances are he'll succeed.

Dotter Rides Both Daily Double Winners

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 7. (AP)—Bobby Dotter, Kentucky jockey, rode both winners today in a $261.30 daily double at Pimlico. Off to a bad start in the first race, Dotter brought S. L. Burch's Mon Doit in first to pay $11.40. In the second he won with Mrs. H. J. Mohr's Rebellious, which paid $35 for a $2 mutual ticket.

STEWART-WARNER South Wind AUTO HEATERS SALES SERVICE CREEL BROTHERS

151 14th St. N.W. DEcatur 4-270

THE HECHT CO. 8 STREET NW, SEVENTH NATIONAL BLDG.

Are You a M.C.S.? ★ Morning Collar Stretcher

You wear suits, shoes and hats that are comfortable. Then why wear shirts that after they are washed a few times practically choke you? Are you a Morning Collar Stretcher? Do you stretch your shirt collar before putting it on? Or do you put your finger on the inside of your freshly laundered shirt each morning and pull it with all your might? That's unnecessary discomfort. Wear shirts that always retain their accurate size.

MANHATTAN SHIRTS are guaranteed not to shrink below their indicated size or your money back. New Manhattan Shirt WITHOUT CHARGE.

$2 to 7.50 Men's Shop—Main Floor The Hecht Co.

BUY NO ANTI-FREEZE -until you read these facts about DU PONT "ZERONE"

Make sure you get the best value in anti-freeze. Know what DuPont has to offer in "ZERONE."

First of all, extraordinary anti-freeze protection. Scientific tests prove that "ZERONE" would keep water from freezing solid even at 21° below zero. You'll never encounter temperatures like that, so you can be sure "ZERONE" used in accordance with directions will protect your car in the coldest weather you'll ever experience.

Materials from which "ZERONE" is made are so effective you need comparatively little "ZERONE" to achieve protection. That's economy. Properly used, replacement of "ZERONE" are little indeed—and that's economy, too.

Furthermore, scientific tests prove the mixture of "ZERONE" and water passes off engine heat better than water alone. That improves engine performance. "ZERONE" in a clean cooling system prevents formation of rust and corrosion—avoids power losses, helps save fuel and oil. Those are the facts, so ask your dealer to protect your radiator with "ZERONE" today. It's only $1.00 a gallon. Du Pont "ZERONE" Division, Wilmington, Del.

© Du. U. S. Pat. Off.

ONLY $100 A GAL made by DU PONT

What Size, Please? 16—2 for 35c and up

G. E. P. Clear Co., Inc., Phila., Pa.

Daniel Loughran Co., Inc., 402 11th Street S. W., Washington, D. C.

parkway cleaners & polishers 3600 3600

510 GOM. AVE. Phone 9197 Dine. Ave. 426. 400

With most of his gridders busy with examinations, Coach Jack Hagerty decided to give the undefeated Georgetown U. football squad a day

Up to a certain point, one of those unbeatable, invincible, super-colossal dream teams is very much desired by football coaches. The point at which they cease to be desirable is when the football athletes begin to believe that they are indeed, invincible. Then the coach, if he is a smart coach, knows he is in trouble.

Jock Sutherland knew at Pittsburgh last week. The superlatives that rang in the ears of the Pitt athletes after their conquest of Fordham were potent enough to turn the heads of smart men. Sutherland could picture their effect on his college kids. And Pitt's football players, despite the promiscuous suggestions that they are mixed along with Pennsylvania's ancient anathemas, are college kids.

Football is a game that encourages excesses and superlatives. Its tremendous crowds seem to call for hyperbole and magnification of all that attends the game. And an unbeaten Pitt team came to be labeled not as a mere football team but as an aggregation of destructive monsters, a steam-roller that goes berserk at the opening whistle and a Martini interlude in intercollegiate sport.

They're Human

Why, one New York sports columnist was so shockingly aware of the tendency toward describing Pitt as a supernatural outfit, that he typed a lengthy piece in which he attempted to prove that Pitt's players were human. He wrote that he had investigated this "Mad Marshall" Goldberg and discovered that he was neither mad nor had horns, hips grafted from a swivel chair, nor did he truly breathe fire and gasoline. Goldberg, he declared, was simply a 20-year-old boy from Elkins, W. Va., and fairly typical of the rest of the Pitt squad.

But that sports writer was a lone, dissenting voice in a terrific rush to find new and terrifying descriptions for the Pittsburgh squad. The latter phrases, Sutherland knew, made excellent reading for his football players. But to Sutherland it was a very disturbing type of literature. He had had these unbeatable, invincible teams before and he was smart enough to scalp them.

A month ago, Sutherland had said that the Carnegie Tech game was the toughest on his schedule. In that statement he included the Fordham game, and to him it was important that his Pitt players approach the Tech battle in the proper mental attitude. A crushing victory over Fordham was the thing that he had feared. Far more would he have appreciated a skimpy, one-point win.

Fool's Paradise?

That would have jolted the Pitt players out of their smugness and their satisfaction with themselves. But what happened? Pitt ran away with Fordham and Sutherland's kids, naturally enough, believed that they were invincible. Old Jock's pep talks the week before the Carnegie game, which had popped over only a lot of pop-overs.

So it was Carnegie who carried the true zest and fervor into the battle in the Pitt Bowl year. A Carnegie team that Coach Bill Kern had been able to whip up to a terrific pitch for this fray opposed to a Pitt squad that discovered too late that it had been living in a fool's paradise. The let-down by Pitt had been too great. The Panthers did not know how to rally after Carnegie took the lead.

Well, next Saturday it's Pitt vs. Nebraska and on that day Sutherland will probably put his greatest team of the season on the field. Because it will be a stretched bunch of kids that he will be dealing with all week, and that kind of a team is the true dream team of the coach. Nebraska will suffer for Pitt's sins against Carnegie or Jock Sutherland doesn't know his football psychology.

Didn't Scare Tech

With the final whistle of that Pitt-Carnegie game, the Pitt players became a better group to live with, undoubtedly. They were down off their pedestal, ready then to realize that when an inspired sports writer calls 'em an irresistible wave, it's quite ineffectual on the topic of the Gophers' football. When Northwestern bumped Bernie Bierman's team off, it did a service to Minneapolis as a community.

"Minnesota carried a 25-game winning streak into its game with Northwestern," says Tony, "and a 22-game streak like Pittsburgh had." Mister Jones, a long-time Minneapolis folks, quite unfavorable on the topic of the Gophers' football. When Northwestern bumped Bernie Bierman's team off, it did a service to Minneapolis as a community.

D. C. Cage Team Given American League Franchise

18

WASHINGTON: TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 8, 1938

X

Fred Haney Signs Contract to Pilot St. Louis Browns for 1939 Season

Apparently happy about the whole thing, Fred Haney (left), signed yesterday to a one-year contract as manager of the St. Louis Browns, and is shown with General Manager Bill DeWitt as they talked over possible changes in the team roster for next season.

Galento Set To Risk Cash For Crown

To Deposit Forfeit Is Here Tomorrow Also $5,000 Wager 'I'm de White Dope'

By Jack Cuddy.

United Press Sports Writer.

Orange, N. J., Nov. 7.—Blubber-bellied Tony Galento, conqueror of pneumonia and various beetle-browed boppers, proclaimed himself pugilist's lone "white hope" today and offered $10,000 to prove it.

After knocking out four battered sparmates in the Park View Gymnasium this afternoon, perspiring Tony gave off a Tarzan yell of triumph and announced that he is going to Washington with his ten grand Wednesday to "play it on the line" for heavyweight champion Joe Louis.

"It's right," echoed Manager Joe Jacobs, who is known to fistians as Yussell-the-Muscle. "We're going to Washington Wednesday and deposit $5,000 with Heinie Miller, secretary of the National Boxing Association, along with our official challenge to Louis.

TONY GALENTO

"The five grand guarantees that Galento will meet Louis when and if the challenge is accepted. And remember that Tony is the N. B. A.'s No. 1 challenger. If Louis doesn't accept his challenge within a reasonable time, the N. B. A. may vacate Louis' title."

Another $5,000 will be left with Secretary Miller as a side bet—to be flouted before the Louis camp—that Galento can wallop the brown bomber "any night in the year, including holidays."

Galento is mighty sore at Champion Louis—mighty sore. His hairy hand trembles with anger every time he draws a beaker of beer in his Orange tavern. "He done me dirt," says Tony. "He's kept side-steppin' and side-steppin' me. An' he talks John Henry Lewis into sakin' a run-out on me and fightin' him, instead."

It seems that 240-pound Galento was slated to meet 175-pound John Henry at Philadelphia late in July. But on July 21, just after finishing his last boxing drill, Tony was stricken with pneumonia. He was whisked into an oxygen tent and the bout was called off. When Galento recovered from his illness, he was matched with Harry Thomas, of Minnesota, for a 12-round bout at Philadelphia's Convention Hall next Monday night. Tony is training for that bout now.

When Tony accepted the Thomas match, he and Manager Jacobs un-

Former Detroit Third-Base Man Lands Job Terms of Agreement Not Disclosed Succeeds Street; To Have 'Full' Charge

By the Associated Press.

St. Louis, Nov. 7.—Fred Haney, pilot of the Toledo Mudhens, of the American Association, the last four years and a former major league player, was named manager today of the St. Louis Browns for the 1939 season.

Haney, who played infield with the Detroit Tigers and was a member of the St. Louis Cardinals in 1929, signed a one-year contract.

He succeeds Charles (Gabby) Street, who was dismissed the last week of the 1938 season. The Browns finished the season in seventh place.

Haney, who is 40 years old, was among a score of persons considered for the post, including Babe Ruth, the former Sultan of Swat.

Don Barnes, president of the club, and Business Manager Bill DeWitt declined to disclose terms of Haney's contract.

With Haney's selection and the appointment last night of Ray Blades as manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, all major league managerial vacancies for the 1939 season have been filled.

Barnes said Haney would be "in full charge of the team," and that any changes in the coaching staff would be "entirely up to him."

Navy Has Outstanding Plebe Football Team

Plays Final Game of Year With Hun Saturday They Have a Well-Knit, Smooth-Working Club

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Annapolis, Nov. 7.—Some of the prestige Navy's varsity has lost on the grid this season by its failure to win a single major game thus far may be salvaged by a hard-charging and enthusiastic plebe eleven that is gunning for an undefeated record. The fourth classmen play their final game of the campaign Saturday, engaging Hun School at Annapolis.

Under the able direction of Lieut. R. W. Wood, the Plebes developed from an ungainly group of ambitious youngsters, many of them having their initial fling at the old pigskin sport, into a well-knit, smooth functioning squad. Only one team, Georgetown's freshmen, even came close to tying the Midshipmen, and the others have been defeated by decisive margins.

In four games the squad has accumulated 120 points against 8 for the opposition and it hurdles the undefeated Hun school, which you can put it down as one of the brightest chapters in Plebe football history.

Outstanding men on the squad are Lee, Leonard, Gebert, Werner and Hebron, backs; and Sims, a 200-pound transfer from Georgia, starting at center; Opp and Pellette, tackles; and Voght, a husky end, who has been handicapped by injuries throughout most of the season.

Lee ran back the opening kick-off of the Kiki game 88 yards to the 5-yard line, arranging the trappings for the Plebes' initial score, and Navy won, 26-0. "Butch" Werner's 25-yard gallop around end featured the 18-0 victory over Bordentown, although Sims proved his pass-defense ability by gathering in an enemy aerial and racing 75 yards for a touchdown. The third score also came through the air, Leonard heaving a 35-yard pass to Lee, who scored unopposed.

The 51-2 victory over Valley Forge stoned, somewhat, for the squad's grueling 6-0 triumph over Georgetown in the season's inaugural. The Hoyas gave the Midshipmen their hardest assignment of the year.

MacDonald Smith, Golfer, Under Knife

Los Angeles, Nov. 7 (AP).—MacDonald Smith, veteran golfer, underwent an appendectomy today at St. Vincent's Hospital here.

MacDonald Smith, 34, of Los Angeles, was in the hospital for a week after the operation.

Smith, who has won several national titles, is recovering from the operation.

Smith is expected to be discharged from the hospital in a few days.

See GALENTO, Page 18, Column 2.

Chileans Take Horse Show Lead

U. S. Team Second Irish Are Third Yanex Is Brilliant Canadians Last

By Hopspur.

A Staff Correspondent.

New York, Nov. 7.—The Chilean army team went in the lead tonight in the international military team competition at the National Horse Show at Madison Square Garden, where the expert riding of Maj. Eduardo Yanex, captain of the Chilean team, and Capt. Pelayo Izurieta.

The Chileans had the low score of 18 faults. Capt. Royce A. Drake and Lieut. Franklin Wing, Jr., rode King Hi, Dinger, Dakota and Don to a score of 20 faults placing the U. S. Army in second position. The Irish team was third with 24 faults. The Mexicans had 26 faults, the Cuban team 27 faults.

All the Canadian horses were eliminated through refusals.

It was the first of the three events which feature the international low score military team competition and it brought out the best horses of the teams of Canada, Mexico, Irish, Free State, Chile, Cuba and the United States.

Back of the military formality, the courtesies and the very apparent high regard each of the competitors hold for the others, there is a tense rivalry that is evidenced by the daring and often reckless riding of these great horsemen of six nations.

Jumps Are Difficult

The conditions for tonight's contest require two officers from each team to each ride two horses. This arrangement brought out the two top riders of each team, which resulted in a demonstration of horsemanship the equal of which is seldom seen.

It was made doubly thrilling by the high degree of difficulty of course of obstacles and the height of the jumps.

Maj. Yanex and Capt. Izurieta each had clean performances on Fogal and Gringo, but garnered 4 faults on Chile's second horse, Deseada. Lieut. Wing rode Don to a perfect score, but Dakota had four faults; King Hi and Dinger, ridden by Capt. Drake, each had eight faults.

The Canadian team, which won the championship last year, is in a hopeless last place, as all four horses refused at tough jumps on the difficult course. Both the Mexican and the Cuban teams were disqualified.

The puritan class for open jumpers, limited to privately owned horses, attracted a field of 27 entries and was run over a hard course of ten jumps.

The imposing list of entries included the most distinguished open jumpers in the country. It took over an hour to run this class and determine the winner.

Bartender, of the May Top Stables, the Audubon Stables' Erin's Son, was second; third place went to Grey-fight, owned by Philip J. Bliss; Donald Southernland's High Tide, a winner at the Inter-American, was fourth.

Carabinieri Shine

The Irish army challenge trophy, donated by the president of the Government of Ireland, to be won three times by the same exhibitor and open to both civilian and army teams, had the large entry of 11 teams, three horses to the team. The United States Army has two legs on the trophy and the invading army teams were all entered in a seeming attempt to prevent Maj. Cole's team from repeating. There were three civilian teams entered.

See HORSE, Page 21, Column 2.

Here's Triumphant King Hi

Capt. Royce A. Drake, of the United States Army, is shown Sunday night after he had ridden to victory on King Hi to capture the $1,000 International Military Jumping Stake at the National Horse Show. The 12-year-old horse, once used to develop diphtheria anti-toxin, went around the intricate course, called by experienced observers the most difficult ever built, without an error.

Western and Eastern Meet on Grid Today

Kick-Off Scheduled for 3:30 P. M. Will Be Played at Eastern Stadium Game Important to Red Raiders

The week's high school gridiron hostilities begin today at Eastern Stadium, where Western's Red Raiders meet the stingiest title defenders of Eastern in a game lacking much of the glamor of former encounters.

Starting time is 3:30.

Last year the game was Eastern's most important in a spectacular and uninterrupted march to the crown. This year it means no more to the East Coast states than a chance to score their first victory of the series. Western, however, having lost one game, must win today to continue the prospect of a playoff with Central and Tech. Besides winning, the Raiders must earnestly hope that either Eastern or Woodrow Wilson scores an upset over Central in the leader's two remaining games.

Coach Dan Ahern yesterday announced that no serious injuries would stand in the way of a Western victory. Jack Neam, right guard whose mouth was severely lacerated two weeks ago, will not be in the starting lineup but he will be available. Hopes of Frank Dwyer, half-back, returning to the backfield have been abandoned because of the slow healing of a broken arm.

Out at Eastern, Coach Arlie Boyd made numerous shifts in his lineup in an attempt to add strength. Two welcome additions to the squad were when Bob Wolwine, end, and Bill Lovett, center, became eligible on the last report. Due to the illness of Jack Teague, quarterback, Sid Hoke was moved to the signal calling spot and Francis Hallana, substitute who displayed a fine ground gaining ability in the game with Tech, took over the full-back assignment.

A large crowd is expected at Eastern Stadium, though officials of the inter-high series hardly can hope for another game such as last Friday's, for the Tech-Central battle showed the contest almost three times as well attended as any so far this season. A total of 4,105 persons went through the turnstiles, 1,440 paying as they entered and the rest holding season or season pass.

The sum of $720 was cleared on the game, better than four times as much as was cleared on the Tech-Eastern clash last month.

This coming Thursday Central and Wilson will clash at Central and Anacostia and Roosevelt, originally slated for Friday, will play at Roosevelt tomorrow. The legal holiday was overlooked in drawing up the schedules, and Leonard Brown, chairman of the high school football committee, was forced to move the games up.

Thursday's tilt with Woodrow Wilson will be the red-hot Central's third game in 11 days. Their clash with Roosevelt was postponed three days a week ago because of rain. Those who witnessed the Tech debacle, however, consider the Mt. Pleasanters well able to carry the increased burden.

Western's tilt with Tech, which will be the red-hot Central's third game in 11 days. Their clash with Roosevelt was postponed three days a week ago because of rain. Those who witnessed the Tech debacle, however, consider the Mt. Pleasanters well able to carry the increased burden.

Western's tilt with Tech, which will be the red-hot Central's third game in 11 days. Their clash with Roosevelt was postponed three days a week ago because of rain. Those who witnessed the Tech debacle, however, consider the Mt. Pleasanters well able to carry the increased burden.

Western's tilt with Tech, which will be the red-hot Central's third game in 11 days. Their clash with Roosevelt was postponed three days a week ago because of rain. Those who witnessed the Tech debacle, however, consider the Mt. Pleasanters well able to carry the increased burden.

Western's tilt with Tech, which will be the red-hot Central's third game in 11 days. Their clash with Roosevelt was postponed three days a week ago because of rain. Those who witnessed the Tech debacle, however, consider the Mt. Pleasanters well able to carry the increased burden.

Western's tilt with Tech, which will be the red-hot Central's third game in 11 days. Their clash with Roosevelt was postponed three days a week ago because of rain. Those who witnessed the Tech debacle, however, consider the Mt. Pleasanters well able to carry the increased burden.

Western's tilt with Tech, which will be the red-hot Central's third game in 11 days. Their clash with Roosevelt was postponed three days a week ago because of rain. Those who witnessed the Tech debacle, however, consider the Mt. Pleasanters well able to carry the increased burden.

Western's tilt with Tech, which will be the red-hot Central's third game in 11 days. Their clash with Roosevelt was postponed three days a week ago because of rain. Those who witnessed the Tech debacle, however, consider the Mt. Pleasanters well able to carry the increased burden.

Western's tilt with Tech, which will be the red-hot Central's third game in 11 days. Their clash with Roosevelt was postponed three days a week ago because of rain. Those who witnessed the Tech debacle, however, consider the Mt. Pleasanters well able to carry the increased burden.

Western's tilt with Tech, which will be the red-hot Central's third game in 11 days. Their clash with Roosevelt was postponed three days a week ago because of rain. Those who witnessed the Tech debacle, however, consider the Mt. Pleasanters well able to carry the increased burden.

Western's tilt with Tech, which will be the red-hot Central's third game in 11 days. Their clash with Roosevelt was postponed three days a week ago because of rain. Those who witnessed the Tech debacle, however, consider the Mt. Pleasanters well able to carry the increased burden.

Western's tilt with Tech, which will be the red-hot Central's third game in 11 days. Their clash with Roosevelt was postponed three days a week ago because of rain. Those who witnessed the Tech debacle, however, consider the Mt. Pleasanters well able to carry the increased burden.

Western's tilt with Tech, which will be the red-hot Central's third game in 11 days. Their clash with Roosevelt was postponed three days a week ago because of rain. Those who witnessed the Tech debacle, however, consider the Mt. Pleasanters well able to carry the increased burden.

Western's tilt with Tech, which will be the red-hot Central's third game in 11 days. Their clash with Roosevelt was postponed three days a week ago because of rain. Those who witnessed the Tech debacle, however, consider the Mt. Pleasanters well able to carry the increased burden.

Big Time Basketball Back Here

Heurichs the Team 18 Games at Home And 18 on Road Open November 26

After a lapse of more than a decade, Washington yesterday officially re-entered the American Professional Basketball League.

Such was the announcement made by Sponsor Chris Heurich, Jr., and General Manager Bob McDonald, of the Heurich cagers, following long-distance confirmation received from President John J. O'Brien, of the American League, late yesterday.

McDonald had attended an American League meeting in Brooklyn Sunday night, where he requested a franchise for Washington in the big league circuit. After 4½ hours of discussion, the matter was tabled until yesterday when American League officials unanimously voted Heurich into the circuit.

Enthusiastic when informed Washington had been voted in, Chris Heurich, Jr., announced that every effort would be made to turn out a team capable of holding its own with the type of competition the American League would offer.

Plan 18 Games

"For the past three years we have tried to bring the best possible professional attractions into Washington for exhibition games," Heurich said, "but all along it has been my purpose to place a team in the American League. The support Washingtonians have extended the Washington Baseball Club and the Redskins has sold me on the idea this is a big time sports center. I feel certain that our first venture in American League basketball will prove it."

A total of 18 home games and 18 out-of-town dates will comprise the Heurich schedule in the eight-game circuit which also includes Brooklyn Visitation, New York Jewels, Jersey Reds, Troy, N. Y.; Kingston, N. Y.; Wilkes-Barre Barons and Philadelphia Spahs. Exhibition games scheduled from time to time, both locally and abroad, in all probability will assure a 45-game schedule.

Succeeds Laundry Team

Washington enjoyed its last taste of American League basketball 10 or 12 years ago when George Marshall, president of the Washington Redskins, sponsored the celebrated Palace Laundry Club. Many Washingtonians will well recall the stirring games provided by the Palace professionals and will welcome back to the National Capital the lightning like professional style of play previously made famous locally by such memorable characters as Nat Holman, Johnny Beckman, R. J. Saunders, Ray Kennedy and Carl Huxst.

The Heurich schedule, to be released shortly, is set to inaugurate out of town on November 26 and the first home game is scheduled for Heurich's gymnasium on the night of December 1. Several choice holiday and weekend dates are to be awarded. Washington, President O'Brien told McDonald yesterday.

Bill Boyd Kayos Kimrey in Third

Richmond, Va., Nov. 7 (AP).—Bill Boyd, 183, of Birmingham, knocked out Dewey Kimrey, 206, of Charlotte, N. C. here tonight in the third round of their scheduled 10-round bout.

Jack Dempsey, former world's heavyweight champion, who holds Boyd's contract, worked in his protégé's corner.

Boyd, Kimrey down for a count of eight just after the third started and finished him off within 58 seconds.

Other results: Red Leonard, 170, Richmond, Va., knocked out Rusty Baker, 170, Baltimore, Md., (4).

Pat O'Brien, 145, Pittsburgh, Pa., outpointed John Tetter, 145, Hopedale, Va., (6).

Jack Hatcher, 118, Richmond, Va., knocked out Burt Toomey, 120, Langley Field, Va., (4).

Wright and Fontana Win Fistic Battles

New York, Nov. 7 (AP).—Chalky Wright, Los Angeles Negro featherweight, and Joe Fontana, New York lightweight, won the two principal eight-rounders on the St. Nicholas Arena boxing card tonight.

Wright, stablemate of Henry Armstrong, outpointed Charlie Armstrong, of Puerto Rico, while Fontana outlasted Paul Lee, of Indianapolis, to earn the decision.

St. Louis Gets Women's Western

Chicago, Nov. 7 (AP).—The Women's Western Golf Association today awarded the 1939 Western Open Tournament to the Westwood Country Club, of St. Louis, and the Western closed event to Oakland Hills, of Detroit.

The Western Open will be held June 12-17. No dates were set for the closed tournament or for the derby or junior tournaments, which will be held in Chicago.

15,500,000 Fans See Minors Play

Durham, N. C., Nov. 7 (AP).—Baseball's minor leagues, like the majors, came up with a banner attendance in 1938, probably setting a new record.

W. G. Brannaman, president of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues, released figures today showing 15,500,000 fans passed through the turnstiles in the 27 minor leagues. This, added to the more than 16,000,000 who saw the American and National leagues campaigning, made up a total of nearly 32,000,000.

Brannaman said the minor leagues total represented an increase of 2,000,000 over last year.

Player's Death Accidental

Chicago, Nov. 7 (AP).—A coroner's jury decided today the death of Martin B. Morrow, 31, an end on the Morgan Park Junior College football team, was accidental. Morrow was injured Saturday in a row with J. Sterling Morton Junior College and died in a hospital of a cerebral hemorrhage.

Down In Front

By Richards Vidmer

Random Reflections

New York, Nov. 7.—Naming the best football team in the country is as impossible a task as picking an All-American team. It can't be done with any justice.

Going on the records there are several who still surge along in the unbeaten brigade. Among them are Tennessee, Notre Dame, Duke, Santa Clara, and others. But to say that these, individually or collectively, are better teams than Pittsburgh, Fordham, Minnesota, Alabama, Northwestern or Cornell isn't entirely logical, although each of the latter teams has been beaten.

Notre Dame may be beaten by Northwestern, or Minnesota, Dartmouth by Cornell, Duke by Pittsburgh and even if the others do survive it won't prove that they are the best teams in the country. An undefeated record doesn't mean anything these days; at least it doesn't mean anything except that the all-conquering were favored by the schedule.

It was conceivable, when the schedule for 1938 was made three years ago, that Columbia, just as an example, might go through the current campaign undefeated. Three years ago Colgate was getting easier; Pennsylvania was in the nature of a set-up; Cornell hadn't been very strong for ten years; Navy was a long way from the top; Syracuse was slipping, and Brown was down to the bottom of the football fortune. The only really tough games on Columbia's 1938 schedule, viewed from the distance of 1935 when it was made, were Yale and Army. But football fortunes change, and when the year rolled around, Army and Yale are the only two members of the group who have been beaten. Yale and Army are still to be played, but the Navy has come forward steadily, Syracuse has turned the corner and definitely is on the upgrade, and Brown has made an amazing recovery almost overnight.

Who Did They Ever Like?

Under the present system of playing seven and eight games a season, a team should be counted a success if it manages to win half of them. A major game, theoretically, is a game against an opponent in the same class, and if a team goes through a campaign undefeated, then it isn't playing teams in the same class. Not every week.

That may be open to argument, but let's take a look at schedules of the undefeated. Tennessee reduced the possibility of defeat at least four Saturdays by booking Sewanee, Clemson, Citadel, and Chattanooga. By beating Centenary, Marquette and Tulsa, Texas Christian hardly enhanced its standing as a national power. Duke has used V. P. I., Davidson and Wake Forest as rungs on the ladder to recognition. Dartmouth booked Bates, St. Lawrence and Dickinson as insurance.

Notre Dame has done a real job in going through a schedule of Kansas, Georgia Tech, Illinois, Carnegie Tech, Army and Navy without a defeat, but the path ahead, which includes Minnesota, Northwestern and Southern California, is even stiffer and the odds are against the South Bend survivors.

The time is passed when a team can point to a season without a defeat, without even a tie, and claim a place in the pantheon. The football fans are borrowing a phrase from the boxing boys and asking, "Who did you ever lick?" The answer has to include at least half a dozen prominent teams or it isn't at all convincing. In other words, it isn't a question of how many you lost but whom you played, and sometimes the team that has lost even a couple of games deserves a higher ranking than one which went through without a setback.

So it doesn't necessarily follow that the Carnegie Tech failure that Pittsburgh still isn't the best football team in the country. But then, who is?

What of It?

There have been several exposures of the football racket in the last five or ten years. In fact, the publishing business considers the season a complete loss without one sensational article showing what football players earn while going through college. This week the magazine Look tries to catch up with the parade with an illustrated article declaring "college football is a racket."

This seems very daring and startling, but after perusing the statements and accusations, which include names, it leaves the reader rather cold. It's no secret that coaches, alumni and friends try to persuade promising football players to go to the universities in which they are interested. It's hardly news that most football players have jobs while they're in college, bringing in an income of something between $10 and $50 a month over the span of a year, more or less startling to learn that most of them receive scholarships which provide their room, board and tuition.

But after all, what of it? Other boys have jobs in college, too. Furthermore those who do not go out for athletics have a chance to make far more money than the ball players; they have more time to devote to their jobs. And others receive scholarships. The boys who work on the college publications make as much as $2,000 a year without any outcries of "college magazines are a racket." After all, they're selling something the public pays for. And the public pays to see football games.

Jimmy Jones Wins Over Sewell Hipps

Both Are Exhausted
A Bruising Battle
Hipps Loses Teeth
Abe Denner Wins

By Lewis F. Atchison.

Pete Galiano, one-time sparring partner with Barney Ross, last night outpunched and outboxed Tommy Rawson, of Boston, in an eight-round bout at the Arena.

Down for a nine count in the fifth, after Galiano sent a whistling left hook crashing into his bridge-work, Rawson got up and waged one of the fiercest comebacks ever witnessed at the W street establishment.

He tore open an old wound over Galiano's right eye, and rocked him with blistering rights to the body. He jabbed and crossed, and moved around like a master, outmarting the curly-haired Italian at every turn of the round.

Wins Seventh, Too

And he won the seventh, too, continuing his jabbing with remarkable success, while Galiano, the aggressor in the earlier rounds, vainly tried to weave past his busy fists and resume his battering-ram tactics to the body. The last round was about even, with Rawson hoping and looking for a knockout blow which never came.

Galiano went to work on the New England Irishman with a vengeance in the first five rounds, blasting him with wicked left hooks to the body and a right that time and again grazed his opponent's chin. Rawson's nose dripped blood as early as the first round, and several times the Baltimorean rocked him with both hands to the head.

Jimmy Sullivan New Ring Judge

James A. (Jimmy) Sullivan, one of the city's most prominent sportsmen, was named a high-ranking official of the District A. A. U. was appointed a judge yesterday at a meeting of the District Boxing Commission.

Sullivan has been serving as a judge of amateur bouts since 1934, and brings to the sport a thorough knowledge of boxing, acquired as an amateur ringman and ardent fan. His appointment virtually is certain to find favor with the fans, who have been clamoring for a new deal on the bench.

The commission also appointed Pierce A. Britz an inspector and negotiated an agreement with Promoter Joe Turner whereby working judges will receive two ringside seats to future shows.

Galiano's best round, of course, was the fifth, wherein he all but finished the former collegian. Rawson appeared to be trying to set up the fight for a good right-hand smash, shooting a straight, but none too accurate and not very potent left jab to the face. Galiano either waived the aside or took it on the forehead, and moved in with both hands pumping leather to the body.

Jimmy Jones Wins
Jimmy Jones outpointed and outslugged Sewell Hipps in a bruising eight-rounder that left both boys exhausted. Hipps, a former collegian, was rugged and determined as his opponent, lost a couple of teeth during the fray, but didn't seem to mind, and made a great comeback after the free extractions.

Jones shook up the salarman with two straight rights to the chin, followed by a series of thunderous rights to the kidneys. In the third round, he dug more punishing hooks to the body in the fourth. But Hipps was not easily discouraged, and in the fifth bounced a couple of rights off Jimmy's chin that brought a forced smile to Jimmy's face, but hurt.

Hipps' best round was the seventh, when he started by taking a stinging left hook to the jaw that knocked out the teeth. Then he tore back at his adversary with a flurry of leather, staggering him with a right to the jaw, and pummeling the body in a vain attempt to score a knockout. Jones weathered the storm, and finally held his own throughout a punishing last round of in-fighting.

Abe Denner carved a clean-cut decision in Tommy Rico's bruised features in a six-round, out-labbing and out-generalizing the Camden bulldog. Denner, a vastly improved ringman, crossed up Rico with a six-puncher, seven times during the bout, and almost dropped him in the fourth with four good blows to the head.

Rico, plainly puzzled and at a disadvantage because of his short reach, rushed in desperately in the fifth and sixth rounds, whaling away with both hands in wild abandon. But if he expected Denner to give ground, he was sadly disappointed. Abe merely buried his head on Tommy's shoulder and slugged it out with him.

Jerry Hall lost a six-round decision to Toby Scroggins, and Frankie Wills outpointed Frankie Martin in the four-round opener.

Galento
Continued from Page 12.
devoted that John Henry Lewis would meet Galento if Tony beat Thomas.
However, last Thursday Promoter Mike Jacobs in New York announced that he had signed John Henry to fight Joe Louis for the latter's heavyweight crown at Madison Square Garden on January 27. "After John Henry walks out on me and Promoter Mugsy Taylor in Philadelphia, I'm drawing the color line," Galento said today. "I won't even discuss terms with any colored fighter except Joe Louis. I know I can lick him, but he'll have fight me because he's the only white hope left."

Candid Camera Shot of End Diving for Ball

No physical freak is Joe Carrig, Catholic University end, although only his head, shoulders and arms are visible as he falls on a fumble. It is a bit of trick photography in which no trick was intended. Carrig will be in the starting line-up for C. U. against Miami at Griffith Stadium on Armistice Day.

'Riot Act' Is Read To Colonials by Angry Mr. Reinhart

Performance Against Clemson Disgusts Coach
Catholic U. Looks Toward Big Charity Game
Hoyas Will Work Light for Mountaineers

Plainly disgusted at the play of the Colonials against Clemson on Saturday, Coach Bill Reinhart, who said that serious changes were imminent if they showed no improvement by Wednesday and then sent the Buff boys through a bruising two-hour scrimmage at the ball park.

Reinhart, shifted Sunny Jones to center from tackle and tried Bob Nowasky at fullback in an effort to strengthen the club, both offensively and defensively. The results were marked. When darkness closed over the field, the first and second teams still were battling, with the "Reds" looking decidedly improved on offense.

With Duce Keady playing Jones' old tackle spot and Bob Faris replacing Nowasky at end, Reinhart thought he could see a little improvement when it was all over. "But don't forget, Kansas is not soft," he said. "The way we played against Clemson, they'll still be awfully tough for us. We've just got to improve. That's all these is to."

Reinhart indicated the shifts might be permanent and said he might change the entire line-up before Saturday.
With its crack 100-piece band lending able support, the Kansas delegation will move here late this week on its first Eastern trip in five years. In 1933, the Jayhawkers beat G. W. 7 to 0, here. Kansas alumni already have reserved a large block of lower grandstand seats. Seats in this section may be purchased at the G. W. Brookings office, 725 Twenty-first street northwest.

Cards Determined For Holiday Game

A note of grim determination pervades Catholic University as the Fighting Cardinals buckle down to work for their American Legion game with Miami University on Armistice Day at Griffith Stadium.

Tickets for the clash are selling like hot cakes due to the victory scored by the two opponents over the week-end. Underdog Catholic U. unleashed a crushing last-quarter attack to pose out a scrappy De Paul, 14 to 13, while Miami U. was swamping Ogleshorpe, 44 to 0.

Athletic Director "Dutch" Bergman has mapped out a stiff and thorough program of work for the four days before the game. Not only will the Cards polish the smashing offense they exhibited against De Paul Saturday, but Coach Bergman is anxious to bolster the team's nose-ice-stuffing defense, particularly in the line.

Jack Harding, Miami U.'s coach, a product of Pittsburgh U., has a reputation for turning out versatile eleven, and Bergman is still stressing "head-up playing and alertness." The Bergmanites are the underdogs in Friday afternoon's clash, which will be due to the victory scored last night by Catholic U.'s raiding followers. The Brooklanders were on the wrong side of most experts' ledgers Saturday, but they upset the odds and won. Saturday before they were favored and found themselves soundly trounced by St. Louis. Crossing up the experts seems to be the Cards' favorite pastime.

Hagerty Plans Light Work for Hoyas

With most of his grinders busy with examinations, Coach "Red" Hagerty decided to give his underdog Georgetown U. football squad a day

Pennant Dies; A Noted Sire

By the Associated Press.

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 7.—Pennant, one of the great sires of modern thoroughbred history, died Sunday at the farm of his owner, Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, near Lexington. The 27-year-old, chestnut horse, one of the oldest thoroughbred stallions alive, had failed rapidly recently due to his advanced age.

His death followed by only three months that of his most famous son, the great campaigner and sire, Equipoise, which died at the Whitney farm last August 4. It followed by less than two months the death of Black Toney, famed Idle Hour Farm stallion which was from the same crop of foals by Peter Pan, the sire of Pennant.

Black Toney, which died September 19, and Pennant, a blind pensioner for the last two years, started life almost together, had careers very similar and spent most of their years in the stud on farms not far apart.

A successful campaigner on the turf, Pennant in four seasons won $25,315, but his chief fame came from his success as a sire. He was sire of 361 winners, which accounted for $42 races, and their earnings on the turf to date amount to nearly $2,000,000.

Dr. Marshall Glenn will have his Mountaineers primed for the display before the old grads for "home-coming" They not only hope to settle their 6-4 argument from last year, but aim to get revenge for the 1936 "home-coming" beating, when Kelly Moan's passing boomeranged on him and resulted in a 28-0 Georgetown victory.

The Mountaineers, after several unimpressive showings, are slowly regaining the strength that carried them to a Sun Bowl victory last New Year's Day, and are almost certain to throw up their best performance of the season against Georgetown.

A throng upward of 10,000 spectators is expected to be on hand for the thriller.

No Annie Oakleys For Legion's Game

Holders of complimentary season passes for Catholic U. football games are warned that their passes will not be valid for the American Legion Armistice Day game at Griffith Stadium Friday afternoon between Catholic U. and Miami U. The game is a benefit affair and no complimentary tickets will be distributed.

All paid season tickets for Catholic U. stadium games and students' Team Loses 8 Games But It's Still Popular

New Port Ritchie, Fla., Nov. 7 (AP)—Maybe this is a football coach's Utopia.
Anyway, Coach Paul Stephens' Gulf High team has lost eight straight games, had 43 points scored against it and scored none, yet no one is complaining and the townfolk are all for the club.

But there's a catch. It's the new year Gulf High has had a team. So look out next season, Paul!

Get us Call For and Drive Team For Cleaning—Guaranteed! "A" service by parkway CLEANERS & DYERS 6010 45th Ave. Phone 5331 Home. Apts. 4300, 4400

Redskins Second in Passing

Giants Are First
Danowski Is Tops
Packers Lead West
Cards Trail 211

Team	Yds.	P.	O.	P.	P.	P.
Green Bay	2,377	2,109	163	75
Detroit	1,634	1,248	85	33
Chi. Bears	2,012	1,586	138	50
Cleveland	1,742	1,268	136	33
Chi. Cardinals	1,943	1,212	211	96
Washington	2,419	1,821	169	81
New York	1,814	1,250	130	68
Minneapolis	1,680	1,252	137	49
Philadelphia	1,370	2,438	143	45
Pittsburgh	1,584	1,094	143	45

Yds.—Yards gained. P.—Forward passes. O.—Opposition. P.—Paces completed.

Neve's Best's Game: Washington at Chicago Bears.

Philadelphia at Brooklyn.

Cleveland at New York.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Nov. 7.—Sparked by the high-class pitching of the veteran Ed Danowski, the New York Giants are the only team in the National Professional Football League to complete more than half of the passes attempted this season.

The Giants have thrown 130 aerials in seven games and made good on 69, or 53 percent, of them. Washington's Redskins, despite the presence of Slingin' Sammy Baugh, have completed 81 of 169 for 47 percent and second place in passing effectiveness in the loop. Green Bay's high-scoring Packers lead the Western division, with 75 complete in 183 attempts.

The air-minded Chicago Cardinals have completed more than any other team, a total of 99, but they've tried 211.

With the Packers still setting the league scoring pace—192 points in nine games—the only change in the latest week-end program saw the Chicago Bears take second place from Washington. The Bears now have 132 points and the Redskins 128. The Packers' total represents a 21-point-a-game average.

Defensively, Detroit's Lions and the Giants shared the honors. The Lions have allowed opponents only 49 points in seven games and have given up only 1,265 yards of gain to their rivals. The Giants, while scored on for 75 points, have given up only 1,250 yards.

Washington, with a 302-yard average per game and a total of 2,419 yards in eight games, remain out front in ground-gaining. Green Bay and New York, with respective averages of 264 and 259 yards, trail the Redskins.

Redskins at Peak For Bears' Game
Chicago, Nov. 7.—The Redskins will be at peak strength on Sunday against the Chicago Bears in the important battle at Wrigley Field—important because the Redskins by winning that game can assure themselves a chance at the Eastern Division title.

The team that Coach Ray Flaherty will send on the field against the Bears will include all four of his injured backs who failed to see action against Pittsburgh yesterday. Andy Farkas is rapidly recovering from a bruised foot. Bill Hartman's leg muscle injury has virtually healed. Max Krause's twisted knee is functioning again and Jay Turner is no longer troubled by his bruised leg.

Tomorrow Flaherty will take the Redskins into Wrigley Field, scene of the battle for a prolonged workout. It will be the Washington team's first return to the Chicago park since their 28-21 victory over the Bears for the league championship last December.

Fordham Given Rest

New York, Nov. 7 (AP)—For the first time since Jimmy Crowley became head football coach at Fordham, he gave his squad an afternoon off from practice when there was a major game coming up the following Saturday.

Nagurski-Savoldi Mat Bout Splits Bergman's Allegiance

C. U. Mentor Once Coached Bronko
Notre Dame Alma Mater of Joe and Dutch
Match Set for Arena Thursday

With the Bronko Nagurski-Joe Savoldi bout coming up Thursday night at the arena, Mr. "Dutch" Bergman, director of athletics and head coach of football at Catholic University, finds himself in somewhat of a quandary.

Bergman is not a regular customer at the Thursday night muscle exhibitions, but this week will find him in a ringside pew—a strangely silent man. He's interested in both contestants, and his allegiance is divided between them. Bergman, you see, is a graduate of Notre Dame, which happens to be Savoldi's alma mater, too, but he also coached Nagurski at Minnesota.

The Cardinal mentor has half-way solved the problem by inviting both wrestlers to practice Thursday afternoon at Brookland, where the squad will put the finishing touches to preparations for its game with Miami. Bergman also has extended an invitation to the pair to sit on the bench with his boys at the game Friday afternoon.

Bergman acknowledged Nagurski as the greatest fullback he ever laid an eye on, while coaching him in the finer points of football at Minnesota in 1927 through 1928 and ventures the opinion that if he's half as good at wrestling it will be a long time before he loses his championship belt. "Dutch" never had the pleasure of seeing Savoldi in action, but is willing to take the word of competent observers that the Italian was a good man, too.

Nagurski has been campaigning in the Midwest with great success during the last six months, but is back East for a brief visit. After working here Thursday he is booked in Richmond, Baltimore and New York, but Savoldi is the toughest customer he will encounter on his tour. Joe, you may recall, is the

Dotter Rides Both Daily Double Winners

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 7 (AP)—Bobby Dotter, Kentucky jockey, rode both winners today in a $200 daily double at Pimlico. Off to a bad start in the first race, Dotter brought S. L. Burch's Men Dolt in first to pay $11.40. In the second he won with Mrs. H. J. Mohr's Rebellious, which paid $25 for a $2 mutual ticket.

STEWART-WARNER
South Wind
AUTO HEATERS
SALES & SERVICE
CREEL BROTHERS
1511 14th St. N.W. D.C. 4270

THE HECHT CO.

Are You a M.C.S.?
★ Morning Collar Stretcher

You wear suits, shoes and hats that are comfortable. Then why wear shirts that after they are washed a few times practically choke you? Are you a Morning Collar Stretcher? Do you stretch your shirt collar before putting it on? Or do you put your finger on the inside of your freshly laundered shirt each morning and pull it with all your might? That's unnecessary discomfort. Wear shirts that always retain their accurate size.

MANHATTAN SHIRTS are guaranteed not to shrink below their indicated size or you get a new Manhattan Shirt WITHOUT CHARGE.
$2 to 7.50
Men's Shop—Main Floor
The Hecht Co.

BUY NO ANTI-FREEZE -until you read these facts about DU PONT "ZERONE"

Make sure you get the best value in anti-freeze. Know what Du Pont has to offer in "ZERONE".
First of all, extraordinary anti-freeze protection. Scientific tests prove that "ZERONE" would keep water from freezing solid even at 215° below zero. You'll never encounter temperatures like that, so you can be sure "ZERONE" used in accordance with directions will protect your car in the coldest weather you'll ever experience.
Materials from which "ZERONE" is made are so effective you need comparatively little "ZERONE" to achieve protection. That's economy. Properly used, replacements of "ZERONE" are little indeed—and that's economy, too.
Furthermore, scientific tests prove the mixture of "ZERONE" and water passes off engine heat better than water alone. That improves engine performance.
"ZERONE" is a clean cooling system prevents formation of rust and corrosion—avoids power losses, helps save fuel and oil. These are the facts, so ask your dealer to protect your radiator with "ZERONE" today. It's only $1.00 a gallon. Du Pont "ZERONE" Division, Wilmington, Del.

ONLY $1.00 A GAL made by DU PONT

Dunbar Wins, 18-12, Over Cordozaans

Time Out By Chet Smith

AQUARIUM
VISITING

Are you absolutely sure you've been on the alert, Jones?

You can follow what Navy is doing by reading Lewis Atchison daily in The Post.

60 Minutes of Football Is Zero Hour for St. John's, Naught-iest of All Teams

The Johnnies held the plunkin world to produce another team with their unparalleled record of protecting its opponents' rest lines.

The St. John's dream team—Coach Valentine (Dutch) Lestie says it's a downright new height of ineffectiveness against Randolph-Macon College Saturday.

The Johnnies lost by a 45-0 score to protect their season record of not making a point—but that isn't all. They didn't register a single first down.

St. John's record during the season scarcely against American University. Before their magnificent inoffensive really got clicking they rolled up two first downs against the Washington team.

The rose-eggs showed marked improvement against the University of Delaware, doubling their ineffectiveness. Late in the fourth quarter a completed pass rang up their only first down to mar an otherwise perfect day.

But Saturday the Johnnies reached mid-season form and turned in their first perfect game. Not once did the considerate collegians make the linemen carry their sticks forward for another first down.

Coach Lents predicted his mighty alums would protect their national non-scoring record against Swarthmore Saturday.

The St. John's team is the lightest in their history. The varsity averages about 150 pounds. Lemis started the season with a handful of experienced men, but lost most of his veterans with injuries. Against Delaware the Johnnies wound up the game with a second-string center playing fullback and doing the kicking.

Dear Al: Selections at Pimlico. If you want to get a line on some of the entries for the $40,000 Pimlico Futurity scheduled for Saturday, the thirty-second running of the $7,500 Walden will offer just that. Thirteen speedy juveniles have been named for the test at a mile and a sixteenth, with Time Alone and Impound slated to pull down the matority of the wagering. First run in 1907, the Walden has proven a legend for the horse community. The 2-year-old, including War Cloud, Senator Norris, Single Foot, Mars, Reign Count, Mate and Neaday. Due to a desire on the part of the Maryland Jockey Club officials, as well as trainers of steeplechase horses not to cut up the training company, the steeplechase race was called off. However, Edward J. Brennan, Volanti was second to El Chiclo and a winner at Laurel. Figures for the summer. May be tapering off.

Sixth race—French Trap can be run her poor recent showing and returns here with cheap partners. Look much the best. Gauriclan ran well in better company at Laurel but may not get in. Mahlette is dropping down and may be close.

who makes up the jumping programs, assured horsemen that the race would be re-scheduled before the close of the meeting. Heavy rain had been forecast for the course soggy, and had it been used yesterday, it might have been spoiled for the next four days. Jockey Jackie Westrope will leave by plane today for California to ride Mand Man in a stake on Saturday. Last week's Wood Graft race was won by the 10-year-old wee small hours of Friday morning.

[illegible][illegible]

BILL.
First race—Winning Streak needed her last race in New York. Races well last summer and has the edge over these maidens. A member of a five-horse entry. Evening Light took all the worst of the running last outing. Can do better. Barriers for the show.

ALAN.
And a good one for the aristocrats in this company and will FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs; purse $1,000; claiming; for 3-year-olds.

1	Good Boy	104.1	Wincham	2	104.2
2	Golden South	103.3	King Kins	3	103.4
3	Golden South	104.3	King Kins	4	104.4
4	Macie Margi	99.5	Oreanda	5	100.0
5	Tait	100.8	Major R.	6	101.0
6	Proctor	99.8	Major R.	7	100.0
7	Express	99.8	Okiah	8	100.0
8	Grace Vins	102.8	Miles Whim	9	103.0

FIFTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles; purse, $1,000; the claiming; for be ready for his best effort. Slightly best. Chimney Top raced over his head behind Kinross but should offer most of the contention here. Frederick has class and merits a chance.

Third race—Howard loves this distance; was a beaten favorite in better company and has the class to win by himself. Mad Frump has a poor form but prefers the

FOURTH RACE—Upward is a fast runner and will lead. Billiehook, Gray Hawk, 1182 Billy Van Nuss, 1183 Gray Count, 1184 Bobo Boy, 1185 Gray Hawk, 1186 Billiehook, 1187 Gray Hawk, 1188 Billiehook, 1189 Gray Hawk, 1190 Billiehook, 1191 Gray Hawk, 1192 Billiehook, 1193 Gray Hawk, 1194 Billiehook, 1195 Gray Hawk, 1196 Billiehook, 1197 Gray Hawk, 1198 Billiehook, 1199 Gray Hawk, 1200 Billiehook, 1201 Gray Hawk, 1202 Billiehook, 1203 Gray Hawk, 1204 Billiehook, 1205 Gray Hawk, 1206 Billiehook, 1207 Gray Hawk, 1208 Billiehook, 1209 Gray Hawk, 1210 Billiehook, 1211 Gray Hawk, 1212 Billiehook, 1213 Gray Hawk, 1214 Billiehook, 1215 Gray Hawk, 1216 Billiehook, 1217 Gray Hawk, 1218 Billiehook, 1219 Gray Hawk, 1220 Billiehook, 1221 Gray Hawk, 1222 Billiehook, 1223 Gray Hawk, 1224 Billiehook, 1225 Gray Hawk, 1226 Billiehook, 1227 Gray Hawk, 1228 Billiehook, 1229 Gray Hawk, 1230 Billiehook, 1231 Gray Hawk, 1232 Billiehook, 1233 Gray Hawk, 1234 Billiehook, 1235 Gray Hawk, 1236 Billiehook, 1237 Gray Hawk, 1238 Billiehook, 1239 Gray Hawk, 1240 Billiehook, 1241 Gray Hawk, 1242 Billiehook, 1243 Gray Hawk, 1244 Billiehook, 1245 Gray Hawk, 1246 Billiehook, 1247 Gray Hawk, 1248 Billiehook, 1249 Gray Hawk, 1250 Billiehook, 1251 Gray Hawk, 1252 Billiehook, 1253 Gray Hawk, 1254 Billiehook, 1255 Gray Hawk, 1256 Billiehook, 1257 Gray Hawk, 1258 Billiehook, 1259 Gray Hawk, 1260 Billiehook, 1261 Gray Hawk, 1262 Billiehook, 1263 Gray Hawk, 1264 Billiehook, 1265 Gray Hawk, 1266 Billiehook, 1267 Gray Hawk, 1268 Billiehook, 1269 Gray Hawk, 1270 Billiehook, 1271 Gray Hawk, 1272 Billiehook, 1273 Gray Hawk, 1274 Billiehook, 1275 Gray Hawk, 1276 Billiehook, 1277 Gray Hawk, 1278 Billiehook, 1279 Gray Hawk, 1280 Billiehook, 1281 Gray Hawk, 1282 Billiehook, 1283 Gray Hawk, 1284 Billiehook, 1285 Gray Hawk, 1286 Billiehook, 1287 Gray Hawk, 1288 Billiehook, 1289 Gray Hawk, 1290 Billiehook, 1291 Gray Hawk, 1292 Billiehook, 1293 Gray Hawk, 1294 Billiehook, 1295 Gray Hawk, 1296 Billiehook, 1297 Gray Hawk, 1298 Billiehook, 1299 Gray Hawk, 1300 Billiehook, 1301 Gray Hawk, 1302 Billiehook, 1303 Gray Hawk, 1304 Billiehook, 1305 Gray Hawk, 1306 Billiehook, 1307 Gray Hawk, 1308 Billiehook, 1309 Gray Hawk, 1310 Billiehook, 1311 Gray Hawk, 1312 Billiehook, 1313 Gray Hawk, 1314 Billiehook, 1315 Gray Hawk, 1316 Billiehook, 1317 Gray Hawk, 1318 Billiehook, 1319 Gray Hawk, 1320 Billiehook, 1321 Gray Hawk, 1322 Billiehook, 1323 Gray Hawk, 1324 Billiehook, 1325 Gray Hawk, 1326 Billiehook, 1327 Gray Hawk, 1328 Billiehook, 1329 Gray Hawk, 1330 Billiehook, 1331 Gray Hawk, 1332 Billiehook, 1333 Gray Hawk, 1334 Billiehook, 1335 Gray Hawk, 1336 Billiehook, 1337 Gray Hawk, 1338 Billiehook, 1339 Gray Hawk, 1340 Billiehook, 1341 Gray Hawk, 1342 Billiehook, 1343 Gray Hawk, 1344 Billiehook, 1345 Gray Hawk, 1346 Billiehook, 1347 Gray Hawk, 1348 Billiehook, 1349 Gray Hawk, 1350 Billiehook, 1351 Gray Hawk, 1352 Billiehook, 1353 Gray Hawk, 1354 Billiehook, 1355 Gray Hawk, 1356 Billiehook, 1357 Gray Hawk, 1358 Billiehook, 1359 Gray Hawk, 1360 Billiehook, 1361 Gray Hawk, 1362 Billiehook, 1363 Gray Hawk, 1364 Billiehook, 1365 Gray Hawk, 1366 Billiehook, 1367 Gray Hawk, 1368 Billiehook, 1369 Gray Hawk, 1370 Billiehook, 1371 Gray Hawk, 1372 Billiehook, 1373 Gray Hawk, 1374 Billiehook, 1375 Gray Hawk, 1376 Billiehook, 1377 Gray Hawk, 1378 Billiehook, 1379 Gray Hawk, 1380 Billiehook, 1381 Gray Hawk, 1382 Billiehook, 1383 Gray Hawk, 1384 Billiehook, 1385 Gray Hawk, 1386 Billiehook, 1387 Gray Hawk, 1388 Billiehook, 1389 Gray Hawk, 1390 Billiehook, 1391 Gray Hawk, 1392 Billiehook, 1393 Gray Hawk, 1394 Billiehook, <

10 * * * * * 11 * * * * *
 12 * * * * *
 13 * * * * *
 14 * * * * *
 15 * * * * *
 16 * * * * *
 17 * * * * *
 18 * * * * *
 19 * * * * *
 20 * * * * *
 21 * * * * *
 22 * * * * *
 23 * * * * *
 24 * * * * *
 25 * * * * *
 26 * * * * *
 27 * * * * *
 28 * * * * *
 29 * * * * *
 30 * * * * *
 31 * * * * *
 32 * * * * *
 33 * * * * *
 34 * * * * *
 35 * * * * *
 36 * * * * *
 37 * * * * *
 38 * * * * *
 39 * * * * *
 40 * * * * *
 41 * * * * *
 42 * * * * *
 43 * * * * *
 44 * * * * *
 45 * * * * *
 46 * * * * *
 47 * * * * *
 48 * * * * *
 49 * * * * *
 50 * * * * *
 51 * * * * *
 52 * * * * *
 53 * * * * *
 54 * * * * *
 55 * * * * *
 56 * * * * *
 57 * * * * *
 58 * * * * *
 59 * * * * *
 60 * * * * *
 61 * * * * *
 62 * * * * *
 63 * * * * *
 64 * * * * *
 65 * * * * *
 66 * * * * *
 67 * * * * *
 68 * * * * *
 69 * * * * *
 70 * * * * *
 71 * * * * *
 72 * * * * *
 73 * * * * *
 74 * * * * *
 75 * * * * *
 76 * * * * *
 77 * * * * *
 78 * * * * *
 79 * * * * *
 80 * * * * *
 81 * * * * *
 82 * * * * *
 83 * * * * *
 84 * * * * *
 85 * * * * *
 86 * * * * *
 87 * * * * *
 88 * * * * *
 89 * * * * *
 90 * * * * *
 91 * * * * *
 92 * * * * *
 93 * * * * *
 94 * * * * *
 95 * * * * *
 96 * * * * *
 97 * * * * *
 98 * * * * *
 99 * * * * *
 100 * * * * *

3-year-olds and upward...	10 "Art Mohr... 1087 Bold General...
4-year-olds and upward...	11 "Siempicki... 1087 Martini...
5-year-olds and upward...	12 "Caleb Pl... 1083 "Cats Days...
6-year-olds and upward...	13 "Shumil Hill... 1114 Safe Play...
7-year-olds and upward...	14 "Many Moons... 1085 Happy Fly...
8-year-olds and upward...	15 "Col. Martin... 1102 Safe Democrat...
9-year-olds and upward...	16 "National Ar... 1108 "Patchpots...
10-year-olds and upward...	17 "Plaming Pl... 1108 Pico...
11-year-olds and upward...	18 "Wiz. W. C. ... 1107 "Kenny out...
12-year-olds and upward...	19 "Amberline Al... 1108 Alameda...
13-year-olds and upward...	20 "Weather, Clear... 1108 Clear...

Mrs. Lacey Nominated For 1939 President By Women's Golf Body

Bob Barnett Wins at Chevy Chase
Ryan Paces Greenkeepers; Oliver Victor Griffith, Cronin Bow to Girl Golf Stars

By Merrell W. Whitteley.

The nominating committee of the Women's District of Columbia Golf Association submitted the name of Mrs. Robert L. Lacey, president of the association, as its candidate for 1939. The entire slate chosen by the committee under Chairman Mrs. A. S. Gardner includes: First vice president, Mrs. Gale Pugh; second vice president, Mrs. George C. Roney; Washington secretary, Mrs. J. H. Bullock; Indian Spring and treasurer, for another term, Mrs. Theodore Payne; Woodmont president, for the third year, Mrs. Roy C. Miller and Mrs. James W. Beller, first and second vice presidents, respectively; and to accept office for another year.

The nominating committee is composed of 5 of the 11 clubs of the association. Thus the names submitted are the selections of nearly half the member clubs, and their election is virtually assured, as the other six clubs would have to nominate a candidate from the floor and vote alike for a 6-5 decision against a member of the above slate.

Mrs. Payne will serve during 1939 on the executive board in an advisory committee, as will other five presidents, according to an amendment to the by-laws.

Mrs. Lacey served as a member of the tournament committee in 1937 and was made chairman for the present year. Her title in this position was undoubtedly a factor in being nominated for the presidency. The nomination was somewhat of a surprise, but will prove a popular one.

The election of officers will take place at the annual meeting at Columbia, December 1, that is open to all members.

Griffith and Cronin Beaten by Girls

Joe Cronin and Clark Griffith were put to rout in their challenge match with Marion Brown and Helen Dettweiler for the "Middle Atlantic championship" yesterday at the Washington Golf and Country Club. The girls, who were playing on the championship tees, trounced the baseball magnates by the 10-3 margin of 13 points up to 11 to play.

Evidently overconfident after their two-point triumph for the District women's championship last week at Indian Spring, Griffith and Cronin, manager of the Boston Red Sox, demanded play from the blue markers, far back, and it was their undoing.

For the girls were straight and true and the challengers were short and spread their shots like a spray gun, and the slaughter ended on the thirteenth green. Miss Dettweiler, Congressional Maryland State titleholder, had an 80, including an out nine of 38, while District and Middle Atlantic Champion Marion Brown had 85. The other scores were several strokes higher. The losers were presented a cup by Miss Dettweiler preceding the match. A third match for a decision is contemplated.

Bob Barnett Wins at Chevy Chase

Robert T. Barnett was a double winner in an informal pro sweepstakes over his home Chevy Chase course yesterday, piling six other victories with a 2-over par 71 to win the individual event and piling with Tony Sylvester, Capital, to win the best ball competition with a par score of 71.

Barnett was out in 34, one under regular figures, on the third hole, and a bogey 3 on the third. He was back in 37 for the 71, while Sylvester stepped in with pars on the third and sixteenth for the best ball, 69.

Wifty Cox, Congressional, and Al Houghton, Old Point Comfort, were second in the pro-pro with 36, 34-70, while Leo Walper and Lewis Worman, Chevy Chase, had 71 and Walper and Dave Thomson, Washington, 72.

Cox was second in the sweepstakes with a 73 while other scores included Worman, 74; Walper and Houghton, each 76; and Sylvester, 80.

BELLE HAVEN

Tommy Ryan, Belle Haven's pro-keeper, was host to the Mid-Atlantic Association of Greenkeepers yesterday and played his course in 73 strokes, 35-38, to finish low net and gross. A handicap placed his net at 68. Ivan Gantner, Lancaster, Pa., was second with 81.

Ryan needed a three on the last hole and for a par round of 72 but missed the green, and finished with the 73. A business meeting and dinner followed.

ROCK CREEK

Andy Oliver, District Public Links champion, advanced to the semi-final round in the first flight of the Rock Creek turkey tournament with a pair of one-sided victories. W. W. Seay, analyst in two current East Potomac tourneys, is in the quarter-finals.

Complete first round results and scattered quarter-final matches: First Flight.

Andy Oliver defeated Martin Beleno, 6 and 5; Donald Sullivan defeated George Graham, 4 and 3; Ralph Orman defeated Alvin E. B. 3 and 2; Jack Rosenthal defeated Theodore Payne, 4 and 3; Alvin Baumgartner defeated W. W. Seay, 3 and 2; W. W. Seay defeated Phil Dean, 7 and 6; J. E. Collins defeated Harry Graham, 3 and 2.

Second round—Oliver defeated Sullivan, 5 and 4; B. Sinclair defeated Baumgartner, 3 and 2.

Third Flight.

B. H. Kirchmeyer defeated Arthur J. Wilson, 1 up, 19 holes; William Bailey defeated the Indians, 3 and 2; Harry Jones defeated Arthur B. Campbell, 7 and 6; The South defeated the West, 3 and 2; James Patterson defeated Ernest Davis, 3 and 2; Jack Parsons defeated George A. Smith, 4 and 3; E. E. Hoffmann defeated William W. Seay, 1 up, 19 holes; Bobby Hill defeated C. E. C. 3 and 2.

Second round—Patterson defeated Hill, 3 and 2; Hoffmann defeated Patterson, 3 and 2; Seay defeated Hill, 3 and 2.

Fourth Flight.

W. W. Seay defeated J. E. Collins, 3 and 2; J. E. Collins defeated W. W. Seay, 3 and 2; W. W. Seay defeated J. E. Collins, 3 and 2; J. E. Collins defeated W. W. Seay, 3 and 2.

Seay defeated Collins, 3 and 2; Collins defeated Seay, 3 and 2; Seay defeated Collins, 3 and 2; Collins defeated Seay, 3 and 2.

Seay defeated Collins, 3 and 2; Collins defeated Seay, 3 and 2; Seay defeated Collins, 3 and 2; Collins defeated Seay, 3 and 2.

Foreign Markets

By Associated Press.

London, Nov. 7.—Share prices held quietly steady in the stock market today. Transactions moved freely. Oil-related securities were firm and German bonds were marked up. Industrials were well maintained with interest centering in opening of dealings in Woodworth & Co. Ltd., new shares, which went to a premium. Commodity shares, including rubber, copper and gold, were mostly unchanged.

Paris.—Demand for government bonds high. Lighted dealers in the house today. Notable closed 30 to 320 centimes higher. Bank of France advanced 440 francs and Bank of Canada 585, while Royal Dutch dipped 25.

Liverpool.—Cotton declined 5 to 8 points today under indication of nearby deliveries and Bombay cotton. Prospects of a large United States crop limited demand. Wheat futures lost 1/2 to 1/4 penny at the close as favorable American weather offset smaller wheat shipments. Outside interest was small.

C. A. Glazen defeated Annette Cohen, 4 and 3; Dr. W. P. White defeated Jessie C. Roney, 4 and 3; W. F. Clark defeated Mrs. C. L. James, 2 up.

WASHINGTON.

Mrs. George C. Roney was re-elected chairman of the women's golf committee at the annual business meeting at the Washington Golf and Country Club yesterday. Mrs. Roney was hostess at a tea following the meeting. The announcement was made by Mrs. R. E. Hotze, who will handle the publicity for the committee next year.

ARMY AND NAVY.

Mrs. David Clark, club champion, and Mrs. Felix Gygax tied with net 80 in the annual Tribby Cup tournament yesterday at the Service Club.

Mrs. Clark scored 83, 3-90, and Mrs. Gygax 90, 11-80. They will play off for the cup this week. Miss Jerry Weible, with 102, 21-81, was also among the prize winners. Prizes were donated by Allan and Prizes Burton.

Mrs. Clark scored 83, 3-90, and Mrs. Gygax 90, 11-80. They will play off for the cup this week. Miss Jerry Weible, with 102, 21-81, was also among the prize winners. Prizes were donated by Allan and Prizes Burton.

Mrs. Clark scored 83, 3-90, and Mrs. Gygax 90, 11-80. They will play off for the cup this week. Miss Jerry Weible, with 102, 21-81, was also among the prize winners. Prizes were donated by Allan and Prizes Burton.

Mrs. Clark scored 83, 3-90, and Mrs. Gygax 90, 11-80. They will play off for the cup this week. Miss Jerry Weible, with 102, 21-81, was also among the prize winners. Prizes were donated by Allan and Prizes Burton.

Mrs. Clark scored 83, 3-90, and Mrs. Gygax 90, 11-80. They will play off for the cup this week. Miss Jerry Weible, with 102, 21-81, was also among the prize winners. Prizes were donated by Allan and Prizes Burton.

Mrs. Clark scored 83, 3-90, and Mrs. Gygax 90, 11-80. They will play off for the cup this week. Miss Jerry Weible, with 102, 21-81, was also among the prize winners. Prizes were donated by Allan and Prizes Burton.

Mrs. Clark scored 83, 3-90, and Mrs. Gygax 90, 11-80. They will play off for the cup this week. Miss Jerry Weible, with 102, 21-81, was also among the prize winners. Prizes were donated by Allan and Prizes Burton.

Mrs. Clark scored 83, 3-90, and Mrs. Gygax 90, 11-80. They will play off for the cup this week. Miss Jerry Weible, with 102, 21-81, was also among the prize winners. Prizes were donated by Allan and Prizes Burton.

Mrs. Clark scored 83, 3-90, and Mrs. Gygax 90, 11-80. They will play off for the cup this week. Miss Jerry Weible, with 102, 21-81, was also among the prize winners. Prizes were donated by Allan and Prizes Burton.

Mrs. Clark scored 83, 3-90, and Mrs. Gygax 90, 11-80. They will play off for the cup this week. Miss Jerry Weible, with 102, 21-81, was also among the prize winners. Prizes were donated by Allan and Prizes Burton.

Mrs. Clark scored 83, 3-90, and Mrs. Gygax 90, 11-80. They will play off for the cup this week. Miss Jerry Weible, with 102, 21-81, was also among the prize winners. Prizes were donated by Allan and Prizes Burton.

Mrs. Clark scored 83, 3-90, and Mrs. Gygax 90, 11-80. They will play off for the cup this week. Miss Jerry Weible, with 102, 21-81, was also among the prize winners. Prizes were donated by Allan and Prizes Burton.

Mrs. Clark scored 83, 3-90, and Mrs. Gygax 90, 11-80. They will play off for the cup this week. Miss Jerry Weible, with 102, 21-81, was also among the prize winners. Prizes were donated by Allan and Prizes Burton.

Mrs. Clark scored 83, 3-90, and Mrs. Gygax 90, 11-80. They will play off for the cup this week. Miss Jerry Weible, with 102, 21-81, was also among the prize winners. Prizes were donated by Allan and Prizes Burton.

Mrs. Clark scored 83, 3-90, and Mrs. Gygax 90, 11-80. They will play off for the cup this week. Miss Jerry Weible, with 102, 21-81, was also among the prize winners. Prizes were donated by Allan and Prizes Burton.

Mrs. Clark scored 83, 3-90, and Mrs. Gygax 90, 11-80. They will play off for the cup this week. Miss Jerry Weible, with 102, 21-81, was also among the prize winners. Prizes were donated by Allan and Prizes Burton.

Mrs. Clark scored 83, 3-90, and Mrs. Gygax 90, 11-80. They will play off for the cup this week. Miss Jerry Weible, with 102, 21-81, was also among the prize winners. Prizes were donated by Allan and Prizes Burton.

Mrs. Clark scored 83, 3-90, and Mrs. Gygax 90, 11-80. They will play off for the cup this week. Miss Jerry Weible, with 102, 21-81, was also among the prize winners. Prizes were donated by Allan and Prizes Burton.

Mrs. Clark scored 83, 3-90, and Mrs. Gygax 90, 11-80. They will play off for the cup this week. Miss Jerry Weible, with 102, 21-81, was also among the prize winners. Prizes were donated by Allan and Prizes Burton.

Mrs. Clark scored 83, 3-90, and Mrs. Gygax 90, 11-80. They will play off for the cup this week. Miss Jerry Weible, with 102, 21-81, was also among the prize winners. Prizes were donated by Allan and Prizes Burton.

Mrs. Clark scored 83, 3-90, and Mrs. Gygax 90, 11-80. They will play off for the cup this week. Miss Jerry Weible, with 102, 21-81, was also among the prize winners. Prizes were donated by Allan and Prizes Burton.

Mrs. Clark scored 83, 3-90, and Mrs. Gygax 90, 11-80. They will play off for the cup this week. Miss Jerry Weible, with 102, 21-81, was also among the prize winners. Prizes were donated by Allan and Prizes Burton.

Mrs. Clark scored 83, 3-90, and Mrs. Gygax 90, 11-80. They will play off for the cup this week. Miss Jerry Weible, with 102, 21-81, was also among the prize winners. Prizes were donated by Allan and Prizes Burton.

Mrs. Clark scored 83, 3-90, and Mrs. Gygax 90, 11-80. They will play off for the cup this week. Miss Jerry Weible, with 102, 21-81, was also among the prize winners. Prizes were donated by Allan and Prizes Burton.

Mrs. Clark scored 83, 3-90, and Mrs. Gygax 90, 11-80. They will play off for the cup this week. Miss Jerry Weible, with 102, 21-81, was also among the prize winners. Prizes were donated by Allan and Prizes Burton.

Mrs. Clark scored 83, 3-90, and Mrs. Gygax 90, 11-80. They will play off for the cup this week. Miss Jerry Weible, with 102, 21-81, was also among the prize winners. Prizes were donated by Allan and Prizes Burton.

Mrs. Clark scored 83, 3-90, and Mrs. Gygax 90, 11-80. They will play off for the cup this week. Miss Jerry Weible, with 102, 21-81, was also among the prize winners. Prizes were donated by Allan and Prizes Burton.

Mrs. Clark scored 83, 3-90, and Mrs. Gygax 90, 11-80. They will play off for the cup this week. Miss Jerry Weible, with 102, 21-81, was also among the prize winners. Prizes were donated by Allan and Prizes Burton.

Mrs. Clark scored 83, 3-90, and Mrs. Gygax 90, 11-80. They will play off for the cup this week. Miss Jerry Weible, with 102, 21-81, was also among the prize winners. Prizes were donated by Allan and Prizes Burton.

Mrs. Clark scored 83, 3-90, and Mrs. Gygax 90, 11-80. They will play off for the cup this week. Miss Jerry Weible, with 102, 21-81, was also among the prize winners. Prizes were donated by Allan and Prizes Burton.

Mrs. Clark scored 83, 3-90, and Mrs. Gygax 90, 11-80. They will play off for the cup this week. Miss Jerry Weible, with 102, 21-81, was also among the prize winners. Prizes were donated by Allan and Prizes Burton.

Mrs. Clark scored 83, 3-90, and Mrs. Gygax 90, 11-80. They will play off for the cup this week. Miss Jerry Weible, with 102, 21-81, was also among the prize winners. Prizes were donated by Allan and Prizes Burton.

Mrs. Clark scored 83, 3-90, and Mrs. Gygax 90, 11-80. They will play off for the cup this week. Miss Jerry Weible, with 102, 21-81, was also among the prize winners. Prizes were donated by Allan and Prizes Burton.

Mrs. Clark scored 83, 3-90, and Mrs. Gygax 90, 11-80. They will play off for the cup this week. Miss Jerry Weible, with 102, 21-81, was also among the prize winners. Prizes were donated by Allan and Prizes Burton.

Mrs. Clark scored 83, 3-90, and Mrs. Gygax 90, 11-80. They will play off for the cup this week. Miss Jerry Weible, with 102, 21-81, was also among the prize winners. Prizes were donated by Allan and Prizes Burton.

Mrs. Clark scored 83, 3-90, and Mrs. Gygax 90, 11-80. They will play off for the cup this week. Miss Jerry Weible, with 102, 21-81, was also among the prize winners. Prizes were donated by Allan and Prizes Burton.

The Post Radio Time-Table

Tuesday, November 8, Washington Eastern Standard Time.

WOL 476M-530K WOL 510M-530K WOL 525M-530K WOL 540M-530K

6:00 Gordon Hittmaker Art Brown 6:00

6:15 " " " " 6:15

6:30 " " " " 6:30

6:45 " " " " 6:45

7:00 " " " " 7:00

7:15 " " " " 7:15

7:30 " " " " 7:30

7:45 " " " " 7:45

8:00 " " " " 8:00

8:15 " " " " 8:15

8:30 " " " " 8:30

8:45 " " " " 8:45

9:00 " " " " 9:00

9:15 " " " " 9:15

9:30 " " " " 9:30

9:45 " " " " 9:45

10:00 " " " " 10:00

10:15 " " " " 10:15

10:30 " " " " 10:30

10:45 " " " " 10:45

11:00 " " " " 11:00

11:15 " " " " 11:15

11:30 " " " " 11:30

11:45 " " " " 11:45

12:00 " " " " 12:00

12:15 " " " " 12:15

12:30 " " " " 12:30

12:45 " " " " 12:45

1:00 " " " " 1:00

1:15 " " " " 1:15

1:30 " " " " 1:30

1:45 " " " " 1:45

2:00 " " " " 2:00

2:15 " " " " 2:15

2:30 " " " " 2:30

2:45 " " " " 2:45

3:00 " " " " 3:00

3:15 " " " " 3:15

3:30 " " " " 3:30

3:45 " " " " 3:45

4:00 " " " " 4:00

4:15 " " " " 4:15

Tobacco Markets

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 7.—Leaf tobacco, Maryland—While receipts were only 336 bushels, sales totaled 382 bushels. The recent arrivals included 87 bushels of new-crop ground leaves, which showed up exceptionally good in regard to color, quality and cleanliness of stem. Consequently most of those offered were sold at from 8 to 25c. Ohio—Nothing to report.

Maryland, 1937 crop—Firm leaf, medium, 3.00x5.00; common, 3.00x12.00; medium, 12.00x30.00; good to fine, 31.00x40.00. Second, common, 4.00x12.00; medium, 11.00x30.00; good to fine, 30.00x40.00.

N. B.—Bully mixed hogsheads from 2.00 to 3.00 lower.

Stock in Warehouse.

Stock January 1. Md. Ohio. Total. 25,410 49 26,489

Receipts since 34,768 133 34,923

Total 61,178 193 61,412

Delivered since 36,314 118 36,432

Stock today 24,903 77 24,980

This week 382 382

Previous week 34,757 131 34,888

Ground leaves to date 37.

Ground leaves to date 37.

Ground leaves to date 37.

Ground leaves to date 37.

Ground leaves to date 37.

Ground leaves to date 37.

Ground leaves to date 37.

Ground leaves to date 37.

Ground leaves to date 37.

Ground leaves to date 37.

Ground leaves to date 37.

Ground leaves to date 37.

Ground leaves to date 37.

Ground leaves to date 37.

Ground leaves to date 37.

Ground leaves to date 37.

Ground leaves to date 37.

Ground leaves to date 37.

Ground leaves to date 37.

Ground leaves to date 37.

Ground leaves to date 37.

Ground leaves to date 37.

Ground leaves to date 37.

Ground leaves to date 37.

Ground leaves to date 37.

Ground leaves to date 37.

Ground leaves to date 37.

Ground leaves to date 37.

Ground leaves to date 37.

Ground leaves to date 37.

Ground leaves to date 37.

Ground leaves to date 37.

Ground leaves to date 37.

Ground leaves to date 37.

Ground leaves to date 37.

Transactions on N. Y. Bond Market

By Associated Press.

Total bond sales today, $7,378,400; previous day, $3,259,175; week ago, $8,553,500; year ago, $12,624,425; two years ago, $13,700,000; January 1 to date, $1,527,884,700; year ago, $2,400,824,725; two years ago, $3,015,305,000.

Range of United States Government Issues

(Values in $1,000, Dollars and Cents)

1938		Nov. 7.	1943-45		Endure
High.	Low	Sales.
100.2	100.18	3	TREASURY 2 1/4s. 1943-45.	March	10
100.14	100.12	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
100.12	100.10	2	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
100.10	100.08	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
100.08	100.06	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
100.06	100.04	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
100.04	100.02	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
100.02	100.00	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
100.00	99.98	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
99.98	99.96	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
99.96	99.94	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
99.94	99.92	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
99.92	99.90	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
99.90	99.88	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
99.88	99.86	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
99.86	99.84	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
99.84	99.82	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
99.82	99.80	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
99.80	99.78	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
99.78	99.76	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
99.76	99.74	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
99.74	99.72	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
99.72	99.70	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
99.70	99.68	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
99.68	99.66	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
99.66	99.64	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
99.64	99.62	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
99.62	99.60	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
99.60	99.58	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
99.58	99.56	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
99.56	99.54	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
99.54	99.52	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
99.52	99.50	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
99.50	99.48	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
99.48	99.46	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
99.46	99.44	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
99.44	99.42	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
99.42	99.40	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
99.40	99.38	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
99.38	99.36	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
99.36	99.34	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
99.34	99.32	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
99.32	99.30	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
99.30	99.28	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
99.28	99.26	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
99.26	99.24	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
99.24	99.22	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
99.22	99.20	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
99.20	99.18	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
99.18	99.16	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
99.16	99.14	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
99.14	99.12	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
99.12	99.10	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
99.10	99.08	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
99.08	99.06	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
99.06	99.04	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
99.04	99.02	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
99.02	99.00	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
99.00	98.98	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
98.98	98.96	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
98.96	98.94	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
98.94	98.92	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
98.92	98.90	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
98.90	98.88	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
98.88	98.86	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
98.86	98.84	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
98.84	98.82	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
98.82	98.80	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
98.80	98.78	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
98.78	98.76	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
98.76	98.74	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
98.74	98.72	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
98.72	98.70	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
98.70	98.68	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
98.68	98.66	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
98.66	98.64	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
98.64	98.62	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
98.62	98.60	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
98.60	98.58	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
98.58	98.56	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
98.56	98.54	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
98.54	98.52	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
98.52	98.50	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
98.50	98.48	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
98.48	98.46	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
98.46	98.44	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
98.44	98.42	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
98.42	98.40	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
98.40	98.38	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
98.38	98.36	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
98.36	98.34	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
98.34	98.32	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
98.32	98.30	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
98.30	98.28	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
98.28	98.26	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
98.26	98.24	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
98.24	98.22	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
98.22	98.20	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
98.20	98.18	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
98.18	98.16	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
98.16	98.14	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
98.14	98.12	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
98.12	98.10	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
98.10	98.08	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
98.08	98.06	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
98.06	98.04	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
98.04	98.02	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
98.02	98.00	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
98.00	97.98	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
97.98	97.96	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
97.96	97.94	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
97.94	97.92	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
97.92	97.90	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
97.90	97.88	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
97.88	97.86	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
97.86	97.84	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
97.84	97.82	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
97.82	97.80	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
97.80	97.78	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
97.78	97.76	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
97.76	97.74	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
97.74	97.72	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
97.72	97.70	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
97.70	97.68	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
97.68	97.66	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
97.66	97.64	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
97.64	97.62	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
97.62	97.60	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
97.60	97.58	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
97.58	97.56	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
97.56	97.54	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
97.54	97.52	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
97.52	97.50	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
97.50	97.48	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
97.48	97.46	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
97.46	97.44	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
97.44	97.42	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
97.42	97.40	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
97.40	97.38	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
97.38	97.36	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
97.36	97.34	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
97.34	97.32	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
97.32	97.30	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
97.30	97.28	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
97.28	97.26	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
97.26	97.24	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
97.24	97.22	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
97.22	97.20	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
97.20	97.18	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
97.18	97.16	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
97.16	97.14	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
97.14	97.12	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
97.12	97.10	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
97.10	97.08	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
97.08	97.06	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
97.06	97.04	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
97.04	97.02	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
97.02	97.00	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
97.00	96.98	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
96.98	96.96	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
96.96	96.94	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
96.94	96.92	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
96.92	96.90	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
96.90	96.88	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
96.88	96.86	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
96.86	96.84	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
96.84	96.82	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
96.82	96.80	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
96.80	96.78	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
96.78	96.76	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
96.76	96.74	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
96.74	96.72	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
96.72	96.70	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
96.70	96.68	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
96.68	96.66	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
96.66	96.64	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
96.64	96.62	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
96.62	96.60	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
96.60	96.58	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
96.58	96.56	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
96.56	96.54	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
96.54	96.52	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
96.52	96.50	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
96.50	96.48	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
96.48	96.46	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
96.46	96.44	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
96.44	96.42	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
96.42	96.40	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10
96.40	96.38	1	TREASURY 3 1/4s. 1941-43.		10

N. B. O'Neal Promoted by Riggs Bank

Takes Amick's Duties
Burns Heads Branches
Other Changes Made

By Thomas M. Cahill.

Following the regular monthly meeting of the directors of the Riggs National Bank yesterday afternoon, Robert V. Fleming, president, said that due to the sudden death of Earl M. Amick, vice president, on November 3, Nelson B. O'Neal, assistant vice president and manager of the branches of the bank, had been assigned the duties formerly performed by Mr. Amick. Mr. Fleming also announced that Gregg C. Burns, assistant cashier and formerly assistant manager of the branches, had been promoted to manager of the branches, while Ralph R. DePrez, assistant cashier, and formerly manager of the Dupont Circle branch, has been appointed assistant manager of the branches, succeeding Mr. Burns. Corcoran Thom, Jr., assistant cashier, and formerly assistant manager of the Dupont Circle branch, has been appointed assistant manager of the branches, succeeding Mr. Burns. Corcoran Thom, Jr., assistant cashier, and formerly assistant manager of the Dupont Circle branch, has been appointed assistant manager of the branches, succeeding Mr. Burns.

Seven Washington men will be on the speaking program of the forty-sixth annual convention of the United States Building & Loan League in Chicago, November 16-18. They are Leo T. Crowley, chairman of the Federal Home Loan Insurance Corporation; John H. Fahey, chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board; Edward C. Baltz, secretary, and Arthur G. Bishop, chairman of the Federal Home Loan Building Association; Nugent Fallon, general manager of the Federal Savings & Loan Insurance Corporation, and the deputy general manager, Oscar Krout, and John W. Ballard, chief of the examining division of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board.

An assemblage of 1,500 to 2,000 savings, building and loan association executives is expected for discussion of all current matters having a bearing upon their institutions' objectives of more thrift and home ownership in the communities. Mr. Baltz, president of the league, will preside at all sessions and at the banquet on Thursday evening, November 17, when Gov. Clyde R. Hoey of North Carolina will be the principal speaker.

Besides the Washingtonians, the convention will hear Dr. Melchior Paluy, University of Chicago economist and formerly economist to the Deutsche Bank in Berlin; Morton Bodfish, Chicago, executive vice president of the United States Building & Loan League; Horace Russell, general counsel for the league, and George C. Hager, president of Rotary International. Some 40 savings and loan association managers will be on the program, and on those of other sessions of the convention.

Crowley's Topics

Mr. Crowley will speak on "Commercial Banks and Savings and Loan Associations," Mr. Fahey on the Federal Government's agencies having to do with savings and loan work; Mr. Baltz will make the presidential address; Mr. Bishop will talk on "Title Protection in Connection With Association Mortgages," Mr. Fallon on "Financial Aspects of the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation," Mr. Krout on "Insurance of Accounts in Build Larger, Stronger Associations," and Mr. Ballard on "Some Problems in Joint Examinations."

Besides these topics, there will be discussion on the uniform mortgage act, the trends of saving and loan association operation on the savings

Commodity Corp. Buys $5,105,000 Products

The Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation disclosed yesterday that it had bought surplus agricultural products costing approximately $5,105,000 in 24 States during the past five weeks. This brought total purchases by the corporation since July 1 to $17,981,000. The commodities were distributed for relief purposes.

Local Stocks

Washington Gas Light Co. 10 at 10 1/4
Potomac Elec. & P. 1 at 11 1/4
Notice—This exchange will be closed today, Election Day.

STOCKS

Public Utility

Am. Tel. & Tel. (N.Y.) 147 1/2

Capital Transit Co. 8 7/8

Pot. & W. Steamboat 56 1/2

Pot. Elec. & P. (N.Y.) 114 1/2

Wash. Gas & L. (N.Y.) 114 1/2

Wash. Gas & L. (N.Y.) 114 1/2

Wash. Gas & L. (N.Y.) 114 1/2

Wash. Gas & L. (N.Y.) 114 1/2

Wash. Gas & L. (N.Y.) 114 1/2

Wash. Gas & L. (N.Y.) 114 1/2

Wash. Gas & L. (N.Y.) 114 1/2

Wash. Gas & L. (N.Y.) 114 1/2

Wash. Gas & L. (N.Y.) 114 1/2

Wash. Gas & L. (N.Y.) 114 1/2

Wash. Gas & L. (N.Y.) 114 1/2

Wash. Gas & L. (N.Y.) 114 1/2

Wash. Gas & L. (N.Y.) 114 1/2

Wash. Gas & L. (N.Y.) 114 1/2

Wash. Gas & L. (N.Y.) 114 1/2

Wash. Gas & L. (N.Y.) 114 1/2

Wash. Gas & L. (N.Y.) 114 1/2

Wash. Gas & L. (N.Y.) 114 1/2

Wash. Gas & L. (N.Y.) 114 1/2

Wash. Gas & L. (N.Y.) 114 1/2

Wash. Gas & L. (N.Y.) 114 1/2

Wash. Gas & L. (N.Y.) 114 1/2

Wash. Gas & L. (N.Y.) 114 1/2

Wash. Gas & L. (N.Y.) 114 1/2

Wash. Gas & L. (N.Y.) 114 1/2

Wash. Gas & L. (N.Y.) 114 1/2

Wash. Gas & L. (N.Y.) 114 1/2

Wash. Gas & L. (N.Y.) 114 1/2

Wash. Gas & L. (N.Y.) 114 1/2

Wash. Gas & L. (N.Y.) 114 1/2

Wash. Gas & L. (N.Y.) 114 1/2

Wash. Gas & L. (N.Y.) 114 1/2

FDIC Chairman

Leo T. Crowley

who will address the forty-sixth annual convention of the United States Building and Loan League next week at Chicago

Chicago, Nov. 7. (AP)—Corn climbed a cent a bushel today, and helped bring about wheat market rallies that virtually overcame preceding losses of almost a cent.

Expectations that there would be only a small movement of new corn to terminal points in the near future did much to hold corn values.

Speculative traders took actively to the purchase side, stimulated by reports that most farmers were selling next to no new corn, but were storing it instead.

At the close, corn was 1/4 cent a bushel higher, compared with Saturday's finish, December 46 1/4.

May 49 1/4, wheat unchanged at 46 1/4, oats unchanged 1/4 up, rye 1/2 down, and provisions unchanged to 10 cents advance.

Wheat—No. 2, 46 1/4; No. 1, 46 1/4; No. 3, 46 1/4; No. 4, 46 1/4; No. 5, 46 1/4; No. 6, 46 1/4; No. 7, 46 1/4; No. 8, 46 1/4; No. 9, 46 1/4; No. 10, 46 1/4; No. 11, 46 1/4; No. 12, 46 1/4; No. 13, 46 1/4; No. 14, 46 1/4; No. 15, 46 1/4; No. 16, 46 1/4; No. 17, 46 1/4; No. 18, 46 1/4; No. 19, 46 1/4; No. 20, 46 1/4; No. 21, 46 1/4; No. 22, 46 1/4; No. 23, 46 1/4; No. 24, 46 1/4; No. 25, 46 1/4; No. 26, 46 1/4; No. 27, 46 1/4; No. 28, 46 1/4; No. 29, 46 1/4; No. 30, 46 1/4; No. 31, 46 1/4; No. 32, 46 1/4; No. 33, 46 1/4; No. 34, 46 1/4; No. 35, 46 1/4; No. 36, 46 1/4; No. 37, 46 1/4; No. 38, 46 1/4; No. 39, 46 1/4; No. 40, 46 1/4; No. 41, 46 1/4; No. 42, 46 1/4; No. 43, 46 1/4; No. 44, 46 1/4; No. 45, 46 1/4; No. 46, 46 1/4; No. 47, 46 1/4; No. 48, 46 1/4; No. 49, 46 1/4; No. 50, 46 1/4; No. 51, 46 1/4; No. 52, 46 1/4; No. 53, 46 1/4; No. 54, 46 1/4; No. 55, 46 1/4; No. 56, 46 1/4; No. 57, 46 1/4; No. 58, 46 1/4; No. 59, 46 1/4; No. 60, 46 1/4; No. 61, 46 1/4; No. 62, 46 1/4; No. 63, 46 1/4; No. 64, 46 1/4; No. 65, 46 1/4; No. 66, 46 1/4; No. 67, 46 1/4; No. 68, 46 1/4; No. 69, 46 1/4; No. 70, 46 1/4; No. 71, 46 1/4; No. 72, 46 1/4; No. 73, 46 1/4; No. 74, 46 1/4; No. 75, 46 1/4; No. 76, 46 1/4; No. 77, 46 1/4; No. 78, 46 1/4; No. 79, 46 1/4; No. 80, 46 1/4; No. 81, 46 1/4; No. 82, 46 1/4; No. 83, 46 1/4; No. 84, 46 1/4; No. 85, 46 1/4; No. 86, 46 1/4; No. 87, 46 1/4; No. 88, 46 1/4; No. 89, 46 1/4; No. 90, 46 1/4; No. 91, 46 1/4; No. 92, 46 1/4; No. 93, 46 1/4; No. 94, 46 1/4; No. 95, 46 1/4; No. 96, 46 1/4; No. 97, 46 1/4; No. 98, 46 1/4; No. 99, 46 1/4; No. 100, 46 1/4; No. 101, 46 1/4; No. 102, 46 1/4; No. 103, 46 1/4; No. 104, 46 1/4; No. 105, 46 1/4; No. 106, 46 1/4; No. 107, 46 1/4; No. 108, 46 1/4; No. 109, 46 1/4; No. 110, 46 1/4; No. 111, 46 1/4; No. 112, 46 1/4; No. 113, 46 1/4; No. 114, 46 1/4; No. 115, 46 1/4; No. 116, 46 1/4; No. 117, 46 1/4; No. 118, 46 1/4; No. 119, 46 1/4; No. 120, 46 1/4; No. 121, 46 1/4; No. 122, 46 1/4; No. 123, 46 1/4; No. 124, 46 1/4; No. 125, 46 1/4; No. 126, 46 1/4; No. 127, 46 1/4; No. 128, 46 1/4; No. 129, 46 1/4; No. 130, 46 1/4; No. 131, 46 1/4; No. 132, 46 1/4; No. 133, 46 1/4; No. 134, 46 1/4; No. 135, 46 1/4; No. 136, 46 1/4; No. 137, 46 1/4; No. 138, 46 1/4; No. 139, 46 1/4; No. 140, 46 1/4; No. 141, 46 1/4; No. 142, 46 1/4; No. 143, 46 1/4; No. 144, 46 1/4; No. 145, 46 1/4; No. 146, 46 1/4; No. 147, 46 1/4; No. 148, 46 1/4; No. 149, 46 1/4; No. 150, 46 1/4; No. 151, 46 1/4; No. 152, 46 1/4; No. 153, 46 1/4; No. 154, 46 1/4; No. 155, 46 1/4; No. 156, 46 1/4; No. 157, 46 1/4; No. 158, 46 1/4; No. 159, 46 1/4; No. 160, 46 1/4; No. 161, 46 1/4; No. 162, 46 1/4; No. 163, 46 1/4; No. 164, 46 1/4; No. 165, 46 1/4; No. 166, 46 1/4; No. 167, 46 1/4; No. 168, 46 1/4; No. 169, 46 1/4; No. 170, 46 1/4; No. 171, 46 1/4; No. 172, 46 1/4; No. 173, 46 1/4; No. 174, 46 1/4; No. 175, 46 1/4; No. 176, 46 1/4; No. 177, 46 1/4; No. 178, 46 1/4; No. 179, 46 1/4; No. 180, 46 1/4; No. 181, 46 1/4; No. 182, 46 1/4; No. 183, 46 1/4; No. 184, 46 1/4; No. 185, 46 1/4; No. 186, 46 1/4; No. 187, 46 1/4; No. 188, 46 1/4; No. 189, 46 1/4; No. 190, 46 1/4; No. 191, 46 1/4; No. 192, 46 1/4; No. 193, 46 1/4; No. 194, 46 1/4; No. 195, 46 1/4; No. 196, 46 1/4; No. 197, 46 1/4; No. 198, 46 1/4; No. 199, 46 1/4; No. 200, 46 1/4; No. 201, 46 1/4; No. 202, 46 1/4; No. 203, 46 1/4; No. 204, 46 1/4; No. 205, 46 1/4; No. 206, 46 1/4; No. 207, 46 1/4; No. 208, 46 1/4; No. 209, 46 1/4; No. 210, 46 1/4; No. 211, 46 1/4; No. 212, 46 1/4; No. 213, 46 1/4; No. 214, 46 1/4; No. 215, 46 1/4; No. 216, 46 1/4; No. 217, 46 1/4; No. 218, 46 1/4; No. 219, 46 1/4; No. 220, 46 1/4; No. 221, 46 1/4; No. 222, 46 1/4; No. 223, 46 1/4; No. 224, 46 1/4; No. 225, 46 1/4; No. 226, 46 1/4; No. 227, 46 1/4; No. 228, 46 1/4; No. 229, 46 1/4; No. 230, 46 1/4; No. 231, 46 1/4; No. 232, 46 1/4; No. 233, 46 1/4; No. 234, 46 1/4; No. 235, 46 1/4; No. 236, 46 1/4; No. 237, 46 1/4; No. 238, 46 1/4; No. 239, 46 1/4; No. 240, 46 1/4; No. 241, 46 1/4; No. 242, 46 1/4; No. 243, 46 1/4; No. 244, 46 1/4; No. 245, 46 1/4; No. 246, 46 1/4; No. 247, 46 1/4; No. 248, 46 1/4; No. 249, 46 1/4; No. 250, 46 1/4; No. 251, 46 1/4; No. 252, 46 1/4; No. 253, 46 1/4; No. 254, 46 1/4; No. 255, 46 1/4; No. 256, 46 1/4; No. 257, 46 1/4; No. 258, 46 1/4; No. 259, 46 1/4; No. 260, 46 1/4; No. 261, 46 1/4; No. 262, 46 1/4; No. 263, 46 1/4; No. 264, 46 1/4; No. 265, 46 1/4; No. 266, 46 1/4; No. 267, 46 1/4; No. 268, 46 1/4; No. 269, 46 1/4; No. 270, 46 1/4; No. 271, 46 1/4; No. 272, 46 1/4; No. 273, 46 1/4; No. 274, 46 1/4; No. 275, 46 1/4; No. 276, 46 1/4; No. 277, 46 1/4; No. 278, 46 1/4; No. 279, 46 1/4; No. 280, 46 1/4; No. 281, 46 1/4; No. 282, 46 1/4; No. 283, 46 1/4; No. 284, 46 1/4; No. 285, 46 1/4; No. 286, 46 1/4; No. 287, 46 1/4; No. 288, 46 1/4; No. 289, 46 1/4; No. 290, 46 1/4; No. 291, 46 1/4; No. 292, 46 1/4; No. 293, 46 1/4; No. 294, 46 1/4; No. 295, 46 1/4; No. 296, 46 1/4; No. 297, 46 1/4; No. 298, 46 1/4; No. 299, 46 1/4; No. 300, 46 1/4; No. 301, 46 1/4; No. 302, 46 1/4; No. 303, 46 1/4; No. 304, 46 1/4; No. 305, 46 1/4; No. 306, 46 1/4; No. 307, 46 1/4; No. 308, 46 1/4; No. 309, 46 1/4; No. 310, 46 1/4; No. 311, 46 1/4; No. 312, 46 1/4; No. 313, 46 1/4; No. 314, 46 1/4; No. 315, 46 1/4; No. 316, 46 1/4; No. 317, 46 1/4; No. 318, 46 1/4; No. 319, 46 1/4; No. 320, 46 1/4; No. 321, 46 1/4; No. 322, 46 1/4; No. 323, 46 1/4; No. 324, 46 1/4; No. 325, 46 1/4; No. 326, 46 1/4; No. 327, 46 1/4; No. 328, 46 1/4; No. 329, 46 1/4; No. 330, 46 1/4; No. 331, 46 1/4; No. 332, 46 1/4; No. 333, 46 1/4; No. 334, 46 1/4; No. 335, 46 1/4; No. 336, 46 1/4; No. 337, 46 1/4; No. 338, 46 1/4; No. 339, 46 1/4; No. 340, 46 1/4; No. 341, 46 1/4; No. 342, 46 1/4; No. 343, 46 1/4; No. 344, 46 1/4; No. 345, 46 1/4; No. 346, 46 1/4; No. 347, 46 1/4; No. 348, 46 1/4; No. 349, 46 1/4; No. 350, 46 1/4; No. 351, 46 1/4; No. 352, 46 1/4; No. 353, 46 1/4; No. 354, 46 1/4; No. 355, 46 1/4; No. 356, 46 1/4; No. 357, 46 1/4; No. 358, 46 1/4; No. 359, 46 1/4; No. 360, 46 1/4; No. 361, 46 1/4; No. 362, 46 1/4; No. 363, 46 1/4; No. 364, 46 1/4; No. 365, 46 1/4; No. 366, 46 1/4; No. 367, 46 1/4; No. 368, 46 1/4; No. 369, 46 1/4; No. 370, 46 1/4; No. 371, 46 1/4; No. 372, 46 1/4; No. 373, 46 1/4; No. 374, 46 1/4; No. 375, 46 1/4; No. 376, 46 1/4; No. 377, 46 1/4; No. 378, 46 1/4; No. 379, 46 1/4; No. 380, 46 1/4; No. 381, 46 1/4; No. 382, 46 1/4; No. 383, 46 1/4; No. 384, 46 1/4; No. 385, 46 1/4; No. 386, 46 1/4; No. 387, 46 1/4; No. 388, 46 1/4; No. 389, 46 1/4; No. 390, 46 1/4; No. 391, 46 1/4; No. 392, 46 1/4; No. 393, 46 1/4; No. 394, 46 1/4; No. 395, 46 1/4; No. 396, 46 1/4; No. 397, 46 1/4; No. 398, 46 1/4; No. 399, 46 1/4; No. 400, 46 1/4; No. 401, 46 1/4; No. 402, 46 1/4; No. 403, 46 1/4; No. 404, 46 1/4; No. 405, 46 1/4; No. 406, 46 1/4; No. 407, 46 1/4; No. 408, 46 1/4; No. 409, 46 1/4; No. 410, 46 1/4; No. 411, 46 1/4; No. 412, 46 1/4; No. 413, 46 1/4; No. 414, 46 1/4; No. 415, 46 1/4; No. 416, 46 1/4; No. 417, 46 1/4; No. 418, 46 1/4; No. 419, 46 1/4; No. 420, 46 1/4; No. 421, 46 1/4; No. 422, 46 1/4; No. 423, 46 1/4; No. 424, 46 1/4; No. 425, 46 1/4; No. 426, 46 1/4; No. 427, 46 1/4; No. 428, 46 1/4; No. 429, 46 1/4; No. 430, 46 1/4; No. 431, 46 1/4; No. 432, 46 1/4; No. 433, 46 1/4; No. 434, 46 1/4; No. 435, 46 1/4; No. 436, 46 1/4; No. 437, 46 1/4; No. 438, 46 1/4; No. 439, 46 1/4; No. 440, 46 1/4; No. 441, 46 1/4; No. 442, 46 1/4; No. 443, 46 1/4; No. 444, 46 1/4; No. 445, 46 1/4; No. 446, 46 1/4; No. 447, 46 1/4; No. 448, 46 1/4; No. 449, 46 1/4; No. 450, 46 1/4; No. 451, 46 1/4; No. 452, 46 1/4; No. 453, 46 1/4; No. 454, 46 1/4; No. 455, 46 1/4; No. 456, 46 1/4; No. 457, 46 1/4; No. 458, 46 1/4; No. 459, 46 1/4; No. 460, 46 1/4; No. 461, 46 1/4; No. 462, 46 1/4; No. 463, 46 1/4; No. 464, 46 1/4; No. 465, 46 1/4; No. 466, 46 1/4; No. 467, 46 1/4; No. 468, 46 1/4; No. 469, 46 1/4; No. 470, 46 1/4; No. 471, 46 1/4; No. 472, 46 1/4; No. 473, 46 1/4; No. 474, 46 1/4; No. 475, 46 1/4; No. 476, 46 1/4; No. 477, 46 1/4; No. 478, 46 1/4; No. 479, 46 1/4; No. 480, 46 1/4; No. 481, 46 1/4; No. 482, 46 1/4; No. 483, 46 1/4; No. 484, 46 1/4; No. 485, 46 1/4; No. 486, 46 1/4; No. 487, 46 1/4; No. 488, 46 1/4; No. 489, 46 1/4; No. 490, 46 1/4; No. 491, 46 1/4; No. 492, 46 1/4; No. 493, 46 1/4; No. 494, 46 1/4; No. 495, 46 1/4; No. 496, 46 1/4; No. 497, 46 1/4; No. 498, 46 1/4; No. 499, 46 1/4; No. 500, 46 1/4; No. 501, 46 1/4; No. 502, 46 1/4; No. 503, 46 1/4; No. 504, 46 1/4; No. 505, 46 1/4; No. 506, 46 1/4; No. 507, 46 1/4; No. 508, 46 1/4; No. 509, 46 1/4; No. 510, 46 1/4; No. 511, 46 1/4; No. 512, 46 1/4; No. 513, 46 1/4; No. 514, 46 1/4; No. 515, 46 1/4; No. 516, 46 1/4; No. 517, 46 1/4; No. 518, 46 1/4; No. 519, 46 1/4; No. 520, 46 1/4; No. 521, 46 1/4; No. 522, 46 1/4; No. 523, 46 1/4; No. 524, 46 1/4; No. 525, 46 1/4; No. 526, 46 1/4; No. 527, 46 1/4; No. 528, 46 1/4; No. 529, 46 1/4; No. 530, 46 1/4; No. 531, 46 1/4; No. 532, 46 1/4; No. 533, 46 1/4; No. 534, 46 1/4; No. 535, 46 1/4; No. 536, 46 1/4; No. 537, 46 1/4; No. 538, 46 1/4; No. 539, 46 1/4; No. 540, 46 1/4; No. 541, 46 1/4; No. 542, 46 1/4; No. 543, 46 1/4; No. 544, 46 1/4; No. 545, 46 1/4; No. 546, 46 1/4; No. 547, 46 1/4; No. 548, 46 1/4; No. 549, 46 1/4; No. 550, 46 1/4; No. 551, 46 1/4; No. 552, 46 1/4; No. 553, 46 1/4; No. 554, 46 1/4; No. 555, 46 1/4; No. 556, 46 1/4; No. 557, 46 1/4; No. 558, 46 1/4; No. 559, 46 1/4; No. 560, 46 1/4; No. 561, 46 1/4; No. 562, 46 1/4; No. 563, 46 1/4; No. 564, 46 1/4; No. 565, 46 1/4; No. 566, 46 1/4; No. 567, 46 1/4; No. 568, 46 1/4; No. 569, 46 1/4; No. 57

Realty Bonds At Highest In 8 Months

Local Issues Up 5.4% Hotel Bonds Lead Theater Rank Next

New York, Nov. 7.—Real estate bonds in October moved into a high ground for the last six months, the bond index maintained by Burr & Co. revealed today. The average market for the 250 in-

40.2 on November 1, an average increase of almost a full point since the issue over the October 1, 1988, average price of 39.3. On the other hand, the average price of 39.3 cent per copy on October 1, 1988, was 1.3 cent per copy higher than the average price of 37.8 on October 1, 1987. During the October 1988 increase in market value, compared with 34 issues that decreased in value, 10 issues increased. New York City issues were leaders in the substantial October increase, gaining an average of 37.8 to 39.3 on November 1. For the ten months through October, Brooklyn and Buffalo also have shown the best gains, increasing 10 per cent each over the October 1, 1987, average. The latter issue, however, has increased 9.6 cent; Washington, D.C., 8.4 per cent; Miami, 3.6 per cent; New York 2.5 per cent, and Philadelphia 1.5 per cent. During the first month of this year, issues in the latter class have fared in Boston issues going down an

Of the various types of properties covered by the index, issues continued to maintain best average appreciation. Hotel issues have increased 4 points, 32 to 36 in the first ten months of 1938, for a gain of 12.5 per cent. Office building issues are followed by apartment house issues with a gain of 6 per cent, 24 to 30 in the first ten months of 1938.

Money Markets
Foreign Exchange

Great Britain-Demand, 4.76% bills, 4.75%.	Yugoslavia...
Montreal in New York 99.37%	Netherlands...
New York in Montreal, 100.62%	Norway
Belgium 16.92	Poland
Czechoslovakia 3.44%	Portugal
Denmark 21.75	Rumania
Finland 2.12	Sweden
France 2.66%	Switzerland ..
Germany 40.06	"Argentina....
Hambroviolen 19.90	"Brazil (free)
Holland 22.40	"Mexico (free)
Greece 86	"Norway
Hungary 19.85	"Honskong ..
Italy 5.36%	"Shanghai ..
"London
New York

commercial paper: $\frac{1}{2}$ % per cent.
loans steady; 60-90 days: $\frac{1}{4}$ %; 4-6
 $\frac{1}{2}$ % per cent. Bankers' acceptance changed: 60-90 days: $\frac{1}{4}$ % per months: $\frac{1}{2}$ % per cent; 3-6 months:
 $\frac{3}{4}$ % per cent. Rediscout rate New Reserve Bank, 1 per cent.
Bar silver, 42%, unchanged.
London.
Money, $\frac{1}{2}$ % per cent. Discount
Short bills, $\frac{1}{4}$ %; 3-months bills,
Bar sold, $\frac{1}{2}$ 1/4d, up 1 penny silver, 42% unchanged.
Bar silver 19 1/4d. off 1/4. (Re-41.89 cents).
Paris
Principal reserve issues in the bou-
3 per cent. 79.20 francs; 4 1/2% $\frac{1}{2}$
4 1/2% 1937, 134.50.
Naval Stores Firm
Savannah, Nov. 7 (AP).—Turpentine,
23 1/2%; sales, 154; receipts, 331; sh
162; stock, 50,872. Roasin firm: fir

282.777. Quote—B. D. 4.05; E.
4.00; G. H. I. K. M. 3.15; N. 3.
0.00; W. W. X. 0.85.

WE SELL, BUY OR EXCHANGE OFFICE FURNITURE

Desks	Steel Files
Tables	Steel Cabinets
Chairs	Safes

BAUM'S OFFICE FURNITURE
1616 Eve St. N.W. (Next to Post
NA. 2184) No Branches

Conservative

First Mortgage

Investments
Secured on New Home
Paying 5 1/2% In
Chas. D. Sage
Since 1910
924 14th N.W. National

LOANS

Before you buy, build, model or refinance your or business property, let us over your problem with
We will save you commission and renewal charges—and joining this Association, share mutually in the profit

NORTHERN LIBERTY BUILDING ASSOCIATION
611 SEVENTH STREET,
Established 46 years

MEMBER OF FEDERAL HOME LOAN BANK

U. S. BUILDING AND LOAN LI

First Trust
Lo

For Purchasing a Ho

RE-FINANCING
EXPIRING TRUS

NATIONAL Permanent
BUILDING ASSOCIATION

U.S. TREASURY
718 Tenth Street N.W.

The Miscellaneous Classifieds - Real Estate - Automobiles - Miscellaneous Bargains

Post Classified Ads-National 4200.
Apartments-Unfurnished.
Continued From Previous Page.
219 H ST. N.W.
1 room, kitchen and bath $27.50
2 rooms, kitchen and bath $32.50
1001 15th St. N.W. NA. 8100.
628 N. CAROLINA AVE. S.E.
First-floor front, 4 rooms, kitchen and bath, $32.50.
GEORGE F. HANE, INC.
1425 F St. N.W. NA. 3964.

Bennett Hall
6313 16th St. N.W.
(Corner of Somerset St.)
VERY desirable apartments—large rooms—nicely arranged—complete kitchen equipment.
Two Rooms, Dining Alcove Kitchen
$60.00
H. L. RUST CO.
3001 15th St. N.W. NA. 8100

THE MANSIONETTES
ON AN ACHIEVEMENT in Small Apartment
DESIGN
NEW SOLARUM APTS.
OTIS GARDENS
1445 Otis Pl. N.W.
Just North of 14th & Park Road
HOME FEATURES OF MANSIONETTES:
FLOOR-TO-CEILING VENETIAN BLINDS
PARQUET FLOORING
MODERN KITCHENS
ELECTRIC REFRIGERATION
24-Hour Switchboard and Elevator Service. Open and lighted until 10 p. m.
See Display Apt. by Peerless
See Manager on Premises, Adams 6130
1404 K CAFRITZ Dist. 9080

THE SHELBERNE
17th and 5th Sts. N.W.
2 rooms, kitchen and bath $32.50
Fridaire on house
Elevators
HAMPSHIRE GARDENS
215 Emerson St. N.W.
Living room, bedroom dining room, kitchen and bath $37.50
Fridaire on house
Elevators

H.G. Smithy
811 15th St. N.W. NA. 5903
AN ADDRESS TO BE PROUD OF Majestic
APARTMENTS
3200 16th St. N.W.
"See This Achievement in Small Apartment Design."
New Ultra-Modern Apts.
Excellent transportation, convenient to stores and shopping district—walking distance of everything.
$52.50—Living room, dining room, kitchen and bath, complete kitchen equipment, refrigerator, electric range, sink, stove, and oven.
$95.00—Beautiful corner apartment, dining room, kitchen and bath, complete kitchen equipment, refrigerator, electric range, sink, stove, and oven.
$120—Beautiful corner apartment, dining room, kitchen and bath, complete kitchen equipment, refrigerator, electric range, sink, stove, and oven.

MAJESTIC APARTMENTS
3200 16th St. N.W.
"See This Achievement in Small Apartment Design."
New Ultra-Modern Apts.
Excellent transportation, convenient to stores and shopping district—walking distance of everything.
$52.50—Living room, dining room, kitchen and bath, complete kitchen equipment, refrigerator, electric range, sink, stove, and oven.
$95.00—Beautiful corner apartment, dining room, kitchen and bath, complete kitchen equipment, refrigerator, electric range, sink, stove, and oven.
$120—Beautiful corner apartment, dining room, kitchen and bath, complete kitchen equipment, refrigerator, electric range, sink, stove, and oven.

Post Classified Ads-National 4200.
Apartments-Unfurnished.
Get Our Apartment List.
Our cars will call and show you any of these apartments without obligation to you.
GOSS REALTY CO.
1405 Eye St. N.W. NA. 1283.
2605 Adams Mill Rd.
$47.50 to $70
(At 18th and Columbia Rd.)
2 and 4 rooms, kitchen, bath and porch.
Electric Refrigeration.
National Mortgage & Inv. Corp.
NA. 5833. 1312 N. Y. Ave.

CLIFTON TERRACE
14th and Clifton
Sts. N.W.
2 rooms, kitchen and bath $32.50
3 and 4 rooms, kitchen and bath $37.50
24-Hour Elevator and Switchboard Service
Resident Manager
H. L. RUST CO.
1001 15th St. N.W. NA. 8100

Downtown Apartments
Near Gov't Departments
Walking Distance of "Everything"
Save Car Fare and Time
Park Central
Corner 19th and F Sts.
$47.50—Living room, portable dining table and chairs, kitchen and bath with Murphy bed.
$52.50—Living room, dressing room with Murphy bed, portable dining table and chairs, sun-room with Murphy bed, kitchen and bath.
$62.50—Front apt. rec. hall, living room, dining room, kitchen and bath.
$77.50—Corner apt. hall, large living room, sun-room, dining room, kitchen and bath.
See Resident Manager—ME. 0540.

The Miramar
Corner 15th and R. I. Ave.
$50.00—Front living room, portable dining table and chairs, sun-room with Murphy bed, kitchen and bath.
$55.00—Living room, with portable dining table and chairs, sun-room with Murphy bed, kitchen and bath.
$72.50—Front apt. living room, dining room, sun-room, kitchen and bath.
See Resident Manager—FO. 5606.

Business Places—Rent
NO. 1027 Third St. N.W.
Near New Jersey Ave. and L St.
Modern building containing office 18'x30' and storage 3'x8' suitable for auto repair or storage purposes—moderate rent.
THOMAS J. FISHER & CO., INC.
738 15th St. N.W. District 6330.

Stores—Rent
IDEAL established suburban location for retail business, quiet surroundings, ample parking space, excellent bus route.
Call Randolph 4635 or Alexandria 35.
Call Randolph 4635 or Alexandria 35.

APPLE MARY AND DENNIE
WENDY! WHAT ARE YOU DOING LOCKED IN HERE? WHERE'S YOUR AUNT GRISLE? I DON'T KNOW.
THIS AIN'T NO TIME TO BOMBARD THE POOR KID WITH QUESTIONS. LET'S GET HER OUT OF HERE.
YEAH—THIS PLACE GIVES ME THE CREEPS.
LISTEN! THAT BUTLER'S COME BACK! HE'S HAMMERIN ON THE DOOR. WATTL! I'M SEE WHAT I'M GONNA DO TO HIM.
YUH MURDERIN' CROOK—I'LL—
IT'S MARY!

Post Classified Ads-National 4200.
Houses-Unfurnished
11-ROOM suburban resid. D. C. city improvements; nice grounds, car, all best to be seen to appreciate. Owner DE. 1833.
$50-433 Lamont St. N.W. Recently redecorated; 6 rooms, bath; a m. 1 OR 775 DE. 5127.
On an attractive street near 13th and Kansas ave. 6-rm. and bath brick house, a m. 1, built-in garage, screened porch, double doors; excellent condition. Convenient location.
RENT—$52.75.
HERBERT A. OIL & CO. 1406 G St. N.W. NA. 4038.
$47.50—Arlington, Va. 6-rm. 2 1/2 bath, 2 1/2 car, elec., con. trans., finished attic; GE. 1020.

1706 B ST. S.E.
Near Navy Yard; 6 rooms; semi-detached; brick; $52.50.
1406 G St. N.W. NA. 7772.
229 FARRAGUT ST. N.W.
Modern, practically new brick just off New Hampshire; 6 rooms, bath, screened porch, double doors; excellent condition. Convenient location.
RENT—$52.75.
HERBERT A. OIL & CO. 1406 G St. N.W. NA. 4038.
$47.50—Arlington, Va. 6-rm. 2 1/2 bath, 2 1/2 car, elec., con. trans., finished attic; GE. 1020.

1828 NO. CAPITOL ST.
6 rooms, bath; h.-h.; conveniently located; excellent condition.
315 T ST. N.E.
6 lovely rooms, bath; h.-h.; excellent condition; near Tech High School.
WOODRIDGE BUNGALOW
5 rooms, tile bath; h.-h.; 3-car garage; excellent condition.
LEO M. BERNSTEIN & CO. ME. 5400.

75-5342 41st St. N.W.
7 rooms and bath, extra lavatory, built-in garage, 2-car garage; near school, CALG. G. P. MICKERSON & SON, CL. 1123.
WESLEY HEIGHTS PROPERTIES FOR RENT. W. C. & A. N. MILLER, DL. 4494.
1725-LEASING ONLY.
Modern home in new condition containing 6 rooms, tile bath with shower, full basement and oil burner. Lot 23x132.
New school.
MT. VERNON MORTGAGE CORP. 26 floor, Mainland Bldg. NA. 5334.

604 OAK DRIVE
Silver Spring, Md. 6-rm. brick; 6 large rms., 1 1/2 baths; record; big yard.
DIXIE REALTY CO. NA. 8890.
Excellent Opportunity
1316-1318 E ST. N.W.
Right location in heart of the business section. Suitable for hotel, restaurant, or other business. Total of 27 rooms with 6 1/2 baths. Excellent income. Price $13,000. Call 1404 K CAFRITZ, Dist. 9080.

127 QUINCY PL. N.E.
Brick; 6 rooms and bath; convenient location; terms.
1406 G St. N.W. NA. 7772.
Suburban—Rent
ALEX. VA., 141 H-w. h. 5-rm. bungalow; elec. h.-h.; s. s. range; large yard; 1/4 acre from Wash. bus. near new school. $45. Call Mrs. L. C. CARY, CL. 1235.

Offices—Rent
Appala Bldg. cor. 5th & G Sts. N.W., opposite courts; entire fl. (13 rms., single or en suite); hot, lunch, jan. serv.; incl. reas. 430 5th St. N.W. NA. 4561.
430 5th St. N.W.
602 F St. N.W., new court and all Govt. bldgs.; heat, light, jan. serv.; $15 up. Mr. Rogers, 606 F St. N.W. ME. 6352.
NORMANDY OFFICE BLDG.
1626 K St. N.W. Open for rent.
THOMAS J. FISHER & CO., INC. 738 15th St. N.W. District 6330.

Post Classified Ads-National 4200.
Sale Houses
BEFORE YOU BUY CONSULT BOSS & PERLES.
1417 K St. N.W. NA. 9200.
$13,800—Only 1590 Cash. 1007 M St. S.E. 6 rooms, bath, 2-car garage, auto, elec., range, 1937-50 monthly payments. Open 10 to 6 p. m. Call 775 DE. 5127.
6 ROOMS, 2 BATHS
YOU WILL SAVE $1,000.
Practically new brick, built on owner's 2nd acre. Has recreation rm., 4 furnaces, elec. refrigerator. Built-in garage. Beautifully landscaped. Terms only $500 cash, $50 monthly. Call J. W. L. GRAVATE, 729 15th St. N.W. RE. 0753.

INTOWN ECONOMY HOMES
Representing real living at low cost. Complete in every respect, containing 6 rms. and bath, recreation rm., Venetian blinds, automatic heat, etc. Only 5 minutes to heart of city, within walking distance of stores, theater, schools. Terms only $500 cash, $50 monthly. Call J. W. L. GRAVATE, 729 15th St. N.W. RE. 0753.

NORTH WOODRIDGE
Det. brick house, 6 large rooms, h.-h., bookcase, fireplace, built-in garage, winter hook-up. Side screened porch. Large lot.
WILL CONSIDER TRADE.
BAKER REALTY CO., INC. DL. 1311.
NEW HOMES
Near Catholic University.
10th and Perry Place N.E.
Brick and stone construction. 3 bedrooms, recreation room, full basement, landscaped lot, quiet street.
$7,250 Up
OPEN FOR INSPECTION DAILY.
Call Mr. Connelley at 10th & Perry to homes.
BRADLEY, BEALL & HOWARD, INC. NA. 0271.

321 Kentucky Ave. S.E.
Open 3 to 5:30 p. m. 6 rms. and bath; oil burner; 1 1/2 baths; 2-car garage; 1/4 acre. Call 775 DE. 5127.
SARATOGA VILLAGE
SILVER SPRING, MD.
New Air-Conditioned Bungalows
$38.50 PER MONTH
Including payments, taxes and insurance. These fine new bungalows are being built by the Saratoga Village Co. on a beautiful 10-acre tract. Each house has a full basement, 6 rooms, tile bath, and a 2-car garage. Call 1404 K CAFRITZ, Dist. 9080.

ROBERTS E. LATIMER
7733 Alaska Ave. O.E. 1270.
Pictureque English Homes
Spacious, well-furnished, covered with trees and shrubbery. A fine home with green tile roof, 6 rooms and 2 1/2 baths, sun-parlor, breakfast room, recreation room, full basement, and a 2-car garage. Call 1404 K CAFRITZ, Dist. 9080.

ROSEDALE ST. N.E.
$2,950
Nice row-brick, 6 rooms and bath. Rent $32.50 monthly. Very good condition.
R. A. HUMPHRIES
808 Ne. Capitol. Realtor. NA. 0731.
OWNER MUST SACRIFICE
Near North Capitol and Madison Sts. NW. Detached brick, 4 bedrooms, 2 1/2 baths, tile floor, recreation room, full basement, and a 2-car garage. Call 1404 K CAFRITZ, Dist. 9080.

MAKE OFFER
Two new brick homes, one 6 rooms, one 4 rooms, complete with oil burner, electric kitchen, and a full basement. Call 1404 K CAFRITZ, Dist. 9080.

CASH COUNTS
WE HAVE HEARD IT SAID THAT the right price will sell anything, at anytime—anywhere.
SO WE ARE TRYING THIS OUT
We have a beautiful
ALL STONE HOUSE
Cape Cod corner entrance—2 bedrooms, large living room, large car, and a full basement. Call 1404 K CAFRITZ, Dist. 9080.

Post Classified Ads-National 4200.
Sale Houses
N.E.—SACRIFICE—$9,900.
Pacing Capital grounds, Colonial brick, 6 bedrooms, 2 1/2 baths, 2-car garage, auto, elec., range, 1937-50 monthly payments. Open 10 to 6 p. m. Call 775 DE. 5127.
2140 32D ST. S.E.
PRICE DRAMATICALLY REDUCED FOR QUICK SALE. 3 rooms, detached brick bungalow, built on owner's 2nd acre. Has recreation rm., 4 furnaces, elec. refrigerator. Built-in garage. Beautifully landscaped. Terms only $500 cash, $50 monthly. Call J. W. L. GRAVATE, 729 15th St. N.W. RE. 0753.

2140 32D ST. S.E.
PRICE DRAMATICALLY REDUCED FOR QUICK SALE. 3 rooms, detached brick bungalow, built on owner's 2nd acre. Has recreation rm., 4 furnaces, elec. refrigerator. Built-in garage. Beautifully landscaped. Terms only $500 cash, $50 monthly. Call J. W. L. GRAVATE, 729 15th St. N.W. RE. 0753.

SEE THESE HOMES EACH A REAL BUY
6396 FLORIDA STREET
Clery Chase, Md.
Just reduced $2,000. 4 bedrooms, 2 1/2 baths, 10,000 sq. ft. $10,750. Rent $1,100.
1705 BLADEN TERRACE
4 bedrooms, 2 1/2 baths, 2-car garage. Call 1404 K CAFRITZ, Dist. 9080.

441 46TH ST. N.W.
Sunroom on large corner lot. 4 bedrooms, 2 1/2 baths, 10,000 sq. ft. $10,750. Rent $1,100.
4511 ELM STREET
Det. brick and stone, 6 rooms and bath, maid's rm., 2-car garage, 1/4 acre, landscaped, $10,250. Rent $1,100.
2340 MASS. AVE. N.W.
Town house with all appointments, 4 bedrooms, 2 1/2 baths, 10,000 sq. ft. $10,750. Rent $1,100.

COLORED—530 Oklahoma Ave. S.E.
6 rooms, bath with shower; insulated; 2-car garage, 1/4 acre, landscaped, $10,250. Rent $1,100.
1705 BLADEN TERRACE
4 bedrooms, 2 1/2 baths, 2-car garage. Call 1404 K CAFRITZ, Dist. 9080.

40 ACRES
Near Seatons, Md. with 6-room house and 100,000 sq. ft. of land. 1/4 acre, landscaped, $10,250. Rent $1,100.
1705 BLADEN TERRACE
4 bedrooms, 2 1/2 baths, 2-car garage. Call 1404 K CAFRITZ, Dist. 9080.

40 ACRES
Near Seatons, Md. with 6-room house and 100,000 sq. ft. of land. 1/4 acre, landscaped, $10,250. Rent $1,100.
1705 BLADEN TERRACE
4 bedrooms, 2 1/2 baths, 2-car garage. Call 1404 K CAFRITZ, Dist. 9080.

40 ACRES
Near Seatons, Md. with 6-room house and 100,000 sq. ft. of land. 1/4 acre, landscaped, $10,250. Rent $1,100.
1705 BLADEN TERRACE
4 bedrooms, 2 1/2 baths, 2-car garage. Call 1404 K CAFRITZ, Dist. 9080.

Post Classified Ads-National 4200.
Sale Acreage
17 ACRES on Richmond, Washington 17 miles south of Aft. 1 large portion, beautifully wooded, 1800 an acre. Terms: $100 down, $1000 per acre. Call 1404 K CAFRITZ, Dist. 9080.

Sale—Farms, Land
BY OWNER—49,700; 23 A. 4 rms., 2 baths, 2 fireplaces; fruit and shade; 5 miles to Chain Bridge. E. L. Foster, Meade, Va. P. O. Box 853-7-11 evenings.
LOUDOUN COUNTY dairy farm, 80 acres, fully equipped, herd included; also wintered 100 head of cattle. Call 1404 K CAFRITZ, Dist. 9080.

SALE—SHORES, WATERFRONT
3 MILES from Riverdale, Md., on Manassas River, 100 acres, 100,000 sq. ft. of land, with 200-ft. frontage. 1000. Wm. Gibson, DL. 4929.

Business Opportunities
BEAUTY SHOP, upper 14th st. first floor; modern equipment; good business; rent $150. $1,000. Terms: Cash & 3 mos. Call 1404 K CAFRITZ, Dist. 9080.

CLASH, FUEL OIL, WOOD
OAK WOOD, 1st fl. per cord delivered and stored. Buck, J. 2020.
SELECTED oak, pine and mixed, 90 cord. Wood, 1728.

WANTED! WANTED! ROOMING HOUSES
We can sell your furniture and business if priced right. Phone or See EDWIN ELLIS, ROOMING HOUSE HEADQUARTERS, 1010 Vermont Ave. NW. 217, NA. 3384.

Dogs, Cats, Pets
ENGLISH SETTERS, 5 mos., pure-bred; 6 miles District Line, on Georgia Ave. 2nd Phone 304, 4-13.
ADOLE KENNELS
A. E. C. ROBERTSON
REARDED WITH PICK FRIERIES. Complete Grooming of All Breeds. 63 1/2 St. N.W. Phone 304, 4-13.

Sale Miscellaneous
DEALER'S ADS under this heading contain a firm name or a business name. If you are interested in any of these, please call the dealer. If you are not interested, please do not call. This is a service to the public. Call 1404 K CAFRITZ, Dist. 9080.

Post Classified Ads-National 4200.
Sale—Automobiles
CHEVROLET $450
1937 De Luxe Coach, built-in trunk; new tires, excellent condition; $450. Terms: $100 down, $100 per month. Call 1404 K CAFRITZ, Dist. 9080.

SALE—Automobiles
1937 De Luxe Coach, built-in trunk; new tires, excellent condition; $450. Terms: $100 down, $100 per month. Call 1404 K CAFRITZ, Dist. 9080.

SALE—Automobiles
1937 De Luxe Coach, built-in trunk; new tires, excellent condition; $450. Terms: $100 down, $100 per month. Call 1404 K CAFRITZ, Dist. 9080.

SALE—Automobiles
1937 De Luxe Coach, built-in trunk; new tires, excellent condition; $450. Terms: $100 down, $100 per month. Call 1404 K CAFRITZ, Dist. 9080.

SALE—Automobiles
1937 De Luxe Coach, built-in trunk; new tires, excellent condition; $450. Terms: $100 down, $100 per month. Call 1404 K CAFRITZ, Dist. 9080.

SALE—Automobiles
1937 De Luxe Coach, built-in trunk; new tires, excellent condition; $450. Terms: $100 down, $100 per month. Call 1404 K CAFRITZ, Dist. 9080.

SALE—Automobiles
1937 De Luxe Coach, built-in trunk; new tires, excellent condition; $450. Terms: $100 down, $100 per month. Call 1404 K CAFRITZ, Dist. 9080.

SALE—Automobiles
1937 De Luxe Coach, built-in trunk; new tires, excellent condition; $450. Terms: $100 down, $100 per month. Call 1404 K CAFRITZ, Dist. 9080.

Trailer Tintypes

Bob Burns Says—

One of the most convincing books on crime I ever read was written by a criminal who was doing a life term. I think the best temperance lectures are by those who have experienced evils of over-indulgence, but I know a lot of people won't agree with me.

One day a lady walked into a newspaper office and told the editor she would love to speak to the beauty editor. The editor says, "Has she done you any good? Do you have confidence in her?" The lady says, "Oh, absolutely!" The editor says, "well, then maybe you'd better not see her!"

Copyright, 1938, Revere Features, Inc.

See Bob Burns in "The Arkansas Traveler" at the Earle starting November 11.

DONALD DUCK—Every Porker for Himself! BY WALT DISNEY

DON WINSLOW OF THE NAVY Souvenir BY FRANK MARTINEK

Listen to Don Winslow on the air today—WMAL—4:30 P. M.

NED BRANT—A Story of College Athletics BY BOB ZUPPKE

MR. AND MRS.

A Whiff to a Wife

TERRY AND THE PIRATES

Listen to Terry and the Pirates—5:15 p. m.—WMAL

BY MILTON CANIFF

BIG CHIEF WAHOO

BY SAUNDERS AND WOGGON

WINNIE WINKLE

He's Got a Kick Coming

BY BRANNER

MICKEY FINN

Another Patient!

BY LANK LEONARD

DIXIE DUGAN

Just Apologize

J. P. McEVROY AND H. J. STRIBEL

JOE PALOOKA

Incognito

BY HAM FISHER

BENNY

Dodging Air Raids

BY J. CARVER PUSEY

Citizens' Group Approves Law For Pedestrian

Congress Heights Meets Officers Are Named Better Policing Urged

Indorsement of a plea to establish pedestrian control in the District, and re-election of Otho Garmand, president, and other officers, last night were highlights of the meeting held by the Congress Heights Progressive Citizens Association.

On motion of E. J. Newcomb, the association gave support of its more than 200 members to the plan for cutting down traffic injuries and fatalities through pedestrian control, a measure which has drawn approval from traffic authorities, and other civic organizations.

Officers Chosen

Garmand, in accepting presidency of the organization, said he would continue to work for the betterment of the Congress Heights area. Officers elected with Garmand were A. E. Righter, vice president; Ted Edwards, secretary, and Mrs. Edna Hoag, treasurer.

Special committees were appointed to study police protection given outlying sections during such special downtown celebrations as the Halloween parade and to prepare a community Christmas celebration for residents of Congress Heights.

Members of the committee named to investigate police protection and report to the association at a later meeting were E. J. Newcomb, chairman; M. E. Stough, Dr. E. E. Richardson, E. M. Richardson and T. D. Bowles.

Plan Christmas Party

The community Christmas party, sponsored for the first time by the association, will be arranged by Dr. E. E. Richardson, H. B. Kaufman, E. O. Russell, E. M. Richardson and R. A. Sullivan.

At request of Mrs. Robert E. Lee, of the Congress Heights Parent-Teacher Association, members of the group volunteered to find a photography class for the younger school children.

New members admitted last night were: Ida M. Deignan, Walter L. Grimes, Joseph D. Branson, Ralph E. Burton, Charles W. Richmond, Jack Cooper, Edward W. Chaillet, Norman C. Love, Edwin W. Simmons, William J. Brinsfield, Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Prowinski, Henry J. Poles, Charles E. Wallace, and G. K. Western.

Otis Place Closing Hit

Aroused citizens of the Park View area at a protest meeting last night prepared to fight a request by the Board of Education that Otis place be closed between Sixth and Warder streets northwest.

The citizens claim 100 per cent support of residents affected by the proposed closure.

Officers of the Park View Citizens Association and the Park View Business Men's Association pledged the support of their organizations.

A hearing on the question is scheduled before the Board of Commissioners for next Monday at 10 a. m. in the District Building.

The citizens were nonplussed for a while when they found that a slip-up in arrangements had caused the Park View School Building not to be opened, but they went ahead and held an open-air meeting on the front steps of the school.

Ten years ago a similar measure to close Otis place was proposed, but a protest from residents stopped the action.

Individual citizens proposed that the District either buy the land behind the school grounds for a playground or else construct an underground passage across Otis place to the present playground.

Dupont Circle Citizens

Traffic rather than crime is the chief problem faced by the Metropolitan Police Department, Maj. Ernest W. Brown yesterday told the Dupont Circle Citizens Association meeting at the Mayflower Hotel.

Much remains to be done to improve the traffic situation, Brown said, whereas criminal offenses in 1938 have dropped almost 2,000 as compared with last year. He attributed the crime drop to activities of the Police Boys Club in lowering the rate of juvenile delinquencies.

Brown declared an increase of at least 150 in the police force is necessary to cope with the traffic situation.

The association recommended banning all parking in the business section on streets used by street cars and buses, a further synchronization of traffic lights in the downtown area and more traffic policemen.

Takoma Park

Takoma Park-District Citizens Association, meeting last night in Takoma School, urged the District Commissioners to ban parking on the adjacent side of streets bordering playgrounds, and favored "some form" of pedestrian control.

The Board of Education was asked to make a thorough examination of Takoma School premises after reports of plaster falling from the ceiling. President Roosevelt was asked to make an immediate appointment to fill the vacant Commissioner post, and to choose a bona fide District resident for the position.

Metropolis View

Improved facilities and a larger staff for Woodbridge Library and continuation of the $1.75 real estate levy was asked by the Metropolis View Citizens Association in resolutions adopted last night.

It was announced at the association's meeting that the organization will give a dance December 9 in Masonic Hall, Rhode Island and Mills avenues northeast.

Forest Hills Citizens

The Forest Hills Citizens Association last night supported the movement for pedestrian control and favored the creation of a traffic safety council with a paid expert at the meeting in the Ben Murch School.

Appropriation was made for one of the new District flags to be presented to the school.

Manor Park Citizens

Manor Park citizens last night sought to diminish traffic casualties by supporting limited parking restrictions on streets bordering playgrounds.

The association demanded an immediate survey of lighting and fuel conditions at Whittier School and favored appropriations to maintain

New Officers of Congress Heights Progressive Citizens

The Congress Heights Progressive Citizens Association elected new officers last night. They are (from left) A. E. Righter, vice president; Mrs. Edna Hoag, treasurer; Otho Garmand, president, and Ted Edwards, secretary.

Board Term Issue in Arlington; 2 City Offices To Be Voted On In Alexandria

Women Oppose Change Fear They'll Lose Seat On County's Board

Voters in Arlington County will go to the polls from 6:42 a. m. to 5:01 p. m. today to decide whether county board members shall be elected for staggered terms.

Eleventh-hour efforts were being made yesterday by women voters in the county to defeat the measure on the grounds that the proposal would deprive them of representation.

Despite the fact that there are approximately 9,000 qualified voters in the county, and of that number more than 5,000 turned out in the Democratic primary last August, it is predicted that the vote today will not exceed 3,000.

A careful survey of political leaders in the county indicates that the proposal to change the method of electing county board members will be defeated.

Mrs. C.T. Grayson Named to Group Husband Headed

At the annual meeting of the Gorge Memorial Institute yesterday at the American Red Cross Building, Mrs. Cary T. Grayson was elected to the executive committee of the board of directors for the coming year.

In directing to the office, Mrs. Grayson becomes a member of the committee of which her husband, the late Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, was chairman from 1928 until his death last year. He also had been chairman of the American Red Cross after 1935 and White House physician during the Wilson Administration.

Other Washingtonians named to office were Gen. M. W. Ireland, secretary, and A. M. Nevius, vice president of Riggs Bank, treasurer.

Rumrich's Wife Testifies on Cash Paid Him by Nazis

New York, Nov. 7 (AP).—The Government rested today in its three-week-old spy trial prosecution of a woman and two men defendants after Mrs. Guri Rumrich, of Missoula, Mont., pretty blonde wife of Guenther Gustav Rumrich, 32, confessed Nazi agent, nervously testified her husband received sums of money from the alleged "contact" man of a German espionage ring.

Truck Driver Loses $37 to Bandit

William W. Greene, 25, 716 Ninth street northeast, a truck driver, was robbed of $37 last night in a holdup at the intersection of Ridge and Anacostia roads. Hearing a noise in the back of his truck, Greene got out of the cab to investigate only to look into the barrel of a revolver.

After forcing Greene to turn over his money, the bandit escaped in a waiting automobile.

In a purse-snatching at North Capitol and Adams streets northwest, Miss Gladie Reeves, 5 Adams street, lost $3 when a young white man grabbed her pocketbook and fled down an alley.

Two suspects, captured by G-men, were held under $50,000 bail each tonight accused of a $20,000 extortion plot.

Target of the alleged plot was Alexis C. Barbeau, Jr., 28, wealthy manufacturer who resides at Silver Creek, 35 miles from here.

The prisoners were identified by John B. Barnes, special agent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, as Anthony J. Catalano, 33, of Buffalo, and Anthony L. de Pasquale, 36, of Silver Creek.

lighting and heat so that schools can be used for appropriate purposes at any time. Forty new members were voted in at the meeting.

Progressive Citizens

John Nolen, Jr., director of planning of the District Parks and Planning Commission, last night told the Progressive Citizens Association of Georgetown how the new zoning law would affect that section.

Possibilities for the development of Georgetown harbor were pointed out by Earle Satt, chairman of the rivers and harbors committee of the Board of Trade.

A motion demanding national representation for the District was moved by Miss Etta Taggart and adopted.

Bladensburg Road

Regulations for control of pedestrian traffic in that section of the road in traffic should be enforced with penalties similar to those imposed against motorists-violators, the Bladensburg Road Citizens Association resolved last night.

The association recorded its opposition to a ban on all-night parking after District Traffic Director William A. Van Duser in an address on District traffic problems, declared parked cars a factor in the city's traffic toll.

R. C. Mitchell, B. G. Johnson, Albert F. Mueller, Harry H. Langley, Edward Fisher and Albert Avery were elected members.

face 'Broken Out'?

Relieve the soreness and aid healing by washing daily with Resinol Soap and freely applying Resinol

4 Amendments Listed 18,000 Votes Likely Precincts 'Lettered'

Prince Georges County's ballots in today's general election will contain the names of 75 candidates for State and County offices. In addition, voters will be asked to ratify or reject four proposed constitutional amendments.

With a turnout of more than 18,000 voters anticipated, election officials have split a number of districts into alphabetical precincts. Persons whose last names start with the letters A to J will vote in one booth and those from K to Z in another booth. Polls will be open from 7 a. m. to 7 p. m.

Despite this effort to speed up vote counting, complete returns from only the smaller precincts are expected before midnight. Election officials in some of the larger precincts, such as Hyattsville, Chillum and Riverdale, in the heavily populated metropolitan area, do not expect to finish counting until probably noon Wednesday.

The 40 candidates for 21 county offices, in addition to Circuit Judges Joseph Mattingly and William Loker, who are unopposed. The remaining 35 candidates are running for State-wide offices on the Democratic, Republican, Independent, Socialist, Communist, Union, Labor and Progressive tickets.

Of interest to county residents is the candidacy of Mayor John N. Torvestad of Colmar Manor for Congressman from the Fifth District.

Progressive on the pledge that he will obtain Congressional aid in putting over a flood control program for the Anacostia River, which periodically overflows its banks at Peace Cross in Bladensburg and in neighboring communities.

His opponents are David L. Elliott, of Baltimore City, an Independent; Stephen W. Garmann, of Howard County, Democratic incumbent, and A. Kingsley Love, of St. Marys County, Republican.

The proposed constitutional amendments advocate a graduated progressive income tax law; a 48-hour waiting period between the application for a marriage license and performance of the ceremony; authorization of State-controlled lotteries, and an additional judge for the Second Judicial Circuit of Maryland, including Caroline, Cecil, Kent, Queen Anne and Talbot counties.

Police Seize Two With $500 and Numbers Slips

Nearly $500 and hundreds of alleged numbers slips were confiscated by police yesterday when they arrested two men in the 1000 block Thirtieth street northwest.

Booked on charges of operating a lottery and possession of lottery slips, the men identified themselves as Edward F. Coupe, 34, 5000 block Conduit road northwest, and Henry Lynch, colored, 36, 1000 block Thirtieth street northwest.

Several bags containing slips and money and about 200 books of slips were found in Coupe's sedan, Sergt. Deyoe stated. Coupe threw the keys away when he saw the police, they said.

Deyoe explained the men were arrested on information that pick-up men were collecting numbers bets in the vicinity to be transported to a Virginia counting house.

Weather Bureau Chief's Wife Residuary Heir

Dr. Willis Ray Gregg, late chief of the United States Weather Bureau here, left the residue of his estate to his wife, Mrs. Mary C. W. Gregg, of Takoma Park, Md., it was revealed in the will admitted for probate in the Orphans' Court at Rockville, Md., yesterday. Mrs. Gregg was named executrix.

Bay State Deadline

Massachusetts voters filing absentee ballots from the District have until 11:30 a. m. today to deliver their ballots to the Absentee Voters Bureau, 1408 G street northwest, in order to get their votes to the Bay State election board before deadline tonight.

position to a ban on all-night parking after District Traffic Director William A. Van Duser in an address on District traffic problems, declared parked cars a factor in the city's traffic toll.

R. C. Mitchell, B. G. Johnson, Albert F. Mueller, Harry H. Langley, Edward Fisher and Albert Avery were elected members.

face 'Broken Out'?

Relieve the soreness and aid healing by washing daily with Resinol Soap and freely applying Resinol

face 'Broken Out'?

Relieve the soreness and aid healing by washing daily with Resinol Soap and freely applying Resinol

face 'Broken Out'?

Relieve the soreness and aid healing by washing daily with Resinol Soap and freely applying Resinol

face 'Broken Out'?

Relieve the soreness and aid healing by washing daily with Resinol Soap and freely applying Resinol

Montgomery Party Chiefs Optimistic

Heavy Vote Expected Democrats Confident G. O. P. Hopeful

Montgomery County's 32,551 voters, or at least a majority of them, will go to the polls today to decide whether the country will be governed by the Republican or Democratic parties for the next four years and to aid in the selection of the State officials.

Both Democratic and Republican leaders forecast victories. Democrats claimed majorities of from 2,000 to 5,000, while Republicans admitted the fight would be close but asserted the small margin would be on their side.

Smashing radio addresses last night by speakers from both parties gave last minute finishing touches to probably one of the most heated campaigns in history.

Chief issue before the voters was the much discussed survey of county government, to which both parties are pledged in their platforms.

Republicans charge that the Democratic forces are throttling the survey by postponing action until after election. The Democrats reply that the Republicans seek to cover their own inability to answer Democratic charges against the Republican record of the past four years.

A radio speech by Washington I. Cleveland, chairman of the Committee of Fifty and former president of the Montgomery County Civic Federation, over the Republican radio program, was distributed through the county by mail and by messenger yesterday by Republicans. Cleveland attacked the Democratic members of the board of county commissioners for failure to contract with the Brookings Institute for the survey.

Democrats claimed the speech was a "boomerang" in that Cleveland had issued a statement later in which he said he would not have made the radio speech had he known the "true facts." The Democratic commissioners have pledged themselves to contract for the survey after election and other responsible party leaders also have echoed the pledge. Frederic P. Lee, also a former president of the federation and a leader of the Committee of Fifty, and Cleveland have issued statements declaring themselves satisfied that the survey will be ordered.

County voters were deluged with printed propaganda yesterday as mailmen staggered under heavy loads of campaign literature and workers for both parties were busy scattering literature throughout the county.

Election supervisors yesterday released the exact tabulation of possible voters for the county. Political leaders declared they believed the vote would approach 30,000 because of the high interest in both the State and the county elections.

Two-Alarm Fire Wrecks Dance Hall; Many Flee Smoke

The interior of the Rendezvous dance hall, 809 H street northeast, was destroyed by a $10,000 two-alarm fire early yesterday.

Residents of apartments over the dine and dance cafe were forced into the street in night dress by dense smoke which poured through the three-story structure. One fireman was injured.

Water Transportation Theme of 2 Speeches

Water transportation will be the subject of two addresses to be given before the Federal Transportation Association tomorrow at 7:30 p. m. in the Department of Commerce auditorium.

Lorin C. Nelson, director of the bureau of regulation, Maritime Commission, and T. Q. Ashburn, president of the Inland Waterways Corporation, will speak.

Two Witnesses Of Shooting Lose Perjury Appeal

Harry Behrle and William R. Carpenter, sentenced to two years each for perjury about a gangland shooting here, lost in the District Court of Appeals yesterday their fight to escape serving the sentences.

Joseph E. O'Brien was shot down in a clash between underworld mobsters the night of July 20, 1936. Behrle saw the affray and gave the police a written statement about it. Later he gave the same testimony before the grand jury. But when he was a witness against several men accused of shooting O'Brien he "lost his memory." For this he was indicted for perjury.

Carpenter was convicted of lying about losing his memory also when asked to repeat on the witness stand identification of the assailants he once gave police.

She Thought Comfortable Meant Awful Looking . . .

But, then, she hadn't seen Dr. M. W. Locke Shoes—the shoes that women wear for active daytime duty for comfort and good looks, too. There are Dr. Locke lasts for every type of foot—all designed by the famous Dr. M. W. Locke, of Canada. Come in and have a fitting by our Dr. Locke experts. For any serious foot ailment we advise you to see your physician.

Women's Shoes—Main Floor—The Hecht Co.

Dr. M. W. Locke NO. 4 1/2 LAST 12.00

"Monk," with wide strap and buckle, 3 eye-let vamp, modified toe, perforations. In lightweight calfskin. Sizes 4 to 9.

Dr. M. W. Locke NO. 4 1/2 LAST 12.00

"Monk," with wide strap and buckle, 3 eye-let vamp, modified toe, perforations. In lightweight calfskin. Sizes 4 to 9.

Dr. M. W. Locke NO. 4 1/2 LAST 12.00

"Monk," with wide strap and buckle, 3 eye-let vamp, modified toe, perforations. In lightweight calfskin. Sizes 4 to 9.

Dr. M. W. Locke NO. 4 1/2 LAST 12.00

"Monk," with wide strap and buckle, 3 eye-let vamp, modified toe, perforations. In lightweight calfskin. Sizes 4 to 9.

Dr. M. W. Locke NO. 4 1/2 LAST 12.00

"Monk," with wide strap and buckle, 3 eye-let vamp, modified toe, perforations. In lightweight calfskin. Sizes 4 to 9.

Dr. M. W. Locke NO. 4 1/2 LAST 12.00

Looks for $100 for Fine

Associated Press Wirephoto. SALLY RAND, the fan dancer, opens her purse to look for $100, apparently happy because the penalty was so light for her conviction of battery against two amateur candid camera fans who sought to take her picture during a stage performance. She was fined yesterday by a Los Angeles judge.

Hotels, Unions Negotiate

The Hotel and Restaurant Workers and the Bartenders International League announced yesterday negotiations have been opened with the Powhatan Hotel and Wesley Hall for union agreements. The unions are affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

War Crisis Almost Dispersed Mapmakers' Rome Convention

The Post learned yesterday that September's war crisis nearly blew up the International Congress of Photogrammetry, along with the rest of Europe.

Three hundred photogrammetrists, who, as everyone knows, are persons interested in aerial map making, convened in Rome on September 29, said Talbert Abrams, president of the Abrams Aerial Survey Corporation and the Abrams Aircraft Corporation, with offices in the National Press Building.

On the day the assembly opened—it was 24 hours before the Munich conference—British and French delegates hastily packed up their valuable aerial cameras and hurried out of Italy. "They feared they would be interned and their equipment confiscated," Abrams said. "And there we were, wide-eyed Americans, wondering why everybody should be mad at each other."

Frenchmen returned to the congress he added.

He said that the British and a few days later, when the crisis had passed.

Abrams declared that aerial survey cameras had been more highly developed in Europe than in America. One type of mapmaking camera is so well perfected, he said, that contour lines can be drawn directly from the photographs.

Do FALSE TEETH Rock, Slide or Slip?

FASTTEETH, an improved powder to be sprinkled on upper or lower plates, holds false teeth more firmly in place. Do not slide, slip or rock. No runny, gooey, pasty taste or feeling. FASTTEETH is alkaline (non-acid). Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTTEETH at any drug store.

Here You Are! Big Smith Values In SHOE REPAIRING

MEN'S HALF SOLES AND WEARTEX HEELS, NEW LACES AND SHINE 84c Complete!

Regular 98c value—this Smith shoe repairing special for men! Only choice materials used. We buy in tremendous whole sale quantities and can afford to give you the best!

Men's Leather HALF SOLES... 59c

Men's Durable WEARTEX HEELS 24c

Ladies' Leather HALF SOLES... 49c

Ladies' Strong WEARTEX HEELS 19c

Cash and Carry

Smith's 21 Servicemen Cleaners & Launderers Shoe Repairers

THE HECHT CO. 7 Street at Seventh • NATIONAL 5100

Hoot Mon, Here's A REAL BUY!

A V-neck herringbone front with full upper and pockets.

Robert Bruce SWEATERS

Nationally Advertised

Robert Bruce MEN'S SWEATERS

3.95

This new pattern with the herringbone weave front, plain color sleeves and back and the popular belted sport back is proving one of our best sellers. It's a masculine looking sweater for regular fellows. Wear it under your coat on cold days . . . out on the golf course . . . or in the evenings when you take your after-dinner walk. It's just the right weight for this time of the year. Made of finely knitted, soft wool and rayon in blue and brown color combinations.

Baby Shaker Knit With Long Fishtail Bottom 2.95

Robert Bruce Famous Radio Cardigan Jacket 3.95

Crew Neck All Wool Heavy Shaker Knit 3.95

War Crisis Almost Dispersed Mapmakers' Rome Convention

The Post learned yesterday that September's war crisis nearly blew up the International Congress of Photogrammetry, along with the rest of Europe.

Three hundred photogrammetrists, who, as everyone knows, are persons interested in aerial map making, convened in Rome on September 29, said Talbert Abrams, president of the Abrams Aerial Survey Corporation and the Abrams Aircraft Corporation, with offices in the National Press Building.

On the day the assembly opened—it was 24 hours before the Munich conference—British and French delegates hastily packed up their valuable aerial cameras and hurried out of Italy. "They feared they would be interned and their equipment confiscated," Abrams said. "And there we were, wide-eyed Americans, wondering why everybody should be mad at each other."

Frenchmen returned to the congress he added.

He said that the British and a few days later, when the crisis had passed.

Abrams declared that aerial survey cameras had been more highly developed in Europe than in America. One type of mapmaking camera is so well perfected, he said, that contour lines can be drawn directly from the photographs.

Do FALSE TEETH Rock, Slide or Slip?

FASTTEETH, an improved powder to be sprinkled on upper or lower plates, holds false teeth more firmly in place. Do not slide, slip or rock. No runny, gooey, pasty taste or feeling. FASTTEETH is alkaline (non-acid). Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTTEETH at any drug store.

Here You Are! Big Smith Values In SHOE REPAIRING

MEN'S HALF SOLES AND WEARTEX HEELS, NEW LACES AND SHINE 84c Complete!

Regular 98c value—this Smith shoe repairing special for men! Only choice materials used. We buy in tremendous whole sale quantities and can afford to give you the best!

Men's Leather HALF SOLES... 59c

Men's Durable WEARTEX HEELS 24c

Ladies' Leather HALF SOLES... 49c

Ladies' Strong WEARTEX HEELS 19c

Cash and Carry